Double Tragedy Caused by 'Booze' and Drugs

A Rockefeller Actress
Men Hate Charity
Hypodermic Needle

— By Arthur Brisbane —

Merchants everywhere, the public also, are interested in a buying and selling week organized in New York city with Franklin Simon, able business man, as president of the enterprise.

Sometimes when a baby is born with lungs clouded, gasping for breath, they throw water in its face or toss it in the air, to set things going. America's business baby needs such treatment, some shock to stir and start it. Every city should inaugurate a "buyers' week", all merchants combining, as they will do in New York, to surprise buyers with the best possible bargains, stimulating business, clearing shelves, creating a demand for workmen in factories.

The New York Times says Miss Muriel McCormick, grand-daughter of John D. Rockefeller and daughter of the head of the International Harvester Trust, is studying for the stage, and may start as a professional actress in Munich. It is interesting. Those that have seen the young woman dashing from the front to the back at the grand opera, know that she has ambition and energy. Such a woman finds her opportunity—outside of motherhood—in acting, singing, public speaking or astronomy.

Astronomy is dull for many. Public speaking demands that you write your own part. Singing calls for a voice. Acting demands chiefly intelligence, vigor, good looks and strong emotion. It is woman's natural career—next to motherhood.

The fate of the actress is better than it used to be, in days when Voltaire, to protect a friend of his, fought the religious law that sentenced dead actresses to be buried in the cross roads, excluded from every cemetery. Voltaire won his fight. He usually did.

Anyhow, it wouldn't worry the child of oil wells and harvesters. Her family could afford to endow a cemetery for her exclusive use with a thousand acres of land and an exact reproduction of the Comédie Francaise for mausoleum.

Galton proves that the genius of great men is inherited only through the female line. What could be more interesting than to see the power of Rockefeller, third generation female, tearing a passion to tatters with inherited energy that once built up Standard Oil?

In the greatest city, richest in America, thousands sleep in public parks, on grass or benches, with newspapers under them to keep out the chill.

And in the city's free lodging house four or five hundred beds are empty every night.

Puzzling? Not at all. Worse than cold, homelessness or even hunger, men hate CHARITY.

You couldn't have persuaded Nancy Hanks to take her baby, Abraham Lincoln, from the dirt floor of her shack, without windows, to the finest poorhouse ever built—not if it had had floors well carpeted. Human beings like independence; that's why we are in this country.

It is the business of general intelligence and prosperity, represented in government, to provide men with work and a chance to sleep in their own beds.

The public lodging house is clean. The attendants are cold and brusque, as men always are that deal habitually with the poor. And a sweetly idiotic rule compels the unemployed lodger to stay and work two hours to pay for his lodging, in the morning, the only time when he might find a job.

The real objection to lodging houses and bread lines is hatred of CHARITY. A man must sink low before he eats willingly from another's hand.

An unfortunate young woman, Virginia Rappe, died in agony after a disgraceful drinking bout with men, of whom every one should be in jail. Newspapers will print thousands of columns, but it is all told in a few words by the surgeon that performed the autopsy: "There was a small puncture in the left arm made by a hypodermic needle."

Drugs destroy everything; first health, then character, then reason, then life. They cannot apparently be suppressed. There lies one of the problems of prohibition.

A church in Montreal requests women to come to church modestly dressed, arms and neck covered, and transparent material.

How, exactly, do the millions of angels dress in heaven? What is the costume worn throughout eternity? It must be something permanent. No dressmakers, no work in heaven.

Artists show us angels, with long, feathered wings, a white, loose dress, looking like a nightgown. What authority have they for this? Such a dress would not keep its place if the angel flew backward.

More probably, the entire celestial body is covered with feathers that are never shed, indestructible. Are any facts at hand?

This leads to another question, never satisfactorily answered: What IS modesty?

TO REPEAT OFFER TO SINN FEIN

London Understands Premier Will Reaffirm Separation of Erin Is Impossible

Dundee, Scotland, Sept. 24 (By the Associated Press).—Winston Spencer Churchill, Minister for the Colonies, speaking here today, said the British government had gone to the utmost limit possible in its offer to the Sinn Feiners, and that, if it was rejected, the government had not anything else to give. "We have reached the end of our tether," he declared.

By International News Service.

London, Sept. 24.—Premier Lloyd George's note to the Sinn Fein, while reaffirming separation of Ireland from the British empire is impossible, will not call upon the Sinn Fein to make any declaration previous to the proposed peace conference, said the London Times today.

The Daily Telegraph said that while the English note will be conciliatory, it will not allow Irish separation to creep in as a basis for the conference. The English cabinet, according to the Daily Telegraph, will repeat the invitation to a peace conference.

"We offer to enter a peace conference to find a solution of our quarrel with England," said Arthur Griffith, founder of the Sinn Fein, to the Dublin correspondent of the Daily Mail.

"We are willing to hold the conference at any time. We are not opposed to a parley."

The Daily Chronicle, which is regarded as the personal organ of Lloyd George, says that a peace conference may have for its sole purpose the finding of a basis upon which Ireland will remain within the empire.

Fighting Resumed in Streets of Belfast

Belfast, Sept. 24.—Rifle firing was renewed in the districts of this city affected by last night's disorders, one man being wounded. The only death resulting from the rioting since its resumption yesterday was accidental, a man being run over by an armoured car.

The rioting was so severe last evening that tram cars were withdrawn from the troubled area.

RAIN SCHEDULED FOR SUNDAY HERE

Showers are predicted for tomorrow. Rain may not come until late in the afternoon or early in the evening, according to Forecaster Smith. Tomorrow will be unsettled, with not much change in temperature. The coldest spots in New England today were Northfield, Vt., and Greenfield, Me., the coldest point both reporting temperatures of 48 degrees. It was 56 in Boston at 6 and 7 o'clock this morning.

CHELSEA GIRL DIES FROM EFFECTS OF GAS

Miss Lillian Sender, twenty-one years old, of No. 280 Spruce street, Chelsea, who was found unconscious from the effects of illuminating gas in a room at her home, died at the Chelsea Memorial Hospital from the effects of the poison.

2 HULL SAILORS SAVED AS THEIR BOAT UPSETS

Chester C. Waterhouse and George P. Cobb, of Hull, saved two sailors from drowning off Pemberton, putting out to the rescue of the men in a motor boat. The sailors were in a yawl which had capsized.

Federal Bureau for Identification Is Planned

Washington, Sept. 23.—Plans for a Federal Bureau of Identification here to aid local police throughout the country in tracing and identifying criminals were announced by William J. Burns, new chief of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice in an address before the International Association for Identification.

The proposed bureau, he said, has obtained the full endorsement of Attorney-General Daugherty.

The bureau was described by Burns as a clearing house for all data bearing on the identification of criminals obtained by all police departments of the country.

It will be prepared, he said, to furnish to the police of any community identification data for any criminal with which it has been supplied, such as finger prints, photographs, Bertillon measurements and personal descriptions.

3 ARRESTS IN LYNN AUTO THEFT ROUNDUP

Lynn police today predicted that they would soon have twelve men under arrest in connection with their roundup of automobile thieves. An organized band, they assert, has been operating in Greater Boston, with headquarters in Lynn.

James J. Ryan, Thomas Horne and Harold E. Carlton were arrested early today, charged with the larceny of an automobile from persons unknown. Judge Ralph W. Reed held them in $1,000 each for a hearing Friday.

Inspectors Curry and Dwyer of the Lynn police department are in charge of the roundup.

BOSTON GIRL GOES TO BELGIUM AS STUDENT

Miss Eleanor Wyllis Allen of No. 1925 Commonwealth avenue, Radcliffe, 1918, will sail on the Red Star liner Lapland Tuesday for Belgium, where she will enroll in the University of Brussels as an exchange student. She is one of twenty-two American students given scholarships in Belgian universities by the Relief of Belgium Educational Foundation.

Miss Allen is specializing in international law. She studied in Yale in 1918-1919 and went back to Radcliffe for a master's degree in international law last year.

BRIAND, JUSSERAND AND SARRAUT FOR PARLEY

Paris, Sept. 24.—Premier Briand, Albert Sarraut, Minister of Colonies, and Jules J. Jusserand, French Ambassador at Washington, will represent France at the conference of limitation of armaments and Far Eastern questions, it is declared by newspapers here. The fourth member of the delegation, it is said, will probably be either Rene Viviani, former Premier, or Louis Loucheur, Minister for Devastated Regions.

261 RECRUITS FOR U. S. NAVY IN FIRST WEEK

Washington, Sept. 24.—In the first week after resuming enlisting the navy obtained 261 recruits and re-enlisted 228 "old timers," the department today announced, bringing the strength of the navy proper up to over 114,000 officers and men.

ARBUCKLE WITNESS APPEARS

Dr. Beardslee Says Girl's Injuries on "Day After" Overshadowed Alcoholism

By Associated Press.

San Francisco, Sept. 24.—Virginia Rappe showed symptoms of an internal injury immediately after she was stricken, following the party in Roscoe C. ("Fatty") Arbuckle's rooms, and whatever evidence there may have been of alcoholism was overshadowed by her injuries, declared Dr. Arthur Beardslee, house physician of the Hotel St. Francis, in a statement to Assistant District Attorney Milton U'Ren today.

Dr. Beardslee treated Miss Rappe in the early stages of her illness.

Dr. Beardslee returned today from a hunting trip on which he started the day after the Arbuckle affair. After questioning the physician, U'Ren stated that his explanation of his recent absence and his statement of treating Miss Rappe was "entirely satisfactory" and that he was exonerated of all blame for his absence.

Dr. Beardslee said that on the morning of September 4, after examining Miss Rappe, he believed she was injured. He was relieved of the case that morning by Dr. E. M. Rumwell, he declared and did not treat the actress again.

Arbuckle Hearing Starts on Third Day

By Associated Press.

San Francisco, Sept. 24.—The preliminary hearing of Roscoe C. (Fatty) Arbuckle on a charge of murder, in connection with the death of Miss Virginia Rappe, entered its third day in the police court of Judge Sylvain J. Lazarus here today, with the prosecution still presenting its case against the film star.

Al Semnacher, business manager for Miss Rappe and guest at Arbuckle's party at the Hotel St. Francis, at which the girl is said to have suffered fatal injury, was the principal witness at yesterday's court session. He had not concluded his testimony when the court adjourned for the day.

The party, Semnacher testified, was by no means a dull affair. There was much liquor, many women and considerable music from a phonograph rented by Arbuckle for his stay in San Francisco.

Semnacher, while not absolutely sure, said that to the best of his recollection the pajama-clad celebrants at the party did some dancing.

Semnacher said that Arbuckle, Lowell, Sherman and Mrs. Bambina Maude Delmont received guests at the affair while attired in pajamas and declared considerable liquor was drunk by the participants. Mrs. Delmont swore out the complaint charging murder.

The hearing today was scheduled to begin at 10:30 a. m.

Drugs Fanned the Flame of Mrs. Lawes' Jealousy and as a Result One Is Dead and Another Dying.

MRS. GRACE LAWES AND MILDRED HANAN

Maddened by drugs and the thought that the man who had won her love was leaving her, Mrs. Lawes (at left) shot Mildred Hanan, an heiress, and ended her own life. Some time before her death she declared she was a "fiend" and said that she was being driven insane by liquor and high life in New York city.

HIGH LIFE MADE MRS. LAWES INSANE

"Driving Me Crazy," She Wrote Before Shooting of Mildred Hanan

New York, Sept. 24.—Three bottles in room No. 1411, of the Vanderbilt Hotel, epitomized more eloquently than words the tragedy of Grace Lawes and Mildred Hanan, the former dead by her own hand after she had probably fatally shot the latter. The bottles in room 1411, which was occupied by Mrs. Lawes up to the night of the double shooting, contained:

Scotch Whiskey.
Rye Whiskey.
Bacardi Rum.

And if more conclusive evidence were required to sum up the story—

Thirty grains of morphine were found in the hand bag of the crazed woman, where it fell beside her as she killed herself after firing three bullets into her former friend.

By Associated Press.

New York, Sept. 24.—Miss Mildred Hanan, daughter of the late Alfred P. Hanan, shoe manufacturer, who was shot early yesterday by Mrs. Grace Lawes, her former chum, was reported by surgeons today to be sinking rapidly.

Peritonitis was said to have set in as a result of one of the three wounds inflicted as she was leaving the apartment of a friend in Brooklyn with John G. Borland.

The motive—or motives—back of the shooting remained somewhat clouded in mystery. The theory of jealousy because of Borland's attentions to Miss Hanan, advanced by the police, was repudiated by Borland, by Miss Hanan and by Mrs. Lawes' sister, Mrs. M. B. Dittman, also San Francisco. They expressed the belief that she had been temporarily deranged by use of drugs and liquor.

Mrs. Lawes blamed "high life" and

$4,100 STOLEN BY BANDITS AT CONCORD, N.H.

Concord, N. H., Sept. 24.—Armed bandits raided the American Express office here shortly after midnight and escaped with $4,100. They forced the night watchman to open the safe.

They sped away in an automobile and search of the countryside by police and sheriffs has failed to reveal any trace of them.

John Chamberlain, the night watchman, was so terrified by his experience that he has been of little assistance, being unable to furnish good descriptions.

Police believe the raid was made by men acquainted with the office, as it was timed just after the arrival of the payroll money of a factory.

Two of the men entered the office just after Chamberlain went to bed, according to his story, a third man remained outside in the car, with the engine running. The robbers worked by flashlight, and Chamberlain's impression is that the two inside wore overalls. He opened the safe when a revolver muzzle was held to his head.

The money was in bills, contained in packages.

BERLIN BLUEBEARD MAY HAVE SLAIN 30 WOMEN

Berlin, Sept. 24.—Although Karl Grossman, modern Bluebeard and supercriminal, is thought to have killed from twenty to thirty women, the officials of the prosecuting attorney's staff believed today they could not fix more than three murders upon him, and possibly six at the most.

Grossman was turned over to the prosecuting attorney by the police yesterday and was questioned at length both on Friday and today.

'I HAVE BEEN A FIEND,' DECLARED WOMAN WHO SHOT MISS HANAN

CRAZED BY DRINK AND HIGH LIFE

liquor, which she said was "driving her crazy," to a letter to Miss Billie Williams, a friend, which was found in her handbag. But the letter hinted at a "truth" back of these causes.

Miss Hanan admitted she had quarreled recently with Mrs. Lawes, though she did not give the cause of the quarrel. She said the quarrel had resulted in Mrs Lawes leaving the Hanan apartment, where she had lived.

And Miss Dorothy Gottschalk, before whose home the shooting occurred, told of a dinner with Mrs. Lawes the evening preceding the tragedy, at which Mrs. Lawes declared, "Every time I have had anything sweet in life it has been taken away from me." Then she cried:

"I have been a fiend, a fiend."

Miss Gottschalk said Mrs. Lawes denied, however, that she was in love with Borland, or jealous of his attentions to Miss Hanan.

Mrs. Lawes Took Drug Before Firing Shots

New York, Sept. 24—Mrs Grace Lawes, of San Francisco, was maddened by drugs, to which she was addicted, when she shot Miss Mildred Hanan, heiress and society woman, and then killed herself.

The police who are working on the tragedy in an effort to clear up all the details today declared they believed that not until she had crushed a phial of morphine did Mrs. Lawes summon the nerve required to do the deed. The phial, cracked, but still containing a few drops of the drug solution, was found on the sidewalk near where the woman stood, while waiting for her victim.

Details of a gay party which preceded the shooting were made public by the police today.

The party was held Thursday night at the Hanan apartment, and while it was at its height a taxi drew up to the house. In it was Mrs. Lawes. She did not get out.

Sharing honors at the party was John S. Borland, Dartmouth graduate and wealthy importer. Borland had once been a friend, if not more, of the woman outside the Hanan home in the taxicab waiting for the gay party to end.

Now he was the friend, if not more, of the girl in whose home he was the guest of honor at this gay party on Thursday night.

PARTY FINALLY ENDS.

The party finally did end and the woman sitting in the taxicab with a pistol in her hand, she was seen there by passersby, made ready to act.

Another car drove up to the curb in front of the Hanan home and Miss Hanan, Borland and a guest, Miss Dorothy Gottschalk, of Brooklyn, came out and entered it. Miss Hanan had offered to drive Miss Gottschalk to her apartment in Brooklyn and Borland was accompanying them.

As the Hanan machine sped away the taxicab followed.

The Hanan car stopped at the apartment house, but the taxi kept on strolling the block. Mildred Hanan alighted with Dorothy Gottschalk and Borland. Soon after Mrs. Lawes walked up the street and turned into the apartment areaway.

No electric light was near and a row of shrubs hid her from sight. She drew a phial of morphine from a handbag and drained it. The broken phial was found in the street afterwards.

WAITED OVER AN HOUR.

An hour and a half she waited there. Then came sounds of the party breaking up. Borland and Miss Hanan emerged to the street, just as the automatic in Mrs. Lawes' hand flashed. Miss Hanan screamed as the bullet tore through her arm, she screamed again as another struck her left hand, breaking her finger. Once more the pistol cracked and this time the heiress collapsed with a bullet through her lungs.

"I got you," screamed Mrs. Lawes. Then she put the weapon into her own mouth and pulled the trigger.

Miss Hanan was placed on an operating table a short time afterward and the bullet removed. A blood transfusion also helped, but physicians emphasized the gravity of her condition.

MAY SHIELD OTHERS.

How far the ramifications of the sordid situation extend can only be conjectured, but there is ample evidence that indications of prominent persons will be drawn into the tragedy before the affair blows over.

That Mrs. Lawes deliberately planned to slay Miss Hanan and then kill herself is the obvious conclusion based on letters she wrote just before she fired the shots. These were left with instructions that they be mailed after her death.

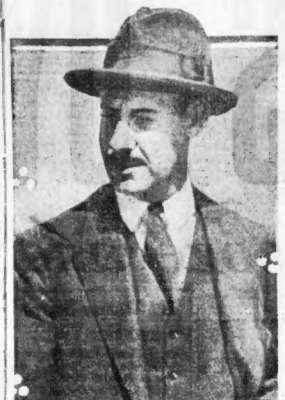
That she was jealous of Borland's attentions to Miss Hanan is also suggested by Miss Gottschalk, the companion of both women.

That this divorce was also the victim of drugs and alcohol, which had unbalanced her mentality, was proven by the examining physicians.

Mrs. Lawes, herself, in one of her letters, summed it all up as another illustration of the price women pay for "travelling the pace that kills."

For months the ghastly evidence gathered by the police showed this thing had been festering and spreading out only when the divorcee, fighting to retain her youth, found herself outdistanced by the younger flapper set.

J. S. BORLAND, "THE MAN" IN HANAN SHOOTING CASE



JOHN S. BORLAND
New Yorker who was with Mildred Hanan when she was shot declares he was in no way responsible for the tragedy.

Mrs. Grace Lawes, who ended her life after shooting Miss Hanan, believed she was losing the affection of the New York importer, her mind having been affected by the use of drugs and jealousy of Miss Hanan.

Mrs. Lawes Driven Mad When Miss Hanan 'Won' Importer

Drinking a Great Deal Since Quarrel, She Declared "The Worm Will Turn"

By ANNE DUNLAP

Miss Dorothy Gottschalk, in front of whose home at No. 35 Schermerhorn street, Brooklyn, Miss Mildred Hanan was shot, was greatly upset over the tragedy. She believes it must have been the plan of a mind crazed by jealousy. Miss Gottschalk said:

"It was I who introduced Grace Lawes to Jack Borland, and she in turn introduced him to Mildred. He seemed to like Grace; that is, he was pleasant to her. But further than that I could see nothing in his manner to lead Grace to think there was more.

"On the other hand, as soon as he was introduced to Mildred he appeared to be very interested and delighted. Almost at once Grace observed this, and her friendship for Mildred was at an end.

FACE WAS COLD

"I have known Grace Lawes for a long time. I met her here at the Hanan home. She seemed to be connected there in some way. I never knew just how. But she was the sort of woman one never knows very well. She was beautiful, had with titian hair and remarkable eyes. But I think her face was the coldest I ever saw.

"I could not tell about her age. She was not young, but she was always beautifully dressed, her wonderful hair always beautifully arranged, and I could never guess at her years.

"There was no doubt that Mrs. Lawes was a woman of great culture and refinement. Yet, she was married and divorced, I believe. But I don't know anything about that part of her life.

"I know Grace was terribly upset over her quarrel with Mildred. Night before last she asked me to dine with her. We went to a restaurant. No, I will not say where. I called up Mildred before I went and told her about it. Mildred asked me to try to find out what was troubling Grace.

DRINKING HEAVILY

"There is no doubt Grace had been drinking a great deal since her quarrel with Mildred. She grew hysterical, wept, and said bitterly: 'The worm will turn.' I don't know what she meant.

Then, softening, she began to talk about the complete part of her life, and said, 'Every time there has been anything sweet in my life it has been taken away from me.' She said she couldn't stand it any longer.

"I tried to calm her and reason with her, and demanded, 'Grace, you must put all this out of your mind. Be a woman, now. You must. This is not worthy of you.'"

But, Miss Gottschalk said, Mrs. Lawes was filled with self-pity and insisted:

"I have been a fiend, a fiend! I have done things you would never dream I could do."

ON WATCH FOR WEEKS

Miss Gottschalk, a quiet, businesslike woman with blond hair and slightly upturned nose, was visibly affected as she recounted her interview with Mrs. Lawes. Her voice is attractive [illegible] manner and appearance. She is probably thirty [illegible] short, but rather [illegible] times I saw [illegible] rumpled up, dead, outside the door of this house. She had been watching outside the Hanan apartment in Park avenue for weeks, I am told. But I have no idea where she was before she did this terrible thing.

"We were at Mildred's home for dinner. Her mother was there, Mildred, Mr. Borland and I. We dined rather late, and it was after eleven, I suppose, when we left the apartment. Mildred and Mr. Borland drove me home in Mildred's car. When we reached here they came in my apartment, but only for a very short time. She did not even take off her hat and gloves.

"I remembered we talked about Italy. I had been there and so had Mr. Borland. I showed him an Italian table cover and some china I had brought home.

SAW CRUMPLED FORM

"Then they left. I remained up here. I heard the shot and rushed downstairs. I saw Grace crumpled up on the pavement. I thought it was Mildred. After that I do not remember things, only impressions.

"I seem to have heard Jack say that it wasn't Mildred lying there, but Grace; that Mildred had run down the street and wasn't hurt, except for her little finger. I did not faint, but everything swam before me and I was gone for a moment.

Miss Gottschalk's apartment is on the second floor, back, of a converted brownstone house. It is attractive, but small, conservatively and tastefully furnished.

She holds a responsible position, but insisted that she would not drag her business connection into the story. She talked with great reluctance, repeating again and again that everything she could tell she preferred to have come from the Hanans.

"Mrs. Lawes was in love with Mr. Borland?" Miss Gottschalk was asked. She replied:

"I asked her and she denied it. But immediately she was complaining again of the futility of her life and the impossibility of her keeping any happiness. I think she must have been. He is a very attractive man, cultured, educated, handsome and with money enough.

NEVER MADE LOVE

"I have felt dreadfully sorry for Jack Borland. He has been here a few times since today. He feels that this is all his fault, though goodness knows how he could have stopped it. I'm sure he never led her to think he loved her."

It was disclosed that Mrs Lawes, who lived at the Hotel Vanderbilt, had been [illegible] Borland's apartment, No. 1[illegible] West Fourth street, at late hours from the hotel, but gave took the [illegible] herself.

A young woman who was with Miss Gottschalk, but who declined to give her name, said:

"That woman was crazy with jealousy. She admitted to me that she had been drunk for a week on drugs and liquor and that she was desperate. She was much older than he (Borland) and had let herself down about as far as any woman could."

'NO JEALOUSY OF ME,' DECLARES BORLAND

Importer in Hanan Tragedy Declares He Is Not Cause of Shooting

New York, Sept. 24.—Haggard and worn after hours of cross-examination by the police, John S. Borland, who supplies the masculine element in the Lawes-Hanan tragedy, asserted vehemently that he was not responsible, directly or indirectly, for any of the developments that led to the double shooting.

He was packing his possessions in his apartment at No. 132 West Fourth street when he told a reporter:

"There was no jealousy in this thing—certainly no jealousy of me."

The young importer has been a familiar figure in Greenwich Village life. Habitues of the Bohemian resorts of that community said that Mrs. Lawes had been a frequenter of the village also recently and had been seen more than once in the importer's company.

"NEVER ENGAGED."

He admitted that he had taken both women out at different times, but insisted that there was nothing serious in the affairs and that he had never been engaged to either woman.

But whether he thought so or not every evidence was plain that Mrs. Lawes took the affair with fatal seriousness. It was through Miss Dorothy Gottschalk, the vivacious business girl who figured in the tragic party preceding the shooting, that the two divorcees and the man were brought together.

Mrs. Lawes lived with her kin, the Hanans, for a while this year, then took an apartment in the Hotel Vanderbilt, where once she and the Hanans had lived together. When the Hanans went to Shoreham, their Long Island home, Mrs. Lawes accompanied them. Three months ago Miss Gottschalk introduced Borland to Mrs. Lawes at a restaurant. After that the two were frequently together. The young importer admitted that much.

INTEREST SHIFTED.

Then Mrs. Lawes introduced him to Miss Hanan, and in the company of the younger divorcee the interest of Borland in the older woman diminished perceptibly. Of the latter he said:

"I have not seen her in two months. But you must understand that I was fond of Miss Hanan only as a friend."

Soon after the friendship between the three assumed triangular proportions Mrs. Lawes and Miss Hanan met in a restaurant on Fourth avenue street. A quarrel developed almost immediately which observers expected to flare into physical conflict at any moment. Rumor had it that a man was obviously the cause of the quarrel, and Borland's name, it is said, was mentioned in the heat of the dispute.

Just as the situation was spreading disorder through the entire restaurant, Mrs. Lawes was persuaded to leave the place and was escorted to a taxicab.

Soon after this, Borland told detectives who questioned him, Miss Hanan began to receive threatening letters. She believed Mrs. Lawes was the writer. The exact nature of this correspondence has not been revealed. Miss Hanan made a complaint to a patrolman on post near her home last month about the letters and mentioned Mrs. Lawes as the person she feared.

Despite this ominous situation, the heiress and the importer continued their friendship, which developed steadily, and Mrs. Lawes continued to worry [illegible] about them, drinking heavily and steeping herself in drugs until the pistol capped the climax of the story.

Walter Dunnington, the attorney whom Mrs. Lawes mentioned in one of her letters, said that he knew her only slightly. He said he understood that Col. D. L. and Peter Dow, brother and sister, of Mildred's stepmother, Mrs. Ethel Hanan.

He could not know nothing of Borland, he said. Captain Taylor and his wife, who have been friends of Miss Hanan, went to Europe last year. The bride gave a power of attorney to Mrs. Lawes, he said, to [illegible] to dispose of certain personal property. Mr. Dunnington represents Mrs. Taylor's interest in the Hanan estate, which is now in litigation.

RECORD SET IN INDICTING DRUG VIOLATORS

U. S. Grand Jury Returns Nearly Score of True Bills Against Boston Men

Almost a score of drug peddlers or persons aiding and abetting in the sale of narcotics headed the list of thirty-three true bills which were returned by the Federal Grand Jury in its partial report to Judge Morton yesterday. This is the largest number of narcotic indictments ever returned at one time and regarded by some as one of the results of prohibition. All of the narcotic indictments were returned against men who live in various parts of Boston.

Abraham Haspany of Tremont street, who pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with both selling and possessing narcotics, was sentenced to thirty days in the Plymouth House of Correction by Judge Morton. According to Assistant United States Attorney Keith, the defendant admitted being a drug addict. Judge Morton when informed of this fact told Haspany that he wished he could send him to a hospital for treatment, but the law did not allow that.

INDICTED AS COUNTERFEITER.

Among those indicted was John Devoy of Syracuse, against whom a true bill was returned charging him with passing and having in his possession counterfeit coins. Secret service agents stated that the half dollar counterfeits alleged to have been put into circulation by the defendant were the most perfect counterfeits detected in many years. Devoy was recently taken into custody in Chicago by the local police and turned over to the Federal authorities.

The defendant is said to have had his plant in his home, his method, according to the Federal authorities, consisting of covering over brass coins with nitrate of silver. These coins are said to have had a "true" ring and about the average weight of a genuine half dollar. He pleaded not guilty to the indictment and was held for trial.

GLOUCESTER TRIO NAMED.

Among the indictments returned, which covered various violations of the Federal law, was a true bill found against Ralph R. Smith, of Gloucester, formerly purchasing agent for a large Gloucester fish concern, who was indicted with three others on the charge of smuggling liquor into the United States. The other defendants indicted with Smith are John Powers, Frank Favaloro and Frank T. Favaloro. It is alleged by the government that the liquor in question was landed from a fishing vessel and later detected by the police.

N. E. WOMEN PAY VISIT TO PLYMOUTH

Members of the National Society of New England Women visited Plymouth today as guests of the Boston colony, following the closing of the annual congress. Mrs. Francis E. Smith was elected president-general of the organization. The other officers chosen are: Mrs. Charles E. Crouse of Syracuse, N. Y., second vice president-general; Mrs. William S. Sanborn of Montclair, N. J., recording secretary-general, and Mrs. Thomas D. Watkins of Utica, N. Y., treasurer-general.

FIN. COM. WANTS TO KNOW ABOUT STREET MONEY

Expenditure of an additional $200,000 for street construction as approved by Mayor Peters is opposed by the Finance Committee in a statement sent to the City Council. Until the street commissioners department specifies the streets to be built and the estimated cost, Bookkeeping methods in the street department were scored for not making it clear how the $800,000 raised by a loan last April for street construction, had been expended.

SUFFRAGE STATUE EMERGES FROM DARK

Washington, Sept. 24.—Officers of the National Woman's Party have won a partial victory in their fight to have the party's suffrage statue placed in Statuary Hall at the Capitol.

The statue, a marble image of the three equal suffrage pioneers—Susan B. Anthony, Elizabeth Cady Stanton and Lucretia Mott—has reposed for a number of months in a obscure corner of the Capitol basement. The woman's party officers, however, have had it removed to the centre of the Capitol dome on the lower floor.

MARRIAGE FOLLOWS CAPE COD WAR ROMANCE

A war time romance was revealed today when Mr. and Mrs. Edmond G. Jerauld of Chatham announced the marriage of their daughter, Miss Madeleine Jerauld, to Benjamin Franklin Orser, Jr., of Minneapolis. The ceremony was performed Wednesday at Chatham. During the World War Mr. Orser was stationed at the Naval Air Station in that town. At the close of a wedding trip Mr. and Mrs Orser will make their home in Minneapolis.

SAYS NO NATION WILL GIVE UP POISON GAS

German Expert Declares French Police Were First to Use It in Fighting

Special Correspondence of the International News Service and the London Daily Express.

Berlin, Sept. 24. — No nation is ready to abandon poison gas as a war weapon, according to an exclusive statement obtained today from Professor Fritz Haber, inventor of the Oppau hydrogen extraction process and developer of poison gas used in the World War.

"No nation," Professor Haber said, "will renounce the use of deadly gas in warfare, because the possibilities of further mechanical developments for making slaughter on a wholesale plan are almost exhausted, while there are still many new chemical possibilities for creating widespread death."

Professor Haber is stout, fair of complexion and in his early forties. The walls of his laboratory are adorned with pictures of the first battle of Ypres, showing Canadian soldiers routed by gas the first time it was successfully used in war.

"Poison gas was first used against human beings by the French police in fighting the notorious Bonnot gang of Apaches, who had headquarters at Choisy-le-Roi," said Haber. "At the beginning of the World War, the press was filled with reports of remarkable results obtained by the French engineer named Turpin, in developing deadly gas, German military authorities were most nervous.

"The first month of the war both the Germans and the French used gas, but it hadn't any noticeable effect upon the opposing troops.

"I suggested that poison gas be used in great volume; otherwise it was valueless. Germany had gas enough for firing gas projectiles, and so therefore relied upon nature and used the wind. I had the privilege of difficulty in inducing the general staff to adopt my plan.

"Had the German general staff prepared a gas attack on a very large scale, instead of experimenting as at Ypres, Germany would have won the war. As it was, the allies, being forewarned by poison gas possibilities in the Ypres defeat, were enabled to take counter measures."

AUTOPSY TO BE MADE IN STRANGE DEATH CASE

Winchendon, Sept. 24.—An autopsy will be performed on the body of Karle Nelson Stone, who died at Miller's River Hospital of an illness which physicians were unable to diagnose. They refuse to discuss the case pending the autopsy. Stone was a sophomore at Murdock High School,

CAMBRIDGE GIRL FIGHTS BURGLAR IN HER ROOM

Child Screams and Passerby Sounds Alarm for the Fire Department

Margaret Ford, eight-year-old daughter of Mrs. Mary Ford of No. 996 Cambridge street, Cambridge, fought a burglar trying to enter her bedroom early today, and finally put him to flight by her screams.

The child was awakened by the man's efforts to climb through a window. She arose and proceeded to beat him. He struck her and she fell to the floor screaming and crying for help.

The girl's cries drove the intruder away and a passerby, hearing the child's screams, thought there was a fire and pulled in an alarm. The fire apparatus and the police arrived about the same time, and by this time the neighborhood had been aroused from slumber.

The police started a search for the man. He was described as being about twenty-five years old, five feet eight inches tall and wearing a dark suit and checkered cap.

OWNER WANTS RENT TENANT SAYS IS PAID

Elisabeth F. Rogers, owner of an apartment house at No. 784 Beacon street, who brought a bill in equity a few months ago to restrain a tenant, Mrs. Eva F. Emery, from playing a piano at unreasonable hours, has filed a new bill against Mrs. Emery to recover $60 as rent for the month of August. Mrs. Emery in an answer to the suit declares that the rent has been paid in full. She has moved from the apartment house owned by Mrs. Rogers.

MISS WILLIAMS BRIDE OF L. MANLIUS SARGENT

A very pretty church wedding took place at noon today when Miss Elinor beth Bradlee Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lombard Williams of High street, Dedham, was married to L. Manlius Sargent, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sullivan A. Sargent of Brookline. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Francis Lee Whittemore, rector, in St. Paul's Church, Dedham.

DEDHAM GETS SUNDAY TRAINS AFTER 4 YEARS

Dedham commuters for the first time in four years will enjoy Sunday train service tomorrow. Although there has been great demand for trains, it was not until the new members of the Board of Selectmen, William P. Browne, Charles Hurley and John K. Burgess were elected, that officials of the road decided to restore the trains.

MYSTERY ABOUT WOMAN NAMED IN BANK CASE

Maine Examiners Say Miss Mackey Got None of Alleged Big Shortage

Camden, Me., Sept. 24.—Federal and State officials were today investigating the connection between Miss Ella M. Mackey, bookkeeper at the Megunticook National bank, and the alleged looting of that bank to the tune of $387,000 by Robert Bean, cashier.

Miss Mackey, to the astonishment of all her acquaintances here, was secretly indicted along with Bean, the charge being aiding and abetting in the defalcation.

She did not profit by a single penny through her part in the transactions, bank examiners admit.

The theory that she acted with Bean because she loved him has some advocates here, while others maintain that the idea is ridiculous.

WOMAN NOT IN COUT.

Miss Mackey is thirty-five years old, good looking and prominent in various social circles here.

One theory advanced by friends is that she was under the dominance of Bean's will without being in love with him and believed implicitly that he was going to return the money he was taking.

While Bean has already been arraigned in the General Court at Portland, Miss Mackey has not yet been brought into court and there is no indication that she will be.

Bean is reported as devoted to his wife and his two children and his friends say that any romantic attachment between him and his bookkeeper is incredible.

The bank cashier pleaded not guilty when arraigned in Portland and was released on $10,000 bail.

Bean's downfall brought to light a dramatic story of his efforts to duplicate the work of his forefathers, famous along the coast as shipbuilders. When the era of wooden ships ended, Bean shipyard became alive again. He turned out wooden ships rapidly, but he had used them not too long, for when the war suddenly ended and wooden ships became a drug on the market, he was caught with many on his hands.

It was then, bank examiners believe, that he began "borrowing" from the bank to meet his personal indigation.

The method used, according to the examiners, was the simple one of taking money from the cash and falsifying the records so they agreed. It was also stated depositors would lose nothing by the alleged defalcation.

Mrs. Bean was prostrated when she learned of the alleged illegal business methods and joined with her husband in transferring their individual title in their joint real estate holdings, her own property and everything of value they owned.

Indications of irregularities led to a special examination by National Bank Examiner T. J. Augusta, after which Bean resigned on January 20.

ARRIED $118,000 IN NOTES.

It was found that the bank was carrying Bean's notes for $118,000, nearly twenty times the amount the bank was authorized to loan any one borrower, and that he had managed to conceal his transactions from the directors, whose knowledge of the details of his management of the bank's affairs was said to have been meagre.

The adjustment of the bank's business was accomplished with the aid of Daniel C. Mullowney, chief of the national bank examiner for New England.

Miss Mackey, whose duties also included those of assistant cashier, is alleged to have told friends that she had some knowledge of the transactions, but said her confidence in Bean was so great that she made no financial benefit from them.

The bank's stock was held in small blocks for the most part, and all was lost. Dividends had been paid at irregular intervals, but the bank was regarded as sound. The directors were C. T. Hodgman, president; Frank Babb, former president; C. P. Brown, L. M. Chandler and J. W. Ingraham of Camden.

EAST BOSTON DENIED CUBIC GAS PRICE

The State Department of Public Utilities today denied the petition of East Boston citizens, asking for a reduction in the price of gas distributed by the East Boston Gas Company. The petition pointed out that the gas company is now charging $1.35 per 1,000 cubic feet for gas, and that coal, labor and material has dropped until, in the opinion of the petitioners, $1.15 would be a fair price to charge. It was also stated in the petition that the East Boston Gas Company has just entered into a contract with the Boston Consolidated Gas Company whereby it is enabled to buy gas for 80 cents instead of the former 90 cents per 1,000 cubic feet. The Commission, however, found that these circumstances did not warrant a cut in price at this time.

WOODSIDE AGAIN HEADS FOREIGN WARS VETERANS

Detroit, Sept. 24.—Captain Robert O. Woodside of Pittsburgh was today re-elected national commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars in convention here. He was elected by a vote of 328 to 313, defeating Colonel Huston of New York, owner of the New York Americans.

GOVERNOR COX GOES TO CAPE COD HOME

Governor Channing H. Cox, who has been suffering from an attack of indigestion, was reported much better today, and left for his Summer home at Wellfleet, Cape Cod, where he will remain until Monday morning.

BERNHARDT CALLS CHARLIE CHAPLIN'S HIGH ART VIEWS 'ABSURD'

SARAH IS BORED BY MOVIES

By MADAME SARAH BERNHARDT.
Special Cable Dispatch to Universal Service.

Paris, Sept. 24.—Mr. Chaplin's statement to interviewers that "my work is more important than Hamlet," is an absurd exaggeration. Undoubtedly, however, when he said it, he was merely living up to his reputation as a clown.

I never go to the movies, for I never have time. Therefore, I have never seen Mr. Chaplin on the screen, but I do not contest the fact that he has a certain art, and that his success is merited. His art, however, is vastly inferior to the theatre.

I can understand and sympathize with the films when they seek to instruct or simply amuse, but when their producers go further they merely succeed in making themselves ridiculous.

What is really fine on the stage is the fact that great actors try every day to inject new life into a role and vary their attitude. This is impossible in the movies.

Summing up, the movies should be content in their own hard-fought sphere, which is the presentation on the screen of scenery and exploits which are impossible on the stage.

But let them stop trying to rival the stage. Many think that if the "movies" talked it would be better than the stage but I insisted at such an affair once and found it horrible.

PROVIDENCE VICTIM OF DOG HAS RABIES

Providence, Sept. 24.—James McCahey of No. 136 Crescent street, Auburn, R. I., who was bitten by a dog in August 10, is at the City Hospital suffering from rabies. The dog ran amuck on Elmwood avenue and bit several persons before he was shot by the police. Others took the Pasteur treatment, but McCahey disregard wounds on his neck other than to have them cauterized.

BELMONT MAN FOUND DEAD BY HANGING

The body of William Adams, a retired grocer about 60 years old, was found hanging to a door of his home on Ventra avenue, Belmont, when the police broke into the place. Brooding over the condition of his wife is believed to have led him to take his life. Mrs. Adams is a patient in the Arlington Hospital.

PRICE OF MILK NOT COMING DOWN

The wholesale price of milk from the producers will remain the same, according to sentiment expressed at the regular meeting of the New England Milk Producers' Association on Cornhill. It is stated New England farmers and dairymen feel that nothing has occurred which would make it possible for them to sell milk more cheaply.

SKULL FRACTURED IN TUNNEL ACCIDENT

Edmund Daly, an inspector in the "rapid transit" division of the Boston Elevated Railway, is at the City Hospital today with a fracture of the skull and minor injuries received when struck by a car in the Cambridge Dorchester tunnel at Andrew square station, South Boston, last night. He was crossing the tracks when the accident happened.

SOMERVILLE WOMAN IS SUICIDE BY GAS

Mrs. Susan Phelps, sixty-three years old, committed suicide by inhaling gas at her home, No. 19 Lincoln avenue, Somerville. She was said to have been despondent over the death of her daughter three years ago. The body was discovered by her husband, Charles A. Phelps, on his return from night work in Boston.

Wounded War Hero and California Girl Whom He Is to Marry

MARION J. SCHAEFER AND JOHN A. DICKERMAN

VETERAN TO WED GIRL HE MET IN HOSPITAL

A romance which started two years ago when the groom-to-be was a patient in the Walter Reed Hospital at Washington, D. C., where he was recovering from 46 wounds received in action in the World War, will result in a wedding in Somerville on October 18, when Miss Marion J. Schaefer of California will become the bride of Sergeant John A. Dickerman of Somerville.

The bride-to-be was employed in the offices of the Navy Department at Washington during the World War, and during her spare time on Saturdays and Sundays visited the Walter Reed Hospital and took "goodies" to the soldier lads. It was in this way she met Sergeant Dickerman, who was convalescent from wounds received during his year's service overseas. Sergeant Dickerman was in the Washington Hospital a year during 1919.

While overseas he served with Headquarters Company of the 104th Infantry in the Yankee Division. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Dickerman of No. 329 Highland avenue, West Somerville, and was born in Cambridge and educated in the schools of Somerville.

The bride-to-be is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Schaefer of Visalia, Cal. Dickerman is a member of the George Dilboy Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, the Somerville Post, No. 19, of the American Legion and the Somerville Lodge of Elks. The young couple plan to live in West Somerville after the wedding.

STRANGULATION CAUSED DEATH OF BRIDE

Autopsy on Body of Mrs. Kettelle Reveals No Water in Dead Girl's Lungs

Stafford Springs, Ct., Sept. 24.—Mrs. Norah Johnson Kettelle, Radcliffe College girl bride of three days, died from strangulation and not from drowning in Lake Mashapaug, where her body was found on Tuesday last after a search of nine days.

The evidence which points to this conclusion also indicates that the Cambridge girl choked herself to death with the anchor rope which was found doubled and around her neck when the body was recovered.

Medical Examiner Bard, however, would not further discuss the findings of the autopsy made by him on the body yesterday. Today he makes his formal report to Coroner Fahey who will hold an inquest at Rockville on Monday.

LUNGS FREE OF WATER.

The lungs of the dead girl contained no water when the body was recovered, it was reported.

There is said to have been air in the lungs when the autopsy was performed by Dr. Bard. A slight abrasion appeared over an eye, and on the neck was the indentation caused by the taut mooring of the rope.

John D. Kettelle of Cambridge, the young Harvard graduate widower, has been called for the inquest on Monday.

That Mrs. Kettelle could have tied the knots of the rope so tightly enough to shut off air from her lungs and practically at the same time have entered the water is believed to have been possible. The weight of the anchor, a round block of iron, seemingly could have rendered the strangulation complete when the slack of the rope was taken up.

METHOD A PUZZLE.

Exactly how Mrs. Kettelle could have carried the deliberate and time-taking details of such an unusual suicide has aroused many varying opinions.

The head-down position of the body when it was found indicates that Mrs. Kettelle had tossed the anchor overboard and, been dragged down by its weight. Whether she jumped simultaneously or allowed herself to slip over the side of the boat thus far is another matter of conjecture.

BOSTON NEWSPAPER WORKERS MARRIED

Joseph D. Hurley and Miss Margaret A. Strickland, employes of a Boston newspaper, were married today in St. Edward's Church, Medfield. A wedding breakfast in Dedham Inn followed. The bride is a daughter of Mrs. Alice C. Strickland of No. 11 Queensberry street, Back Bay, and the groom a son of Mrs. Catherine E. Hurley of No. 522 East Fifth street, South Boston.

SPANIARDS ADVANCE AGAINST MOROCCANS

Madrid, Sept. 24.—Spanish forces engaged against Moorish tribesmen southwest of Melilla have begun a new advance, it is officially announced here. Columns advanced from Zoco El Arbaa and Nador, and gained considerable ground. There was a rumor in the Bourse that Seluan had been recaptured from the Moroccans.

HALF BILLION FOR IDLE IN BRITAIN

London, Sept. 24.—More than half a billion dollars has been expended by the British Government in relieving the unemployed since November 11, 1918, Winston Spencer Churchill, secretary of State for the Colonies, told a delegation which visited him. This expenditure, he said, was unparalleled in any country in the world.

RETIRING GREEKS HOLDING DEFENSES

Athens, Sept. 24.—Greek forces which have been withdrawing from the battlefield along the Sakaria River in Asia Minor have begun to occupy defensive positions about 60 kilometers east of Eski-Shehr, it is declared in an official statement issued here. There have been reports that the Greeks might retire further to the west.

AMERICAN RELIEF OPENS WORK AT KAZAN

Moscow, Sept. 24 (By the Associated Press).—The American relief administration today opened its first kitchen in Kazan, at the confluence of the Volga and Kama rivers, in which 350 child famine sufferers will be fed daily. Two more kitchens will be opened in Kazan before the end of the week.

DINING CAR CREWS TO BE PHYSICALLY FIT

A policy of regular physical examinations for all persons employed in the dining car service has been adopted by the Boston & Albany Railroad. The 116 stewards, cooks, waiters and storeroom employes who are engaged in the handling and preparation of food will be examined three times a year by the road's surgeons. New employes will be subjected to a thorough test.

6,000 BOTTLES OF BEER SEIZED IN WEST END

Police of the Joy street station seized 350 cases and 6,000 bottles of beer from two auto trucks in a garage on Hawkins street, West End, and arrested Raymond Ward and Charles Guzdon, both of Springfield, for violating the prohibition laws. Prohibition agents analyzed the beer and found it to be 4 per cent. of alcohol.

English Girl With $100,000,000 Is World's Richest Bachelor Maid

London Heiress Likes Jazz Dancing and Golf but Detests "Highbrows"

She is pretty, and twenty-two years old and English, and she likes golf and jazz dancing and detests highbrows and "people with a mission," and she is the richest girl in the world.

"She" is Edwina Ashley of London.

The sudden death of her grandfather, Sir Ernest Cassel, financier and philanthropist, has left her sole mistress of a fortune estimated at upward of $100,000,000.

Incidentally, the death of Sir Ernest has wrested the title of "world's wealthiest bachelor maid" from America, after that much-coveted title had been held there for decades.

Helen Frick, Margaret Carnegie and Delphine Dodge, all Americans, have at various times enjoyed the pre-eminence that comes from vast wealth concentrated in the hands of a woman, particularly one young, pretty and unattached.

London's new little Miss Croesus is described as possessed of a low golf score and a high waits record.

She is a leader in the making school of debutantes released upon society since the war.

Her grandfather left her practically his entire fortune, barring some minor bequests to various charities.

FRIEND OF KING EDWARD.

He was, when a younger man, a close friend and financial adviser of the late King Edward and his entree to the court got him the nickname of "Windsor Cassel."

He was found dead in his Park lane mansion, his head bowed on a writing desk, surrounded by the magnificence he had spent his life accumulating.

Miss Edwina's fortune recalls other famous fortunes left in the fair hands of "bachelor girls," and is greater than any of them. Some of the splendid inheritances left for young, unmarried women to play with in the past have been as follows:

Helen C. Frick, $51,000,000.
Margaret Carnegie, the vast fortune of her father, Andrew Carnegie.
Delphine Dodge of Philadelphia, $50,000,000.
Kathleen Stevens of New York, $15,000,000.
Dellora Angell of Chicago, $35,000,000.
Mary Weld of Brookline, $5,000,000.
Helen Frick, daughter of the late Henry Clay Frick, is still unmarried, but was only a few weeks ago reported engaged to a poor but brilliant young American physician. She has devoted much of her time to social, civic and charitable work.

BRIDE OF ENSIGN.

Miss Carnegie, whose fortune, left her by Andrew Carnegie, steel monarch and "Laird of Skibo," has never been computed, married not long ago Ensign Roswell Miller, son of a former railroad official, but nothing like her equal in wealth. Her father made her a gift of his $2,000,000 New York home on her wedding day.

Delphine Dodge was married a year ago to H. R. Cromwell, son of the late Oliver Cromwell of Washington. She is the daughter of the late Horace E. Dodge of Detroit, and will not come into her fortune of $50,000,000 until the death of her mother.

Kate Stevens, nineteen-year-old New York heiress, came into notoriety some months ago by her elopement with and marriage to Richard Fagan, a Dartmouth College student and son of a New York stock broker. She is the daughter of the late C. Amory Stevens of New York. The sudden and romantic marriage and her $15,000,000 did not bring the pretty heiress happiness, for after six weeks she left her boy husband and went to Reno to acquire legal residence and start divorce proceedings. Later they appeared together, and there were reports and denials that the divorce was off.

Miss Dellora Angell of Chicago, only eighteen, and still thinking more of school than matrimony, according to countless newspaper women who have interviewed her, has already begun to receive payments on the $35,000,000 she inherited from the estate of her uncle, the late John W. Gates, famous Wall street plunger.

The entire amount will have been paid over to her by the time she is forty years old, but long before that she will have received enough to make her a very wealthy woman.

MISS WELD ONLY NINETEEN.

Mary Weld, wealthiest girl in New England, is nineteen years old, and was but seventeen when she inherited most of the estate of her father, the late Charles Goddard Weld of Brookline.

It includes a beautiful home in Brookline, another in Newport, a steam yacht which is a floating palace, a stable of thoroughbred horses, loxens of automobiles, besides stocks and bonds and real estate. She is rated one of the soundest fortunes in Massachusetts.

RICHEST GIRLS OF AMERICA

juries received after he was thrown from the seat of a wagon.

The frightened horse was stopped by two policemen.

Hundreds witnessed the wild dash of the horse through the crowded traffic.

The animal became frightened near Bromfield street. Traffic policemen at Mills and School streets tried without success to stop the runaway. On the seat beside the driver was his brother, Constantine.

As the horse sped through Newspaper Row, Patrolmen Whitehead and Collins ran into the street with arms outspread, succeeding in turning the horses to the curbing.

One of the front wheels hit the curb and both wheels then fell from the wagon. Both men on the seat were thrown to the ground. The driver hit on his head, fracturing his skull. He died shortly after being removed to the Relief Hospital.

Constantine Di Mitrakis landed on his hands and feet, near his brother and escaped with slight injuries. The men were on their way to the wholesale market district when the accident occurred.

SHOOTS WOMAN WHEN SUIT IS REPULSED

Providence Man a Suicide After Wounding Wife of Another

Providence, Sept. 24.—Antone Roderick, twenty-eight years old, a chemical factory employe, of John street, shot Mrs. Mary Sousa of No. 73 Cranston street, and then turned the revolver against himself early today.

He is dead and she is at the Rhode Island Hospital on the danger list with a bullet wound in her left arm and another through her right side.

The shooting took place as Mrs. Sousa was on her way to work in a Pawtucket mill, where she has been employed. It occurred No. 271 Benefit street. Roderick stepped from behind a tree and asked her to stop for a moment as he wished to ask her something.

For months the man has been imploring her to run away from her husband, Manuel Sousa, but she had repeatedly refused and asked him to stop his importunities.

When he stopped her today she started to run, but he jumped in front of her, thrust her against the tree, drew his revolver and fired twice. The first bullet went through her left arm and she pulled herself away, but before she could take another step he fired again, the bullet striking her in the right breast.

As she sank to the pavement Roderick ran into the street, turned and walked slowly back to where she was lying. Standing close to her, he fired two shots into his own body. Both of them took effect just over the heart.

He was dead when William A. Curtis of Diamond Hill and John O'Connor of No. 31 East street came hurrying up at the sound of the shooting. They picked up the wounded woman and carried her to the nearby office of Dr. C. J. O'Leary, where she was given first aid treatment and taken to the hospital.

Roderick was single and was employed at the Stamford Chemical Works on South Main street.

PICK COURSE FOR ELIMINATION TRIALS

Gloucester, Sept. 24.—A meeting of the sub-committee of the American Yachtsmen's Race Committee, appointed to exercise direct control over the race elimination race October 12, was held at the Chamber of Commerce today. Captain George S. Peoples, president of the Master Mariners Association, was unanimously chosen chairman, and State Inspector of Fish Arthur L. Millett secretary.

The committee decided that the start of the elimination race would be at the Whistling Buoy off Eastern Point, the course to be about forty miles, with the start at 9 a. m. and a time limit of nine hours.

The rules of the road at sea will govern the contest, and it is necessary, the committee, the committee, more than one race will be sailed to be sure that the best craft is selected.

Contestants will be allowed to use the usual sight seats carried on fishing vessels, including a fisherman's staysail. Vessels will not be allowed to use new sails as the major portion of their canvas. Competing crafts will be inspected by the committee before the race starts.

Crews are not to exceed twenty-five all told, but this number will not include one observer on each craft who will represent the race committee.

The racing and steering of the vessels during the race and the trimming of sails shall be performed entirely and solely by the captain and bonafide fishermen of each craft.

CLOTHIERS TO AID IDLE OF AMERICA

Rochester, N. Y., Sept. 24.—Delegates to the convention of the National Association of Retail Clothiers were leaving Rochester today for their homes following adjournment of the meeting, at which the organization pledged itself to assist in relieving unemployment in America by urging normal consumption and "doing it cheerfully." Julius Morse of Boston was elected to a vice-presidency.

3 MORE INVITED TO JOBLESS CONFERENCE

Washington, Sept. 24.—Secretary of Commerce Hoover today announced that three more invitations to attend Harding's unemployment conference had been accepted. The new members are: Clarence J. Hicks, assistant to the president of the Standard Oil Company; James A. Campbell, president of the Youngstown, O., Sheet and Tube Company, and Charles M. Babcock of St. Paul, highway commissioner of Minnesota.

PARLEY ON SHANTUNG OPPOSED BY CHINESE

Peking, Sept. 24, (by the Associated Press).—Twelve Chinese societies for the study of Pacific problems, organized into the United Pacific Conference Societies," have adopted a resolution advocating refusal by the Chinese government to enter into negotiations concerning Shantung, either in Peking or in Washington, and also requesting the foreign office to issue an official or unofficial statement giving the reasons for its declination.

WIFE, FORGIVEN, GOES HOME TO GET DIVORCE

Husband Who Had Her Arrested as Eloper Thought She Was Reconciled

Lawrence, Sept. 24.—Mme. Anna Gauthier Robin, the young wife of Marcel Robin of Lawrence and Montreal, who had her arrested in New York on the charge of running away with another man, left this city for Montreal today after a brief visit with her husband.

In going she left unsettled the question of whether there was a complete reconciliation in the Robin family.

"I came here to tell him I could never live with him again and was on my way to Canada to get a separation," she told an interviewer.

"Why, she came to my lodging house last night, and we were in complete harmony," said the husband, after seeing his wife off for their home.

Mme. Robin and Monte de Lesseps, Montreal business man, were arrested in New York on complaint of the husband, who alleged they had eloped, taking with them $7,000 in jewelry and thousands in cash.

When they were locked up, however, a temporary reconciliation was fixed up and the complaints were withdrawn.

Robin came back to Lawrence, where he has been for some weeks negotiating the purchase of a hotel. His wife followed him yesterday, De Lesseps having disappeared.

In her interview of yesterday the wife denied that she eloped with De Lesseps; said they occupied different hotels, and she went to New York with him merely to see the city. She was indignant at the report that she had taken money not her own and said her husband's stories to that effect had determined her not to live with him again.

"Never again a Frenchman," said the vivacious Montrealese. Her husband is the son of a French justice living in Paris.

FEAR MISSING WOMAN HAS TAKEN OWN LIFE

Cambridge and metropolitan police are searching for Mrs. Frances De Visano, twenty-one-year-old mother of two children, who disappeared from her home at No. 47 Ninth street, East Cambridge, Friday morning, and from whom a postcard was received by her folks, saying: "Do not look for me. I am going to drown myself." The card was postmarked 3 p. m. Friday at Cambridge. Metropolitan police are watching for her along the Charles River.

CAMBRIDGE BOYS HELD AFTER THEFT OF AUTO

Three boys were arrested in Belmont today on suspicion of being concerned in the theft of the auto of Frank O'Rourke of Green street, Watertown, in Cambridge, last night. They gave their names and addresses as John Tierney, twenty-eight years old, No. 91 Inman street; Thomas C. Davies, nineteen, No. 14 Green street, and Salvatore Caruso, eighteen, No. 4 Inmore court, all of Cambridge. They were turned over to Cambridge police.

HUNGARY WOULD HOLD UP ENTRY TO LEAGUE

Geneva, Sept. 24 (By the Associated Press).—Hungary has asked the assembly of the League of Nations to suspend action on her application for admission to the league until next year, Count Albert Apponyi, the Hungarian delegate to the league, wrote to President Hjalmar Karnebeck of the assembly that, on account of the trouble in Burgenland, where last night, galloped through the business section and then as suddenly disappeared. The silent white figure bore a banner inscribed with a warning to gamblers and moneylenders. A shot was fired at the white horseman, but he escaped apparently uninjured.

KU KLUX STARTS NEW DRIVE IN COLLEGES

Wright Exposes Plan for Junior Klan by Quoting the Society's Literature

In its manifold ramifications the Invisible Empire, Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, has been traced into the colleges and universities of the country. There it seeks to educate the students in the art of Klancraft, and prepare them for membership in the secret or der later on. In today's article former Grand Goblin C. Anderson Wright exposes the plan by quoting the Klan's own literature.

He gives the key to the magic greeting of the Junior order "K-Uno" and reads from the Junior ritual.

(Copyright, 1921, by N. Y. American.)

By C. Anderson Wright, former Grand Goblin, King Kleagle, Ku Klux Klan, and Chief of Staff, Invisible Planet, Knights of the Air.

"K-Uno."

Mystifying, isn't it? Yet has a rythmical ring. What is it, what does it mean?

It is a salutation of the Ku Klux Klan, like"Kotop." The difference is that "Kotop" is the greeting for adult, full-fledged Klansmen, while "K-Uno" is the salutation for the young idea, the rising generation. It is the magic word with which the Kuklux Klan thought to convert the world of youth and make of world the instrument of the invisible empire.

"K-UNO" is explained by the Imperial Wizard and Emperor of the Knights of Ku Klux Klan in a junior ritual, put out for the exclusive consumption of the young. It is entitled "Lessons in the Science and Art of Klankraft."

The description runs as follows: "Imperial Instructions, Document No. 1, Series AD 1918.

OFFICIAL INSTRUCTIONS

"Being official instructions in K-UNO in the border realm of Karacter from the one who traversed the realm of the unknown, wrested the solemn secret from the grasp of night and became the Imperial Master of the great lost mystery words of timely wisdom from the soul of the great Imperial Wizard, who, out of mystic darkness brings light.

"This is the propaganda with which the Ku Klux Klan invaded the colleges and universities of the country, with a view to educating the hundreds of thousands of students in Klanishness, thus preparing them for membership at $10 apiece later on.

Imperial Wizard Simmons explained the plan to me in this way: "I have borrowed the idea from the Gerfin Government, which began to teach militarism and loyalty to their own in the primary schools, carrying the system through the grammar schools, finishing schools and through the period of military training. When a man completed the course he was a regular citizen."

The "donation" or initiation fee for this junior klan was to be only $1 of which a substantial percentage was to go to the Southern Publicity Association owned jointly by Edward Young Clarke and Mrs. Elizabeth Tyler.

The first move in this scheme to organize the young was the purchase of Lanier University at Atlanta for Imperial Wizard Simmons, and to make him president.

ACTIVE AMONG COLLEGES.

This is how they worked on the K-Uno idea, and it was only a few weeks before students everywhere were interested in the mystic word. It had an appeal to their curiosity at an age when curiosity was in its most active form.

K-Uno is only a few months old, having been started last fall, but already it has surpassed all the old-time fraternities, and is going like wildfire.

A special drive was planned for the opening of the colleges this fall.

Professor Simmons has been spending much of his time delivering addresses at the various southern universities. He always insists on being presented to audiences as the Imperial Wizard and Emperor of the Invisible Empire, Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, which in itself is good advertising for the secret order.

Simmons's visits ar ealways followed by suitable literature from the Southern Publication Association dealing with K-UNO.

WOMAN ACCUSED OF CRUELTY TO HORSE

Worcester, Sept. 24.—The case of Mrs. Edith Thayer of Hopkinton, charged with cruelty to animals, was continued until October 3 in the Westboro District Court. It is alleged Mrs. Thayer hired a horse from William H. Brown and drove the animal forty miles and that the horse died the same night.

Paris, France.

THE evening wrap at the left is designed to conceal as bouffant a gown as one may choose to wear beneath it in this season of crinoline silhouettes. Of deep mauve chiffon, it is rendered practical by a lining of cyclamen pink duvetyn and trimmed with flat taffeta roses in a matching shade. After the Autumn mode's smartest manner, this wrap features the uneven hemline.

IN a season of overwhelmingly brilliant color effects, a gracefully draped formal evening gown of silver and white brocade is conspicuous for the quiet luxury of its tissue. Cloth of silver is used for the bodice and the lining of the train, while the softest of silver-mauve colors a velvet rose at the girdle and the fan carried with this gown.

KU KLUX WIZARD SIMMONS HAS LEFT ATLANTA

Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 24.—Colonel William J. Simmons, imperial wizard of the Ku Klux Klan, left Atlanta Friday to be gone for a week. Members of his family and other officials of the Klan refused to state his mission or his destination.

His son stated that Colonel Simmons had left the city. But with the usual secrecy of the order other officials refused to discuss it. It was also impossible to locate Edward Young Clarke, imperial Kleagle, at the Imperial Palace Friday and other officials refused to state whether he had left the city.

A secret meeting of the Atlanta Klan Thursday night called before it Mrs. Elizabeth Tyler, head of the woman's division, who, with Clarke, has been under fire. It was the first time in the history of the order that a woman has ever attended a meeting of the Klan and was done in order that the klansmen might attest their loyalty to her in spite of charges against her.

The Searchlight, semi-official publication of the Klan, in its issue Friday, carried a highly inflammatory editorial calling on patriots to shed their blood in defence of Mrs. Tyler.

RUM VIOLATIONS LAID TO THE KU KLUX

Washington, Sept. 24.—The Invisible Empire of the Ku Klux Klan has capitulated to the government.

In a telegram to Attorney-General Daugherty from Atlanta, Colonel William Simmons, Imperial Wizard and the ruler of the secret empire, invited an investigation of the Klan.

The telegram stated that not only would the Imperial Wizard welcome a Federal inquiry, but that he would co-operate in its prosecution and stood ready to come to Washington at the request of the Attorney-General to answer all charges against the organization.

The Prohibition Bureau has joined in the general Federal investigation of the Klan. The Bureau is looking into the charges that the Ku Klux is defying the prohibition act in the South by intimidating law enforcement officers.

CADILLAC TYPE 61 GIVEN BIG WELCOME

Latest Car Has Improvements in Details and Design That Are Distinctive

The reception of the new Cadillac Type 61 has been tremendous. The local salesrooms at No. 664 Commonwealth avenue have been the scene of an enthusiastic welcome to this latest creation from the Cadillac factory.

Albion L. Danforth, the local manager, was loud in his praises of the new model and stated that a ride in the car was a revelation even to old Cadillac owners.

In appearance and roadability, Type 61 is a distinct advance. Radiator and hood have been increased in size and a free flowing line sweeps from front to rear. The wheels are smaller, and the entire car lower, although practically the same road clearance as that of the previous type is obtained by a slight change in the design of the rear axle housing.

IMPROVED IN DETAILS.

There are many improvements in the details of design and construction. The headlights are of a new and handsome design with an optical lens that diffuses the light to kill the glare while retaining the necessary brilliancer for night driving.

An improved device for tilting the head lamp reflectors is controlled from the dash. Even the spokes of the steering wheel are made of walnut. Control of gas and spark is afforded by small levers which are set in close to the steering column.

The instrument board of Model 61 combines beauty with the utmost accessibility. In the centre is a gold-plated Cadillac monogram, and around this the lock and switch levers. There is a circular dial on either side.

In the one at the left are grouped the ammeter, the oil gauge and the air pressure gauge. The one at the right contains the speedometer and an eight-day clock. There is also an electric cigar lighter on a cord with an automatic reel.

VISOR ON WINDSHIELD.

The windshield is improved in appearance. A visor with paneled black leather is used on enclosed cars to keep the glare of the sun from the driver's eyes. There is a handsome rear-view mirror and the cowl ventilator is of the improved type and increased size.

The foot controls in the front compartment are of highly polished Duralumin, which is non-rusting.

There are many refinements in the chassis construction. Night inspection is made convenient by an inspection lamp which is attached under the hood to an automatic reel with a cord fourteen feet long.

Mechanical developments are many and noticeable. They mark steps forward which were to be expected in Cadillac.

WATER PUMPS IMPROVED.

The water pumps are improved. The drain operating rod is accessible from above the chassis frame, and the different positions are indicated by words.

All electric wiring is carried in metal conduits, each having a distinctive color to identify it.

There is a lock on the transmission which affords additional protection against theft.

TIRE COMPANY GIVEN A BIG BOOST

A few days ago Frank A. Chase, manager of the building and loan department of the Southwestern Lumberman's Association, dropped into the Kansas City offices of the United States Tire Company during the lunch hour.

He asked for the manager, and finding him out asked for a piece of paper. Drawing out his fountain pen he wrote the following note to the manager:

"No one has asked me to write this and no one knows I am writing it, but from coast to coast I have read on the big signs, 'United States Tires Are Good Tires,' and I think you are entitled to my word of indorsement.

"Since October 1, 1920, eleven months ago, with my car in almost constant service over all sorts of rut. Control of gas and spark is afforded by small levers which are set in close to the steering column.

721,488 AUTO OWNERS IN NEW YORK STATE

Albany, Sept. 24.—New York State has 721,488 automobile owners to every fourteen of its residents, according to an announcement by Secretary of State John J. Lyons, covering the registration for the first half of this year.

That New York State residents have been buying cars this year is shown in the fact that the registration for the first half of this year exceeds all of last year by approximately 19,000 cars. One-third of all the cars in the State are owned and operated in New York City.

APPERSON SETS NEW RECORD FOR TIME

"An Apperson car for the second time in two weeks has smashed the world's record for sustained time," states Edgar Apperson, president of the Apperson Bros. Automobile Company, Kokomo, Ind.

The event took place on the Los Angeles Speedway under official observation and under all official rules and regulations. The following telegram from the Apperson branch in Los Angeles, dated September 16, gives the facts:

"In an official test on Los Angeles Speedway this morning same Apperson Eight stock car which created world's record for forty hours made sixty-nine laps of track or 86 1-4 in one hour. We believe this is a record for car equipped with regular stock body."

"I did not believe it possible," continued Mr. Apperson. "I know, of course, that the Apperson was equal to almost any speed or endurance test but 86 1-4 miles per hour for a car equipped with a regular stock body is certainly a world's record that should stand unequaled for some time to come."

DORT GUESSING CONTEST WINS ATTENTION

Anyone Living in New England May Enter, Says Utterback-Gleason Head

Interest in the Dort guessing contest keeps up without any abatement. This rather novel feature of the Dort Autumnal Opening is attracting widespread attention.

"There seemed to be a misunderstanding at first. Some people thought that there were obligations attached to the contest," said J. G. Utterback of Utterback-Gleason, New England Dort distributors, yesterday.

"This is not so. Anyone living in New England is eligible to the contest. All they have to do is to come in and see the glass jar which holds the gasoline and estimate how far the Dort touring car will go on this gasoline.

CAR FOR BEST GUESSER.

The one coming nearest to the exact mileage, measured in tenths of a mile, will get the car."

The contest closes September 28 at 6 p. m. The gasoline will then be put into the Dort touring car and the car sent over the road until the gas is used up.

Official observers will be in the car and the result sworn to. The guesses will be sorted and the name of the lucky individual announced in the papers and the car will be turned over to the winner.

SEALER ALONE KNOWS.

No one but the Sealer of Weights and Measures of the Town of Brookline knows the amount of gasoline in the jar.

Dort dealers and employes of the local concern are barred from the contest, so that the public has a fair chance.

As the event draws near, the interest grows daily and it is the belief of the Utterback-Gleason Company that the number of guesses cast will be a record for a contest of this kind.

ASK FIX ABOUT AMED SE

Dear Mr. Fixit: I have a 1922 Essex and have had to put in an exhaust gasket [illegible] averages of one a month. Would you please tell me what would be the cause of burning out so often? I use the regular gasket. Thanking you in advance, I am, J. J. McNamara, Mass.

Your trouble is probably caused by the fact that your gasket is too loose. Set up as tight as possible on the nuts which hold the exhaust manifold so that there will be no leakage by the gasket and I do not believe you will have any further trouble.

Dear Mr. Fixit: I have an Overland, Model 90, which seems to have a [illegible] in one of the cylinders. All the bearings are tight, it sounds as if the piston was hitting the top of the cylinders. Could this be possible? Please advise. A. B. W.

Medford, Mass.

The top of the piston may be hitting that part of the dome which is not machined, that is the rough unfinished head. You can correct this by putting a heavier gasket between the crank case and the cylinder block. This will raise the cylinder head enough to make it clear the piston. This gasket may have to be quite thick.

Dear Mr. Fixit: I have a 1920 Dort which seems to miss in one cylinder until it gets running quite fast. The ignition seems to be O. K. as far as distributor and wires are concerned and it eventually fires on all four. Any suggestions will be appreciated. W. H. D.

Brookline, Mass.

You may have a cracked porcelain in one of your spark plugs. This crack is greater when the plug is cold and as it warms up, closes enough so that the plug fires. I am assuming that your valves are O. K. and rings tight.

Dear Mr. Fixit: My 1919 Ford seems to "hesitate" before going into high gear, then jumps in. What is the trouble? J. W.

Boston.

Your high speed clutch needs tightening. This is adjusted in the transmission case, by turning out the "dog clutch" on the high speed. (The one with the "fingers" on it).

Expert Opinions Concerning the
New Type 61 Cadillac
As Expressed by Boston's Automobile Editors

DUSTIN S. LUCIER
Boston Herald Automobile Editor

"It is manifestly a superior product and is bound to be sought by those accustomed to and demanding beauty and efficiency in motor car design. It will be admired by all who know quality design, quality workmanship and most of all, probably, by those who love quality performance."

J. C. KERRISON
Boston Advertiser Automobile Editor

"The car was given a most severe handling by men who were not familiar with this particular car and who were instructed to 'break it up.' The most inexperienced operator had no more effect upon the efficiency of the car than did the wise men, it performing admirably at all times, in all speeds, and under all conditions. It started from a standstill with the high speed gear in mesh and accelerated from that point to seventy miles an hour in an exceedingly short space of time. It climbed some of the hardest hills hereabouts on high without the slightest signs of distress."

C. F. DONNOCKER
Boston American Automobile Editor

"The car simply can teach you how to drive. It will not misbehave. After the gruelling test that car had at the hands of the various drivers, representing all degrees of efficiency, it was the unanimous opinion of the editors that this new Cadillac was the finest car ever turned out by the factory and that 'Miss 61' was due for a very enthusiastic reception."

J. J. McNAMARA
Boston Post Automobile Editor

"The latest addition to the Cadillac family of motor cars arrived in Boston last week and won instant favor on account of its beautiful design and the many details in refinement that makes the 61 stand out as strengthening the Cadillac's leadership."

JAMES T. SULLIVAN
Boston Globe Automobile Editor

"Cadillac's new creation, known as Type 61, has reached Boston. And the few who have ridden in it have pronounced it unquestionably one of the best vehicles ever sent to this city. Attractiveness is noticeable. This is impressed upon one either when looking at the car from any angle and noting the lines, with the careful details of finish, or sitting at the wheel."

CHARLES F. MARDEN
Boston Transcript Automobile Editor

"Cadillac has not departed from its well-established methods in the construction of its eight-cylinder car, but it has made a long step forward in the way of refinement. The Type 61 possesses notable power, which is evidenced not only in speed and climbing ability, but in a remarkably quick and smooth pick-up, from five to fifty miles an hour in a few feet. Contributing largely to this is a new carburetor, developed by original research covering a period of years. It has a two-inch intake and its effect in road performance, ease of operation and economy is readily perceptible."

We will continue the Public Exhibition of the Type 61 all Next Week, both day and evening.

WIFE WINS IN THE END, SAYS MRS. SPIKER

Calls Girls Fools Who Get Into "Affairs" With Married Men

By International News Service.

Baltimore, Sept. 24.—"Girls who get into affairs with married men are little fools. It is the wifer woman who always pays. The wife, if she is wise and bides her time, has the final triumph."

With a knowing smile Mrs. Perley A. Spiker, the remarkable wife in the International romance, uttered these words today. She was discussing the closing chapter in the romance as written by Emily Knowles Spiker. The pretty English girl, who was deserted by all the Spikers.

Emily was Mrs. Spiker's husband's "War Sweetheart", but it was Mrs. Perley who brought her to this country, established her across the street from her own home and arranged for her comfort.

Mrs. Perley sees nothing remarkable about this action on the part of a wife. She is wholesome looking, pleasant woman who believes in doing things in a sensible way. She matched common sense against romance as represented by Emily of the big blue eyes and the appeal of youth.

AIRING HUSBAND'S BABY.

"And, as you see, I come out victor in the end," she said today.

She had just come in from an airing with Emily's baby, Mrs. Perley mothers Emily's baby. It is her own husband's illegitimate child but she sees nothing out of the ordinary in the fact ha she should devote herself to it.

"Of course I am caring for it," she said. "Do you think I would let that little darling suffer? It is my husband's child and I love my husband."

TOOK COMMON SENSE WAY.

"I don't see why we should have all this publicity," she said. "I took the only way to settle the problem confronting us. It was the common sense way. I love my husband and I wanted him. I was not going to let another woman ruin our lives.

"How did I know he didn't still love the girl? Well, man-like I was taking chances. But could I have made him stop loving her by tirading and trying to keep them apart? I acted like a sensible woman.

"I played the game and bided my time. I knew if I waited long enough —well, all men like novelty, but just for a time. The day comes when the novelty wears off. New shots look more attractive than old ones but it is the old ones you go to for comfort.

"Often men are blind creatures and you have to open their eyes for them because I had suffered I had no right to punish the girl and her baby. I did all I could for her. I tried to know her up. I waited and in the end she revealed her true traits.

"WASH OUR HANDS OF HER."

"Infidelity never pays. That is something common sense tells one, and because I used common sense I still have my husband.

"As for the other girl—well, I don't want to discuss her. We gave her a chance. Now we wash our hands of her. She has gone out of our lives. I am sorry for Guy. He deserved better than what he got."

According to Emily she couldn't stand the treatment of the Spikers. She says they criticized her clothes and the things she did.

MAY DEPORT EMILY.

When these words of Emily's were repeated to Mrs. Perley, the latter's lips tightened.

"We gave her a chance"—that's all I care to say," she said finally.

Before Emily left Guy she and Mrs. Perley mothered her babyon the co-operative plan. The boy legally belongs to Mrs. Perley by adoption.

Mrs. Perley also signed the bond guaranteeing the English girl's good behavir while she remained in this country. It is intimated that the department of labor may be asked to deport Emily.

"I don't want to discuss that angle," said Mrs. Perley today.

A. PIATT ANDREW SPENT $1,500 FOR NOMINATION

A primary election return filed at the office of Secretary of State Frederic W. Cook showed that A. Piatt Andrew of Gloucester spent $1,500 in securing the Republican nomination for Congress in the Sixth Massachusetts District. No returns have yet been made by Leslie R. Morse or Ramon C. Pingree, Mr. Andrew's opponents, nor by Charles L. Pettingell, the Democratic nominee. Yesterday was the last day for filing expenses.

U. S. S. MARYLAND IN HARBOR AT NEWPORT

Newport, R. I., Sept. 24. — Superdreadnought Maryland, the latest of the American fleet to be put in commission, has arrived in the outer harbor. As she came in a salute was fired for Rear Admiral Ashley H. Robertson, commanding the destroyer force. The Maryland is having her "shaking down" preparatory to final acceptance.

Name-This-Auto Test Begins in Two Days!

To Be Sure of Picture No. 1, and a Chance at $1,500 in Rewards, You Should Order Monday's Boston American in Advance.

The Boston American offers $1,500 in ninety-four awards—First Award $500—to those of its readers who prove to be cleverest at recognizing the different makes of automobiles. The Name-this-Auto Contest will begin on Monday.

Fifty partial views of automobiles will be printed within a fifty-day period, not counting Sunday. Those who take part in the contest, which is open to every reader, will be asked to identify these cars. There will be no "masks," no alterations.

In addition to naming the different makes of cars, each contestant will be required to write a fifty-word essay calculated to be of assistance in the Walk Right-Drive Right campaign. The contest will be inaugurated as No Accident Week begins.

MUST BE WON!

First reward.....$500
Second reward....	200
Third reward.....	100
Fourth reward.....	50
Fifth reward.....	40
Sixth reward.....	30
Seventh reward....	20
25 rewards of $10 each	250
62 rewards of $5 each	310
Total $1,500

The first of fifty automobile pictures will be printed in Monday's Boston American. The Name-this-Auto Contest has been advertised widely. Attention has been called to it in newspapers, garages and periodical shops throughout New England. There will be a big demand for Monday's paper. The reader who thinks he knows automobiles "as well as the next man," and who plans to take part in this unique contest, will do well to place an order NOW for Monday's Boston American.

Get Information Anywhere in Trying to Identify Cars

Not many persons, we imagine, can identify as many as fifty cars at sight. Every contestant will be at liberty to get help in this Contest wherever it can be obtained. Traffic policemen, chauffeurs, motor-mechanics, garage managers and employes, you may talk with and be advised by any acquaintance in a position to be of assistance. Then there are the catalogs of the various manufacturers, and the many publications devoted to the motor industry. Some of these last may be seen in almost any public library.

You will observe, at the beginning of this contest, that no effort will be made to make any of the pictures "easy." From beginning to end, the contest pictures will be of the same character. Each will represent a car in such a way that those who know the car's characteristics will be able to name it off-hand.

No list of the names of motor cars will be printed. There will be nothing to copy—e you. This new test will be a simple proposition of naming the cars, if you know them, or passing them up, if you do not. Full particulars will be printed on Monday, with Contest Picture No. 1.

When the Name-this-Auto Contest is fairly under way you will, perhaps, find little or no reading matter with the daily picture. There will, however, be one picture every day until the fifty have been printed. The fifty-word Walk Right-Drive Right essay may be written at any time while the contest is in progress, but must not be sent in before the test is completed. The Rules of the Contest will be printed on Monday.

An occasional reader may shy at the word "essay." Call it a "letter," then. Write a fifty-word LETTER and send it in with the fifty pictures.

"What kind of letter?"

Well, next week will be No Accident Week. Make your letter (or essay) a suggestion for lessening the number of accidents. Tell us how to make the crossings safer, how speeds can be controlled, how to improve traffic regulations, how to promote co-operation between driver and pedestrian on busy highways. We want all the suggestions we can get.

This is merely an outline. There will be plenty of time to get your ideas in order and go to work on a helpful letter. The immediate business will be to name the different motor cars, as each is pictured day by day in the Boston American.

And the more immediate business is making sure of Monday's Boston American. Please try not to be among the many who will be asking up, one week from today, for a "copy of the paper containing Contest Picture No. 1." It may not be possible to comply with these requests.

If you think you know the different automobiles, or feel confident you can find a way to identify them, and mean to enter this Contest for one of ninety-four prizes, speak NOW to the newsdealer.

Say to him, "I shall want Monday's Boston American, with Picture No. 1 in the Name-this-Auto Contest. Be sure to save it for me."

For, as sure as preaching, many who ask for the Boston American on Monday are going to hear: "All sold out!"

The Songs of the World Title Test editor asks us to say here that the checking of picture-titles in that Test is almost completed. Sometime early in the coming week we hope to be calling upon the winners. Their names, with the List of Correct Titles and other information, will be printed in the Boston American at an early date. Meanwhile, keep reading daily of the Test pictures, with Correct Titles.

TWO LEAP FOR LIFE AT FIRE ON BOAT

Chief Engineer Antnony Arruda, twenty-six years old, and Seaman John Tobey, twenty-one years old leaped for their livis when fire was discovered in the engine room of the U. S. motor ship Lieutenant William C. Brown, Jr., tied up alongside her sister ship, the General Robert M. Anderson, at the Army Base Pier South Boston.

Sparks, caused by backfire in the carburetor ignited the engine room floor, which was soaked with gasoline and all, then spread to the ship's gas tank, loaded to capacity with five hundred gallons. Arruda and Tobey, trapped in a volume of flame, ran up the hatchway above decks and leaped ashore. Both escaped injury.

Soldiers ashore, fearing possible explosion and spread to neighboring vessels, cut the tugboat's lines free from the dock.

Two firebats worked the burning craft into mid-stream and poured tons of water into the tug in an attempt to check the flames, ramming the blazing tug up and down stream, between the "L" Street Bridge and the end of the Army Base docks several times.

At one time Chief James J. Cains, directing operations from shore, feared the fire would spread to three ocean freighters, the Lake Fagundus, Merry Mount and Rockaway Park. Shouting orders from a raft, Chief Cains succeeded in getting the firebats on the shore side of the craft and the tug was once more pushed into mid-stream.

The burning craft was finally crowded into a corner at the Edison Electric and Boston Elevated coal docks, on the opposite side.

PASTORS COME 1600 MILES TO ENTER B. U.

Make Long Trip From West in "Flivvers" and Camp by the Roadside

A 1,600-mile trip from their Wisconsin parishes having been completed by "flivver," two country ministers, the Rev. Ernest Barber and the Rev. John W. Birchall, matriculated today in the Boston University School of Religious Education to prepare themselves for more extended work in the rural districts of the West. Both were ordained in the Methodist Church.

The two men, who were accompanied on the trip by their families, hold scholarships from the Methodist Centenary. Their decision to come to Boston was made last Summer while Professor M. A. Dawber of Boston University was lecturing at the Summer session of Hamline University in St. Paul.

AUCTION FURNITURE.

In order to secure funds to make the trip the ministers auctioned their household goods before leaving their parishes. They propose to augment their scholarship income by preaching in various churches in Greater Boston as occasions present themselves.

Six people—the two ministers, their wives, and the two children, four-year-old John Birchall and Ralph Barber, eight years old—made the trip.

The "flivvers" were made over so that they could be slept in by putting hinged backs on the front seats and the party camped out along the way.

MADE 130 MILES A DAY.

Good roads and fair weather enabled the ministers to average 130 miles a day on their trip, they said. Camps were made each night on the outskirts of cities en route. In many cities they found that special open spaces had been reserved for the use of motor campers.

No accidents marred the trip with the exception of a broken axle, suffered by the Rev. Barber's car on a stretch of newly repaired road.

Prices for gas ranged from 17 cents a gallon, in Michigan City, Ind., to 25 cents in Ohio. Gasoline generally was cheaper in the West than in the East, they asserted.

The two families are occupying rooms at No. 46 Temple street.

ACCUSES BORDA OF ATTACKS ON THE SPRAGUES

Wealthy Porto Rican Abused Famous Family, Wife Says, in Divorce Suit

Providence, Sept. 24.—Details of the abuse which she alleged was heaped upon her and the family of the late William Sprague, War Governor of Rhode Island, by her husband, Wenceslo Borda, wealthy Porto Rican planter, were given by Mrs. Avis Weed Sprague Borda at the trial of her suit for divorce from the Porto Rican.

Repeated references were made to celebrated resturants, including Delmonico's and Sherry's in New York and equally well known places in Paris and Monte Carlo.

According to the witness, who when she eloped with her step-brother, Governor Sprague's eldest son was reported to have been the most beautiful woman in Rhode Island and West Virginia, her native State, Borda repeatedly made himself conspicuous in public by his vehement attacks upon the Sprague family.

Mrs. Borda asks legal separation from her husband, now in Porto Rico, and she is also seeking to have the courts compel the alteration of the New York Board of Health records which call her the mother of the four-year-old son of Borda.

This she denies and asks that Borda be forced to disclose the real name of the mother of the child, who is with the father in Porto Rico.

Much of the time during the hearing was taken up with tilts between counsel over questions of the admissibility of evidence.

NIGHT JUMPING TOMBSTONE A MYSTERY

Winsted, Ct., Sexton Perplexed by Antics of Strange Grave Marker

Winsted, Ct., Sept. 24.—A tombstone that spends the nights hopping from grave to grave, appearing first in one lot and then in another, has the sexton of the local cemetery considerably perturbed, not to say frightened.

The origin of the mysterious stone is veiled. All that is known is that several years ago a peculiar monument, built of stone and mortar in the form of a cross on a heart-shaped base, was found standing in the lot where Mr. and Mrs. Albert Babcock are buried. No one was ever able to learn who made the stone or placed it there.

One morning a week ago the stone was discovered resting on a lot two rows feet away. On the following day it had again moved to a third location. And on the next day it was back in its original site.

TINNEY SAYS HORSE CAN TALK

Animal, However, Didn't Want Loew to Know It, Says Actor

Frank Tinney tells this story. He says it's true.

"The doctor told me I could cut down on the booze by doing something else when I wanted a drink. like taking a long walk. Well this Sunday night I walked from Long Beach to Broadway and Forty-second street, 28 miles, and got there about four in the morning. There wasn't a taxi in sight. I was thinking about going home when a voice said:

"'Hello, Frank.'

"I looked around. Nobody visible except a poor old horse attached to a broken down, sea-going hack. The voice said again:

"'Don't you know me, Frank?'

"It was the horse. Upon my soul. And I hadn't had more than three or four drinks on the way up from Long Beach.

"'Hello,' said I. 'How're you gettin' on?'

"'Say, Frank, do me a favor,' said the horse. 'My boss is in the back room of that cafe with Marcus Loew. He's forgotten all about me. And honest, I'm all in. I've been on duty twenty-four hours without a wink or sleep or a bite to eat. Go in and ask him to come out and take me home.'

"'I'll do that,' said I, starting for the cafe.

"'Oh, Frank,' called the horse. 'Do me a favor?'

"'Sure.'

"'Don't let Marcus Loew know I can talk.'

"Tinney sprung this fairy tale at the opening of the new State Theatre in New York with Marcus Loew in the audience.

Twinkle Little Star

To be a full fledged star at the age of nineteen is the good fortune of Helen Hayes. And she is no ephemeral star which gives one twinkle and goes dark. She has won her rank in two or three seasons by giving three or four remarkable demonstrations of ability in different roles.

Furthermore she has already acquired a large following and her name in the electric lights draws money into the box office. Many a present day star would envy her the box office draught.

Despite her youth she has been upon the stage for eleven years, barring a few months, when she was withdrawn to attend school. It was Lew Fields who gave her the first opportunity, and she played child roles in his enterprises for four seasons.

In "The Prince Chap" it happened that Helen Hayes, Ruth Chatterton and Patricia Collinge were together all playing the same girl at different ages.

It was Pollyanna which started the young star upon her big career. Directly after that had been the glad girl for a season she created the part of the dream daughter in "Dear Brutus." Then came "Clarence." It happened that she appeared in none of these roles in Boston and our first glimpse of her was in "Bab." last season.

Mitzi Wears a Royal Robe.

Regardless of whether other young women are curtailing their wardrobes, Mitzi is sure of having at least one new dress. It is a native Roumanian costume, and it was sent to the star, who impersonates a Roumanian countess in "Lady Billy," at the Tremont, by Princess Elizabeth of Roumania with the inscription "De Principesan la Contesan."

The gown, which was made for Princess Elizabeth to wear on occasions of state, has been traveling since the eve of the Princess's marriage to Prince George of Greece, but no tariff was charged on it anywhere.

When Prince Carol of Roumania was putting New York to rights he attended a show at the Liberty Theatre with Henry W. Savage, and it is understood that the principal part of the piece led Elizabeth to say "From Princess to Countess" in so many Roumanian words.

Mitzi wears the blouse in the musical comedy and it is hoped she will urge the government to pull Roumania out of any Balkin hole in the future.

Barrymore's Cheerful Roles.

What would suppose Mr. Barrymore does to amuse himself? He can't get much fun out of these terrible roles he plays. From "Redemption" he went to "The Jest," and from that to "Macbeth," and now he is playing a French statesman who has a perfectly miserable time.

Nothing, however, that Bernstein's "Claw" is not as funny as "Pinafore," there is no doubt whatever. It is extraordinarily interesting to those who understand and appreciate the difference between acting and walking through a part.

Barrymore in the "Claw" pleading with one of his wife's lovers to give her up instead of blowing his head off and suspecting in the "unwritten law," is feeding American audiences something they do not understand, and it is terrible to see Barrymore as well as his skill as an actor that he holds interest and a measure of sympathy for the bitter part.

Miss Gibbs In One of Us.

"The Whirl of New York," as you know if you have seen it, "is a revised revival in the Winter Garden of "the Belle of New York," in which Edna May became famous twenty years ago.

Nancy Gibbs, who is the present day Belinda, is very much like, in pictureque in her brunette way as Edna May was in her blondeness. Miss Gibbs has a clear cut chin which behind the scenes at the Wilbur last night just after the last song "Follow On" is very lovely soprano.

"You are English, aren't you?"

"Oh, no," she replied. "But I'm going to be an American. I like it over here."

"All visitors say that. It's polite."

"But why shouldn't I mean it. You people don't be here if folks hadn't come over from England. Why shouldn't I come now?"

"Glad to have you."

"I've bought a home on Long Island, so there you are. And I've just got married over here. My husband and I are really on our honeymoon in Boston. That two hours a night at the theatre is nothing. We discovered it. It's a honeymoon just the same."

NONETTE IS GYPSY FIDDLER

Nonette, the fascinating Gypsy violinist and soloist, who, as a feature par excellence with Shubert Vaudeville, finished an exceptional list of attractions at the Majestic Theatre, beginning next Monday, returns to vaudeville with the interesting statement that "my vaudeville program has recently been operated on—by syncopation was cut down."

In other words, Nonette, who caters to the taste of her audiences, believes that jazz is now in the throes of its final decline, hence her offerings, whether vocal or on the violin, will henceforth consist of selections made up of popular airs from light and comic opera, and ballads.

Seldom if ever is such a rare combination of vocal and violin ability centered in one person, yet Nonette, whose triumphs include vaudeville, comic opera, and accompanying some of the world's greatest vocal artists, including Nordica and Schumann-Heink, not only is a rare violinist and accomplished soloist, but also possesses charming personality and marked beauty. Her return to vaudeville will be hailed with unqualified approval by patrons of that form of entertainment.

LOEW'S ORPHEUM

An all-star bill has been arranged by the management of Loew's Orpheum Theatre for the coming week. The program contains many attractive numbers of high class vaudeville and feature photoplays.

"Congratulations. Are you going to leave the stage?"

"No, but I intend to get into something fairly serious. I think well of my voice, in England, you know, I sang the leading role in 'The Maid of the Mountains,' and last year I sang the prima donnas' part in 'Monsieur Beaucaire.' I am studying hard all the time and some day I may get into grand opera. In the meantime I am going into light opera, and you've seen the latter in 'Somebourine.' Whereupon she fled stageward.

The Hard in Back.

The Opera House will be dark next week but, on October 3, Bothern and Marlowe will come in Shakespearean repertoire. The company this year include such sterling performers as Rowland Buckstone and Frederick Lewis.

That Shubert Vaudeville.

Shubert vaudeville is here, and the people seem to like it. The method of running a performance is rather different from the Keith practice, and the policy of assembling an extra bill in New York and sending the bill as an entity all around the circuit is something new in vaudeville.

With the vast collection of dramatic and musical comedies which belong to the Shuberts and the enormous storehouse of costumes and scenery it is possible to put out talloid versions of popular shows quite beyond the reach of ordinary vaudeville.

The first week of the sale of tickets for the Lynn star Course ended today with a very large total of subscriptions. There will be one more week of sale of course tickets and then single tickets for the concert by Tina Huffo and Yvonne Legrand will be placed on sale. There are six concerts in the course this season and the artists include some of the most celebrated names in the musical world. The chance to hear John McCormack, the greatest living tenor, Frances Alda, the distinguished lyric soprano from the Metropolitan Opera House; Percy Grainger, the Australian pianist; Tita Ruffo, the great Italian baritone; Kerekjarto, the famous Hungarian violinist; Gutia Casini, the 'cellist, and the complete Boston Symphony Orchestra, all at popular prices, is making a tremendous appeal to music lovers of the North Shore. The sale is at the Olympia Theatre, Lynn, and at the office of A. H. Handley, No. 160 Boylston street.

DANCING ACT BILLED AT KEITH'S

B. F. Keith's bill next week should prove one of the most delightful and entertaining programs ever presented at this popular home of fine amusement, judging by the outstanding list of headline names which form it.

Adelaide and Hughes, twins of terpsichore herself, who have earned enviable fame not alone as trippers of the light fantastic, but also in the more difficult role of producers of musical comedy, head the long list of superlative artists. They will be seen in a roundelay of original dances, adequately staged and costumed.

VALDRON'S

Replete with song and hilarity, beauty and grace, dancing, frivolity and jest, "I'll for Tat" will appear at Waldron's as the city's principal burlesque attraction next week.

MADGE KENNEDY (HERSELF)

What promises to be the biggest theatrical event of the present season is the return to the stage of the beautiful young star, Madge Kennedy, who will appear in person at the Shubert Theatre for an engagement beginning Monday evening, October 3, in Henry W. Savage's production of "Cornered."

For three years, theatregoers have been denied Madge Kennedy's presence on the stage, and for three years picturegoers have found delight in that lovely personality depicted on the screen. Now both stage and screen admirers will have equal opportunity to revel in the beauty, charm and winsomeness of this talented young actress, for in "Cornered," Miss Kennedy is seen in one of the strongest roles ever written for an actress.

"REVUE" FOR PATRONS OF GAYETY

"Frank Finney's Revue," the burlesque production of Charles H. Waldron, a Boston man, will be the attraction at the Gayety Theatre this week.

The "revue" is a show that is full of vivacity, melody and hilarity, all woven into it by the author and principal star, Frank Finney, for whom the piece is named.

In the two acts, each of generous length, there are ten scenes. The entire show is handled in a delightfully original manner and as the unique story unwinds, to the accompaniment of much tuneful music and spontaneous laughter, a humorous, well-connected story unfolds and comes to a surprising but logical conclusion.

MARGARET ANGLIN

"One of the real miracles of the Magic Shop which we call the theatre," writes a well-known author, "is Margaret Anglin's "Woman of Bronze."

This unprecedented dramatic offering comes to the Plymouth Theatre, beginning Monday night, October 3, with Margaret Anglin heading a distinguished cast. Miss Anglin herself has directed the play and brings the piece, which is such a clever imitator of musical instruments that he is several minutes on the stage before he is satisfied that the instruments he is "playing" are mere dummies which conceal the fact that Robins is indulging in vocal gymnastics of a very high order. Bert Clark and Flavia Arcaro, musical comedy stars, in "A Wayward Conceit"; the Donahue Sisters, sensational equilibrists, Shubert News Events and a Bud Fisher comedy.

SOMERVILLE THEATRE

The enduring qualities of the tale of "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come," recognized as the most brilliant literary achievement of John Fox, Jr., are admirably sustained in the dramatization made by the prolific Eugene Walter, announced as the attraction for the coming week by the Somerville Players. The author of this widely-read novel is a master of delineation of mountain characters of the South. His Kuntucklans in this stirring play are real people, not the fancies of an author's mind. They have their feud, their strong likes and dislikes, their quaint ideas of chivalry. The two principal characters are "Chad" and Melissy, the latter a sweet, winning maid of the mountains. Around these two the author has woven one of the most fascinating love stories conceivable.

MAJESTIC HAS STRIKING BILL

Majestic theatregoers the past week, twice daily, during the first week or Shubert vaudeville, the new attraction at the Majestic Theatre this week, demonstrated conclusively that they welcome this new style of variety entertainment. Crowded attendances have been the rule at all performances.

Tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock and tomorrow night at 8 there will be two big Sunday concerts.

The program for the coming week, beginning Monday afternoon, offers a most inviting array of talent. It will include: Bella Storey, American noted coloratura soprano and late prima donna of the New York Hippodrome, in a number of operatic selections; Georgie Price in his inimitable round of singing, dancing, talking and impersonations; Henry Regal and Simeon Moore, late stars of musical comedy, in "The Carnival"; Nesbitt, of the golden voice, the gypsy violinist from "Somebody's Sweetheart"; the superlative queen, Mlle. Olympia Desvall, and her company, including her famous winged horse, "THE-THE," and her marvelous equine and canine actors; Jack Conway & Co., in an intoxicating comedy, "The Cellar"; A. Robbe, known as "The Walking Music Box," who is such a clever imitator of musical instruments that he is several minutes on the stage before he is satisfied that the instruments he is "playing" are mere dummies which conceal the fact that Robins is indulging in vocal gymnastics of a very high order; Bert Clark and Flavia Arcaro, musical comedy stars, in "A Wayward Conceit"; the Donahue Sisters, sensational equilibrists, Shubert News Events and a Bud Fisher comedy.

BOSTON ARENA

The big Greater Boston championship prize dance competition originally scheduled for last night had to be postponed owing to some misunderstanding due to no fault of the management.

The big event is now set for Monday evening and will take place without fail.

The preliminaries to this unique event have been going on for a couple of months and have attracted the best dancers from Boston and suburban towns.

Two diamond medals will be presented to the winning couple by the management, as well as ten beautiful silver loving cups to the couples selected as deserving of special notice.

BIG GRIFFITH FILM AT GLOBE

D. W. Griffith's wonder spectacle, "Way Down East," taken from the famous New England play of that name, comes to Boston for a return engagement for a brief time only, beginning next Monday matinee at the Globe Theatre, and continuing with performances daily thereafter for the duration of the local engagement. In "Way Down East" the master of the silent drama has excelled himself. Griffith has taken this simple story of plain people and infused into it the charm of New England homesteads with their quaint surroundings, dreamy perspectives of undulating roadways, meadows and hills; old-fashioned sleighing parties, barn dances and frolicsome humors in a manner which creates a new art form. It is a tale of the love that conquers all things but which is retarded for the time being by gossip and thrilling adventures prompted by the stern dictates of a simple people who have but one code of honor.

BOSTON STOCK COMPANY

Next week's offering by the Boston Stock Company at the St. James Theatre will be that tremendous hit of last season, "The Hottentot," written by Victor Mapes and William Collier, and in which Mr. Collier, acting in the role of Sam Harrington, the chief character, displayed his genius for rich humor in the characteristic Collier fashion.

The name does not stand for a darkhued native of some distant tropical section of Africa, but alludes to a fiery, tricky, thoroughbred horse, trained to race in the steeplechase and owned by the fair Peggy Fairfax.

Sam Harrington has the misfortune to possess the same name as a noted gentleman rider, so when he happens to meet Peggy for the first time, she naturally thinks he is the renowned rider whom she has never met. He is invited to a week-end party at the time the big race is to take place.

Sam really is in deadly fear of all horses, but dare not let Peggy know at the time; she prevails upon him to ride "The Hottentot," of which he is not only winning the cup but the adored and adoring Peggy as well.

GORDON'S SCOLLAY SQUARE OLYMPIA

Romance, thrills, adventure and human interest—plus an international plot combine to make "Pilgrims of the Night," this week's offering at Gordon's Scollay Square Olympia Theatre one of the most absorbing dramas of the season. It was produced by J. L. Frothingham for distribution by Associated Producers, Inc., from the famous novel, "Passers By," by E. Phillips Oppenheim.

GORDON'S OLD SOUTH

Pleasurable anticipation greets the announcement that "Mamma's Affair," presented by Joseph M. Schenck and released by Associated First National, will be seen at Gordon's Old South Theatre beginning Monday.

BIG PROGRAM FOR FIRST SYMPHONY

Monteaux Opens Concerts by Noted Orchestra on Friday, October 7

Pierre Monteux, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, has decided upon the following program for the opening pair of concerts, to take place Friday afternoon, October 7, and Saturday evening, October 8, at Symphony Hall.

The first number will be Mendelssohn's "Italian" Symphony, known particularly by the closing movement in Saltarello form. The other numbers will be Rimsky-Korsakoff's tone picture, "Sadko," Debussy's Two Nocturnes, "Nuages" and "Fetes," and Richard Strauss' symphonic poem, "Don Juan," now regarded as a standard orchestral piece, although it has not been heard at these concerts for several seasons.

LASHANSKA TO SING HERE

The following famous artists will be heard in the opening Sunday afternoon concerts at Symphony Hall: On October 2, Madam Galli-Curci; October 9, John McCormack (who will give another concert on the following Tuesday evening, October 11); on October 16, Louise Homer in a joint concert with Cora Chase, the talented young American soprano, who, taking the leading coloriture roles at the Metropolitan Opera House last Spring, was regarded in New York as one of the most important new comers of the season; on October 23, Efrem Zimbalist, the world celebrated violinist.

On Sunday, October 30, Hulda Lashanska, the charming young American lyric soprano, who also recently captivated New York by the rare beauty of her voice, will be heard for the first time in a concert of her own in Boston.

GALLI-CURCI OPENS MUDGETT CONCERTS

In the first of the Sunday Afternoon Concerts in Symphony Hall, which will take place a week from tomorrow at 3:30, Amalita Galli-Curci, the great coloratura soprano, will be heard in the following programs assisted by Manuel Berenguer, flutist, and Homer Samuels, pianist:

PARK THEATRE

Twelve stellar players and a supporting cast of unrivalled quality—that's the record set by Cecil B. DeMille's latest Paramount masterpiece, "The Affairs of Anatol," which will be shown at the Park Theatre next week. The roster reads like screendom's who's who. The phrase "all-star cast," is a much abused one, but it adequately describes a cast that includes Wallace Reid, famous Paramount star; Gloria Swanson, Elliott Dexter, Bebe Daniels, Monte Blue, Wanda Hawley, Theodore Roberts, Agnes Ayres, Theodore Kosloff, Polly Moran, Raymond Hatton and Julia Faye.

Nothing like this cast in the way of aggregate talent has ever been assembled before. The drawing powers of each any of the names on the roll has been sufficient to awaken the interest of the discriminating public. Here, for the first time, they are appearing in a single production under the direction of a noted producer, Cecil B. DeMille.

"The Affairs of Anatol" was written by Frank Mandel, author of many notable Cecil B. DeMille productions. Her story was suggested by Arthur Schnitzler's scintillating comedy of the same name.

The same quality that is featured in the cast of principals and in the authorship has been carried through every production work. The supporting cast includes such capable actors as Clarence Geldart, Maude Wayne, Ruth Miller, William Boyd, Lucien Littlefield and others. The beautiful settings are the work of Paul Iribe, famous French artist, designer and decorator.

GORDON'S CENTRAL SQ., CAMBRIDGE, AND GORDON'S STRAND

If combined talent, artistry and opportunity are of avail in the production of a modern high class motion picture drama, then "At the End of the World" should be one of the biggest successes of the season. It will be the attraction at Gordon's Central Square, Cambridge, and Gordon's Strand, Dorchester, on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

McISAAC says that

LIONEL BARRYMORE in "The Claw" at the Plymouth, with Irene Fenwick featured, has a powerful if unpalatable drama in which admirable acting is the rule.

HELEN HAYES in "The Wren" at the Hollis, is a sweet child in a dramatic and unusual trifle from the pen of Booth Tarkington. Matinee girls adore it.

MITZI in "Lady Billy" is an exquisite little person in the season's best operetta. There isn't a dull musical number. Tremont.

"TOWN GOSSIP" at the Colonial is a revue produced by Ned Wayburn, featuring Lillian Fitzgerald and Johnny Dooley. Last week.

"THE WHIRL OF NEW YORK" at the Wilbur is a Winter Garden revival of "The Belle of New York." It's hilariously funny and preserves the best musical numbers of the famous old operetta.

FRANK TINNEY in "Tickle Me" is going to tickle somebody else after this week. This really spontaneously humorous comedian has a good vehicle in the Hammerstein musical comedy, but he will be on his way after next Saturday. Shurbert.

THE BIG FILMS

DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS in "The Three Musketeers" at the Selwyn has one of the most thrilling and generally entertaining pictures in several seasons.

"OVER THE HILL" at the Tremont Temple continues to draw lovers of sentiment and pathos.

"WAY DOWN EAST" at the Globe Theatre returns after a few month to continue its Boston run. One of the greatest films ever made.

FRANCE WAS REBUILT FOR FILM

Three Acres of Exterior Sets Used by Fairbanks in "Three Musketeers"

These who view Douglas Fairbanks' latest production, "The Three Musketeers," now showing at the Selwyn Theatre, will be given a film tour of Paris as it was in the early seventeenth century; of the palace of King Louis XIII, of Buckingham Palace and several ancient and picturesque continental towns.

To meet the requirements of this story, three acres of exterior sets and one acre of interiors were built, all duplicates from ancient engravings of historical buildings of that time. No more vivid impression could possibly be given of the streets of Paris, or of the quaint streets and picturesque buildings of the city than that conveyed in the scenes wherein D'Artagnan and the three musketeers give battle in smashing duels to the Cardinal's guards.

"The features that stamp the sets for this production as different and superior to anything yet built for film purposes," said Robert Fairbanks, producing manager, "is the fact that practically all replicas of buildings were constructed with four sides and that most of the interiors were built with ceilings, all of which show in the picture."

Worked as Though She Had To.

When Mrs. Morgan Belmont of New York and Newport's exclusive set first took up her picture work with D. W. Griffith in his production of "Way Down East," she did it with a will, reporting at the studio in Mamaroneck every morning at 8 o'clock and taking her place with the regular members of the company. Before it became known to the "four hundred" that she had taken this new departure, a friend called her up one morning. Mrs. Belmont's butler informed the friend that madam was out. "Madam is working today," he said. "What!" gasped the friend at the other end of the wire, "working?" "At the Griffith studios," spoke the urbane voice of the familiar servitor. There was something sounding like a muffled well-bred shriek from the other party; a receiver clicked—that's all. Mrs. Belmont is appearing as a Boston society woman in "Way Down East," which comes to Boston for a return engagement for a brief time only, beginning next Monday matinee at the Globe Theatre.

After Schumann-Heinck's Crown.

With an ambition to be the greatest mother in the world rather than the greatest actress, Mrs. Carr, the charming artist who essays the role of Ma Marston in the William Fox film presentation, "Over the Hill," says that for her, the playing of such a part is merely transferring her household duties from the home to the screen. Six little Carrs and the father, William C. Carr, are in the cast with Mrs. and four of the children acted with their mother in "Over the Hill," which is now being shown twice daily at 2:15 and 8:15 p. m. at the Tremont Temple. "I have three boys and three girls," Mrs. Carr explains, "and I am determined to bring up three gentlemen and three ladies. If I accomplish this, then I am sure my fondest ambition will have been realized. At least my fine young women and young men should make any woman feel that she had been a success as a mother. Mrs. Carr, under her maiden name of Mary Kennevan, began her stage career as a stock company in her home town of Philadelphia, in 1897. One of her earliest engagements was a season spent in stock with Valerie Bergere.

Later she appeared as Louise in "The Two Orphans" and as Cazire in "Alabama."

MITZI'S ACADEMY

Mitzi, star of "Lady Billy," has a big ambition. She wants to teach school. Not exactly reading, writing and 'rithmetic, she confessed the other evening, in speaking of her aspirations.

"I want to teach the three R's of education for the stage—singing, dancing and acting. I have the need of managers at present is for actors with experience in all of the three things. My great ambition is to found a school where young players can get the right training in these three arts. Suppose we call it an academy. Doesn't that sound impressive?" inquired Mitzi.

"My academy won't be exclusively for musical comedy people," she explained, "but anyone who completes my course will be able to take a turn at singing and dancing, even if their goal is the dramatic stock company at Kalamazoo.

WALTHAM FAIR

The opening day of the Waltham Fair, Wednesday next, has been named Governor's Day, in honor of Governor Cox, who, with his staff and other city officials, is expected to attend and formally open the fair. The Governor will be the guest of the city officials of Waltham.

Thursday will be Middlesex Day at the fair, and all the manufacturers and business men of that county plan to attend in large numbers.

Friday is theatrical and flower day and a number of big theatre stars playing in Boston, including Frank Tinney and Miss Ring of the "Tickle Me" company, the Whirl of New York company at the Wilbur, and members of "Mitzi" company at the Tremont will attend and participate in the floral parade on Friday. Also, the flower growers of Middlesex County have donated their exhibits to be distributed among the patrons of the fair. The actresses attending the fair will distribute the flowers. On Friday Alen the track events, in which a number of the best known marathon runners will take part, will be held.

Saturday, the closing day of the fair, will be Derby Day (Metropolitan) and two special featured horse races are scheduled.

"LITTLE OLD NEW YORK"

"Little Old New York," with dainty Genevieve Tobin, which will be the offering at the Tremont Theatre, beginning Monday, October 3. This is catalogued as one of the most charming plays seen in many years.

"ZIEGFELD FOLLIES"

F. Ziegfeld, Jr., presents his annual edition of the Ziegfeld Follies of 1921 at the Colonial Theatre beginning Monday night, October 3. The Follies this year lives true to its tradition of being a "national institution."

BROCKTON IS TO BREAK RECORDS

Scores of Attractions for Visitors to Great Fair, on October 4-7

With a more lavish expenditure of money upon its scores and scores of attractions, which heretofore have made it one of the greatest outdoor expositions in the country, the Brockton Fair, October 4, 5, 6 and 7, will present the greatest program the management has arranged in the forty-eight years of its existence. Last year 216,000 persons paid admission to this fair and a greater crowd is expected at the forthcoming one.

Even the big professional amusement promoter would regard an expenditure of $115,000 upon a four-days' program, particularly an outdoor affair, as the wildest extravagance, yet the "amateurs" who are staging the Brockton Fair look upon it as a good investment. Plus this amount they have already spent an even $100,000 in renovating the huge plant and adding ten acres for parking space for the thousands who motor to the fair.

Fred F. Field, president of the society under whose auspices the fair is given, has arranged for every known feature that has ever been on a country fair program and a lot of others that are exclusive to Brockton. There will be a veritable battle of music, for six brass bands and six string orchestras will be grinding out melody from early morning until late at night, with two vaudeville shows of headline acts going almost continuously.

Brockton has the reputation of offering only the best, no matter what department of the big show it is in. In the real country fair aspect every department is run on the highest plane. The cattle show will have a big entry of the finest Holstein, Guernseys, Ayrshires and Hilton short horns, while the poultry show is second only to the big Boston show in January. The dog show this year will be a different specialty show each day of the fair. The automobile show will be the largest that Brockton has ever staged. The huge building, which was specially constructed for the exhibition of motor cars and trucks, was not large enough for all the firms that wanted to display their lines.

The food show, the bees and wax show, the vegetable and flower show, swine and sheep show, food show, and Indian village with a real tribe of redskins living in their aboriginal way, a wild fowl exhibit, athletics, fakirs' row and a score of other attractions will make it impossible to cover half of the ground in one day's visit.

The horse show is the one event that Brockton is proud of. It has come to be recognized as the big event of the season among society folks who go in for show horses. Fred Field originated the show at Brockton and as he had bred and shown horses it is natural that he sought to make it the big feature of the show. It is a millionaire's "game," and from all corners of the country society comes with the best in their stable, for a win at Brockton means much to them. This year $30,000 in stakes and prizes are being offered and already the entries are more numerous and "classy" than at any previous show.

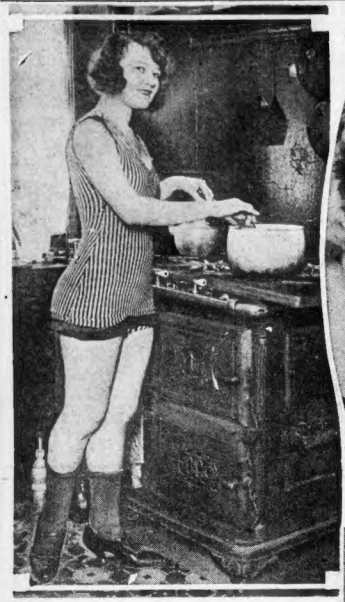
WATCH OUT, PROFITEERS---THEY FLOG YOUR KIND IN HUNGARY



GOOD-BY, BUNGALOW APRON! Miss Polly Salsbury, first prize winner in the Atlantic City bathing girl contest, loves her smart little bathing suit so much she takes it into the kitchen with her. House dresses are a nuisance, she says, and insists on doing her housework in her prize suit. (W. W.)

YOU TELL 'EM, JUSTINE! Justine Johnston, famous American beauty, is terribly agitated over false impressions of her sex aroused by present-day movies. Says she's going to right this by turning producer. (Bain.)

SWAT THE BALL! Miss Mary Morgan, star on the girl's All-Philadelphia hockey team, which shortly meets the British champions, is expected to "show the world" how Yankee girls can play. She has speed, endurance and knows the game thoroughly. Good luck, Mary. (Int.)

LOYALTY! Stephania Watrobska, Polish girl, arrested for helping sister to escape from Ellis Island after latter had been ordered deported, has been held in $500 for Grand Jury. She worked 2 years and saved $600 to bring her sister here. She has accepted her lot like a stoic. (K.)

GET READY, GIRLS! Crowds of shouting admirers blocked the way when the Paris Midinettes started on their race from Port Maillot for a prize of 1,000 francs. Photo shows the Blanches and Madelons lined up for the gun. Step your prowding, Yvonne! (W. W.)

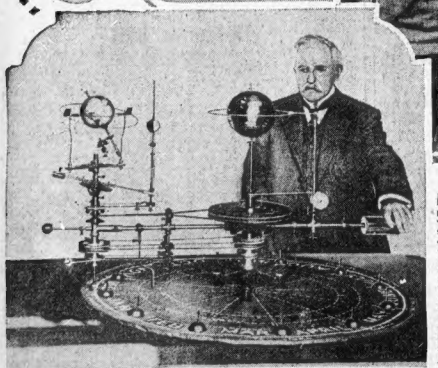
SWEET JUSTICE! Look well and long upon this, ye profiteers. Here's what they do to ruthless betrayers of the family pocketbook in Budapest, Hungary. Profiteers are dragged into an open square and soundly flogged on this specially made bench. The public horsewhipper is always ready to oblige. (Int.)

CHAMPION NECK RISKER! Jack Shalk, who pays his poll tax in Los Angeles, became so weary of walking around terra firma that in order to get a thrill he promenades around a plane while it is in flight. For variation he does this simple little trick. Jack must have a good dentist. Anyway, he likes to tease the undertakers. (Int.)

MARY VAN KLEEK of N. Y., Russell Sage Foundation director, has been appointed a member of U. S. unemployment conference, which opens Monday in Washington. (Int.)

FUZZY WUZ! Attractive, economical and smart upon almost any type of head is the new sport hat of black enamel, embroidered with a woolly material in gay colors. Milady need not fear any kind of weather in this cute chapeau. An exclusive advance fashion. Watch for this daily fashion feature. (U. & U.)

MRS. WILLIAM F. SMALLEY, daughter of Brockton clergyman, is now spending her honeymoon in the Holy Lands, Jerusalem.



RECORDS EARTH'S MOVEMENTS! Dr. William Wilson of England, through the invention of this device, makes it now possible to measure at once with mathematical accuracy the movements of the sun, moon and earth. The machine also clearly demonstrates the nature, number and character of the eclipses possible in a single year. (Int.)

GO EASY, SISTER! No wonder Eddie O'Hara proved such a valuable sparring partner for Jack Dempsey—see who his training partner is! Eddie boxes a few rounds with his sister every morning and says that she knows more about the boxing game than half the experts. The young woman herself, known on the stage as May Devereaux, says that boxing also keeps her in good condition

AN ELABORATE TROUSSEAU has been selected for Miss Ann Wickes Craven of Rhode Island, who will shortly wed Lieut. Rodman de Kay.

CAN YOU CHANGE A DOLLAR, LADY? Irene Anderson, of the "Tickle Me" company, says this coin slot has the old "first national bank" beat a mile. Ideal for getting change in the dark, she says.

UNEMPLOYMENT PARLEY CHANCE FOR HOOVER

Powers of Commerce Secretary as Organizer Will Be Shown, Hapgood Says

By NORMAN HAPGOOD.

Staff Correspondent of the Boston American.

Washington, Sept. 24.—The unemployment conference that opens here on Monday will begin by organizations. The principal business of the first general session will be the appointment of committees. It is in committees that the important work will be done.

There are two ways of approaching the evil of unemployment. One is to think up detailed pieces of work that can be hurried forward just now to meet the present emergency.

That part of the work is in its nature not likely to be promoted at general public meetings. It will be worked out, as far as it can be worked out at all, in rather small committee meetings by business men and city officials.

KINDERGARTEN WORK.

The other half of the work is clarifying thought about the permanent conditions that make for unemployment. This is not going to be more than kindergarten work, for the simple reason that on this subject the business world is prepared only for the kindergarten.

To the majority of employers it is mere destiny, arranged somehow by a beneficent Providence, that there should be no certainty in the life of a laboring man.

They could understand that it would be unreasonable to expect a bookkeeper, a stenographer, an editor, a superintendent, to be off one day and on the next, not knowing whether to count on 300 days' work in a year or 150. But they feel no obligation to arrange industry so that a manual laborer in a great industry can count on as regular a life as a bookkeeper has.

HOOVER'S OPPORTUNITY.

This conference calls especially for the powers to which Mr. Hoover owes his eminence. He is by nature an organizer, and therefore the committees into which the conference will immediately resolve itself will be kept busy, and busy on relevant and important matters.

Also he will be well qualified to judge the reports of individual delegates as to the possible opportunities for, temporarily increasing employment in their special spheres.

He is doing real thinking on the fundamentals and is therefore fitted to instigate the delegates toward at least a beginning in studying the steps that may lead to a lessening of the greatest evil of modern life.

It may not seem the greatest evil in life to members of the other classes, but a laborer never knows certainty about the food for his family, about the shoes his children, about the rent that keeps the roof over their heads.

FACES TWIN SPECTRES.

Uncertainty of employment in his prime, loss of employment altogether in his age, those are the twin spectres of his life and both are wholly unnecessary.

In the name of impossibility, human nature, laws of economics, sacredness of property, God knows what, there has in the past been opposition to legislation about safety in factories, about hours, about health, about pure food and pure drugs, about cocaine and about alcohol, about contagious diseases.

We are past the kindergarten in those fields. But if we begin to apply the same kind of intelligence to regularity of industrial life we shall seem like anarchists.

INFLUENCE OF STEEL.

Suppose, for example, that I made the following statement to Judge Gary: "The Steel Corporation, in the present depression has again proved itself an evil influence.

"It should have begun steadily lowering prices nine months ago. Later it should have begun to lower wages. It should have kept running to the full, producing pig iron, semi-finished products, and staples like steel rails.

"Thus would its vast financial resources have been put to justifiable use for storage purposes. By its practice and its example it could have gone far to introduce steadiness into industry.

USED WRONG POLICY.

"What did it do? It looked about six inches ahead. The policy of maintaining prices and wages would have been a wise one if only a short panic were in question. Since a long period of depression lay ahead, it was grievously wrong.

"If one has permitted to him the power of a god, then on we have the right to expect from him at least the understanding, if not of a god, at least of the highest type of man."

To me, speaking thus, what would Judge Gary answer? Probably he would call me a journalist, and grunt something about ignorance and impracticability, even as in the centuries that are gone.

TO PRODUCE CAMPHOR OUT OF TURPENTINE

New Orleans, Sept. 24.—Professor P. Giraudet of the University of Paris and Loyola University, New Orleans, has announced discovery of a process for manufacture of synthetic camphor from turpentine. Application has been filed for a patent which will relieve the government from the present Japanese monopoly, he states.

SOCIETY HAPPENINGS OF GREATER BOSTON

Warm Weather Holds Many Cottagers at Newport

Miss Consuelo Bates, formerly of Boston and now of New York, spent the Summer in Ipswich, Mass., at "Redledge," the estate of Mr. Armistead K. Baylor and Mrs. Baylor, Miss Bates' mother.

MISS CONSUELO BATES

By BETTY ALDEN

The warm spell with which the weather man is favoring Newport is not being allowed to go unappreciated. These last few days exclusive Bailey's and Hazard's beaches have been wearing quite a mid-summer look, and not a few members of the colony made their way to the strand and enjoyed a brisk dip.

I note that M. C. Foster of Boston and Albert Frost, Jr., of New Haven number among the recent registrants at the Newport Casino. Both men are the house guests of Mrs. Robert Grosvenor.

From the Rhode Island watering place comes also the news that the Robert W. Lovetts are bound for their Winter home in Boston, having closed the McCagg cottage on Gibbs avenue, which they occupied for the Summer.

During their stay in Newport both Dr. and Mrs. Lovett took an active part in the social life there. Mrs. Lovett played a prominent part in arranging the large outdoor benefit held last month at Freemont Park for a three-fold benefit—the Newport Hospital, the Civic League and its vacation committee of New York. Practically all the social lights of Newport's Summer colony were in attendance at the affair, which proved to be one of the most fashionable and important charity events of newport's entire season.

Dr. and Mrs. Lovett's Winter residence is at No. 7 Fairfield street.

Mrs. Calvin Austin of the Tudor, Boston, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Denison D. Dana at Brookside, in Great Barrington. Other guests of the Danas are Mrs. Waldo Richards and Mrs. Grace L. Middleton of New York.

A New York wedding of interest to Bostonians is that of Miss Antoinette Nott Dorr and Henry Knox Hardon, which takes place this afternoon at St. Mark's Church in New Canaan, Ct.

The groom, who is a graduate of Harvard in 1912, is the son of Henry Winthrop Hardon and Mrs. Hardon, formerly Miss Cora P. Burr of Boston. Mr. Hardon is a member of the Harvard, University Clubs. Miss Dorr is the daughter of John Van Nostrand Dorr of No. 871 Park avenue.

Following the ceremony this afternoon there will be a reception at the country home of the brides parents, "The Ledges."

Mrs. William F. Wharton of No. 169 Beacon street, is at the Curtis Hotel in Lenox on account of the serious illness of Miss Nancy Craig Wharton.

The Charles Sumner Hamlins of Washington and Mattapoisett, Mass., are entertaining Captain C. J. Hendy of the British naval staff. Friends of the Hamlins were very sorry to hear that the daughter, Anna Hamlin, was taken quite ill with appendicitis while she was staying at Bar Harbor, Me. At present Miss Hamlin is back with her parents at the Mattapoisett home and is convalescing very nicely. Both Anna and her mother are members of the Chilton Club.

The Bretton Woods, in the White Mountains, are proving as irresistible a magnet as ever for society folk. I note that Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lawrence Kennedy of No. 249 Commonwealth avenue have arrived at the Mount Washington Hotel. The various hostelries nestled among the White Mountains are filled to overflowing with guests from all parts of the country who have come to enjoy the Autumn season in the mountains.

BOSTON FIRM LOSES $30,000 IN MAINE FIRE

Eastport, Me., Sept. 23.—A three-story wooden building occupied by Dennett & Prince Company of Boston, manufacturers of leather heel lifts, was burned today together with $10,000 worth of stock ready for shipment, all raw material, tools and machinery. The total loss of $30,000 was partially insured. Seventy-five persons were made idle.

FIGHT AGAINST GEN. COLE IS STILL STRONG

Root Bending Efforts to Keep Legion Outside the Bounds of State Politics

By CHARLES O. POWER.

North Adams, Sept. 24.—While the forces which are carrying the banner of General Charles H. Cole are still holding their advanced position in the battle for the State commandership of the Massachusetts American Legion, they have not routed the forces of the opposition. The latter are stubbornly contesting, but they are without the benefit of leadership.

The Boston man has been keeping in the background and allowing his lieutenants to handle the situation for him. The fight must be decided today and the Suffolk County leaders say that when General Cole takes his seat in the convention this morning he will have a clear majority lined up with him.

Personally General Cole has not asked for a vote. Suffolk and Norfolk Counties are pledged to him by formal vote and Middlesex is favorable to him.

ROOT TO FIGHT.

Essex County is still for Colonel W. H. Root of Haverhill and Worcester County is still staunch for Colonel Thomas F. Foley of Worcester, even against his repeated urgings to his friends to cease their activities.

Root said early today that he would not withdraw for Cole, but would fight to a finish. He does not think the highest honor in the State Legion should be placed in the lap of any man who has not been an active worker for the Legion.

Col. John F. J. Herbert is not supporting the candidacy of Gen. Cole, and he is one of the popular figures of the State Legion. As a matter of fact, he is taking an active part in the campaign to find a strong candidate against Gen. Cole. With others he tried until a late hour to gain permission from E. Loring Swasey of Taunton to launch a real boom for him.

Commander Dunn was awakened early yesterday morning by a delegation composed of men from various sections of the State and appealed to strongly to stand for another term. He positively refused to be swayed from his expressed determination not to run again. Late last night another delegation called upon him and endeavored to get him to change his decision. He listened to their arguments and again politely, but firmly, refused to permit the use of his name.

RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED.

Among the resolutions adopted are the following:

That men who fought in the Allied armies be eligible for membership in the legion when they become American citizens.

That all post bookkeeping be audited quarterly.

That the women's auxiliaries be thanked for their cordial and helpful co-operation.

That delegates to the National Convention be instructed to work and vote for the reaffirmation of the legion's four-fold adjusted compensation bill.

That the same delegates support a resolution expressing regret over the action of President Harding and the national administration in using influence to have Congress postpone action on this bill.

That the government speed up its punishment of slackers, especially of Grover Cleveland Bergdoll.

That a sincere expression of sorrow over the death of Fred W. Galbraith, late commander of the National Legion, be spread upon the State records and a suitably engrossed copy sent to his widow.

That the Ku Klux be condemned as un-American.

That Marshal Foch of France be the guest of the State Legion at some time during his coming visit to this country.

National Commander John G. Emery and National Vice Commander Thomas J. Bannigan will address the convention today and tonight will be the guests of honor at a complimentary banquet in the Greylock Inn, Williamstown, which will be attended by State officers and other invited guests.

PROMINENT LEGIONAIRES AS HARMONY SEES THEM

ALLEGED SLAYER ARRESTED IN WINCHENDON

Winchendon, Sept. 24.—After walking through the woods twenty miles, Wallace Dodge, who shot and killed Robert A. Walker in Keene, N. H., following an argument over wages, was arrested here early today at the home of his sister, Mrs. Addison S. Whitney.

Dodge told Chief of Police Callahan that he killed Walker in self-defence. He said he got through on the highway job at Keene yesterday and asked Walker for his pay.

He claimed Walker, the foreman, told him to "get out of here," and believing he was about to be attacked, pulled his revolver and fired.

Dodge had an automatic gun on him when arrested. He was about to go to bed in his sister's home, ten minutes after arrival, when he was arrested. A knife with a four-inch blade was open on the table. Dodge made no resistance.

'ZERO' WILL ASK EXPOSE OF WAR PROFITEERS

By Associated Press.

New York, Sept. 24.—Urbain Ledoux, "Mr. Zero of the auction block," today announced that he would go to Washington and appeal to President Harding to publish a list of war profiteers with the hope that they would split half of their earnings with destitute and unemployed war veterans.

The request will refer to those who made more than 100 per cent. profit. Ledoux said he would leave New York tomorrow night after a communication from unemployed at Central Park and would seek an interview with Presidant Harding and Secretary of Commerce Hoover.

"I shall give each of them meal tickets," he added, "and I may also take some human documents along with the hope of procuring an interview in the White House, where the President can hear from the bottom of the men's hearts their story."

From Washington Ledoux plans to go to Buffalo to help unemployed lake seamen, and the visit Chicago and probably St. Louis.

JAPAN TO TAKE ADVICE ON U. S. QUESTION

Viscount Chinda May Be Chief of the Disarmament Delegation

Tokio, Sept. 24 (By the Associated Press).—Japan will consult with other members of the League of Nations relative to the desire of the United States to receive equal treatment in mandate islands of the Pacific as a feature of the settlement of the Yap question, it is said by newspapers here. Japan will also study the American claim to land ownership in Yap, as foreigners do not have the right to land ownership in Japanese territory.

Definite decision has been reached that the chief of the Japanese delegation will sail for the United States on board the steamer Kashima Maru on October 15. The steamer will take up America as number of Japanese business men, who will proceed to England after visiting the United States for two months.

It is believed that Japan is awaiting information regarding the character of the British and French delegations before finally deciding on the man who will act as chief at the Washington conference. There are reports that Premier Hara is attempting to induce Viscount Chinda, former ambassador to the United States and to England, to accept the post.

Another meeting of Japanese Field Marshals and the Supreme War Councillors has been held, and the Yomiuri Shimbun declares the army's attitude on the limitation of armaments is as follows:

"Japan will maintain her already settled principle of national defence, and no change or alteration will be made until the time arrives when international disputes and trouble can be settled without relying upon, or resorting to armed force. This is because of Japan's particular national status, and the situation which exists in the surrounding states."

Leading newspapers declare that it is the intention of army and navy authorities to propose definitely the reduction or abolishment of fortifications in the Hawaiian Islands, the Philippines and Guam in exchange for the dismantling of Japanese fortifications on Formosa and the Pescadores Islands, and at Port Arthur and Donin.

BEAUTY PARLOR MUST DROP "MARINELLO"

A decree was issued yesterday by Judge Morton, in the United States District Court, directing Mrs. C. Lamping-Nolan to refrain from using the word "Marinello" in the future in connection with her business as a "beauty specialist" at No. 462 Boylston street.

The decree is the result of a suit in equity filed some time ago by the Marinello Company of Wisconsin and the National School of Cosmetician against Mrs. Nolan for alleged infringement of trade name. The plaintiffs alleged that in connection with her business the defendant used the word Marinello and name of the Marinello Company. In the original complaint the plaintiffs asked for $10,000 damages, but the amount was waived. Costs were apportioned between the plaintiffs and the defendant.

10,000,000 RUBLE BILLS ARE ISSUED BY SOVIET

Moscow, Sept. 24. (By the Associated Press).—The Soviet government announced today a new issue of 5,000,000 5,000,000 and 10,000,000 ruble bills, good only till July 1, 1922. These large denominations are necessary because of the impossibility of carrying millions of rubles in small bills, it was announced. At the present official rate the dollar is worth a little less than 49,000 rubles.

SAFETY LANES FOR ALL WHO WALK

"No Accident Week," which begins Monday, will inaugurate safety lanes for pedestrians in the shopping district.

Since hursday night employes of the Public Works Department, under the direction of traffic officers, have been painting the outlines of these lanes, working at night.

To the traffic police will fall the duty of keeping pedestrians within these boundaries. Failure of "jaywalkers" to obey the traffic orders' instructions may result in prosecution, according to the police.

At the junction of Boylston and Tremont streets signs have been painted on the pavement for the guidance of drivers unfamiliar with the regulation that has been in force there for the last three months.

WARNING TO DRIVERS.

On the north, east and south side of this corner has been painted the warning, "No Left Turn Here." The only left turn permissable here is from Boylston street and north into Tremont street.

Three thousand delegates will come to Boston for the tenth annual Congress of the National Safety Council and the State-wide observance of No-Accident Week.

The Congress will open Monday night at the State House and will end on Friday.

Accident-prevention work in the mines, railways, railroads, auto trades and practically every form of manufacturing industry will be discussed by the experts.

DISPLAY BY POLICE.

A series of no-accident demonstrations will be made on Boston Common every noon of the week. On Monday, the new State Constabulary will give an exhibition drill. On Wednesday, the Boston police traffic squad will display its wares under command of Captain B. J. Hoppe. On Thursday, the Boston Fire Department will hold forth.

Mayor Peters will be the host of a reception and dance at the Copley Plaza Monday night, and on Thursday night there will be a sail down the harbor to Nantasket.

Colonel Alfred F. Foote, State Commissioner of Public Safety, today announced that thirty-five leading cities of New England have already agreed to combine in the demonstrations during no-accident week. Hundreds of factories will bend their energies to running the week without an accident. Every street railway and three railroads have promised co-operation.

Safety-first classes will be held for 350,000 school children. A safety message will be printed on 250,000 milk bottles. About 75,000 safety-first posters have been printed.

REV. LEAVITT H. HALLOCK IS DEAD IN PORTLAND

Portland, Me., Sept. 24.—Rev Leavitt H. Hallock, well known as a Congregational clergyman, a writer and lecturer, is dead here. He was the grandson of Rev. Moses Hallock, the first preacher at Plainfield, Mass., and was born in that town in 1843. He had occupied pastorates in Connecticut, Washington, California and Minnesota.

GANNA WALSKA BARRICADED IN PARIS

Paris, Sept. 24.—Returning from Dieppe Friday, Ganna Walska drove in a closed limousine to the mansion at No. 14 Rue Lubeck, where she remains barricaded against all comers.

Even her husband, Alexander Smith Cochran, who arrived soon after from the Hotel Ritz, found the door shut tight. The janitor had orders "not to admit anyone, no matter who."

Cochran returned to the hotel after being thus informed by the janitor through a hole in the barred door. Other inquirers were told that she had not arrived.

Meanwhile Mrs. Harold F. McCormick is on the George Washington nearing the coast of her homeland after nine years of exile in Switzerland. She is said to be going directly to Chicago.

Harold F. McCormick remains in Paris, but though he is retaining his suite at the Plaza he has not been visible recently. His secretary said, when asked about his whereabouts, "I am looking for him myself."

According to the best information Walska's divorce action is due to come up in November, with her millionaire husband fighting every step of the way.

Spencer, f.b.				The line-up follows:

Harvard served a double bill to football lovers at the Stadium. The Crimson eleven played against Boston University and then Middlebury College. Each game consisted of four periods, each of eight minutes. The Varsity A team started the first game on the honor, and the substitutions were from the Varsity C team, Varsity B, held intact, started against Middlebury.

This is the opening of the hardest schedule arranged for Harvard in years. The double bill started at 4 o'clock and it was planned to have the first game and intermission over so that the second game started at 4.

The final practice was held yesterday. It was hard and it was long. The backs and the linemen were given long instructive talks by Head Coach Bob Fisher.

Neither Tierney, regular centre, nor Clark, fourth string man for the pivot position, had practiced, but Kunhardt, Bradford and Kernan were available for the two games. Kunhardt had practiced at tackle, but because neither Tierney nor Clark could play Kunhardt was shifted to the middle of the line.

Mallory, r.h.b.		Moulton
Jordan, f.b.		Bowels

New Haven, Conn., Sept. 24.—With an average weight advantage of forty pounds to a man in Yale's favor, the Elis were to tackle the little Bates team in the opening game of the season in the Yale Bowl.

Seldom has such a gigantic assortment of tackles, guards and centers been assembled as that which sports the Blue this year, and should any of the first string array be called upon to leave the game a substitute of almost equal poundage will replace him.

Just how the team from Bates would work under the tremendous handicap they were to face was the chief topic of discussion, and it was generally predicted that the game's first period had been completed the Pine Tree outfit would be in such a way so badly that they could furnish little opposition to the Eli team.

Coach Jones planned on work at least three sets of players in the course of the fray. The combination expected to start the game was: Diller and Sturm, ends; Into and Qualle, tackles; Hidden and Price, guards; Norris, centre; Becket or Murphy, quarterback; Captain Aldrich and Mallory, halfbacks; Jordan, fullback.

Of this number, Diller, Sturm, Into, Qualle, Herr, Becket, Aldrich and Jordan, were members of last season's varsity squad, while Hidden, Norris and Mallory played with the freshman team last fall. Murphy played freshman baseball but was not a candidate for the yearling football team last year.

Other Elis to be seen in action as the game progresses were: Hollister, Cutler, Lincoln, Deaver, and Blair, ends; Cross, Storrs and Mackay, tackles; Cruickshank and Davis, guards; Landis, centre; Neidlinger, Wright, Speidel, Hart, Knapp, Harris, Herman and Ged, backs.

Bates was to send an almost green line into the contest, as only two of its regulars of last season remained in college. The Bates backfield boasted greater experience but did not favorably compare with Yale's.

DARTMOUTH OPENED WITH NORWICH ELEVEN

Hanover, N. H., Sept. 24.—Head Coach Jack Cannell was expected to try out several candidates for each position in the Big Green team when it faced Norwich in the opening game on the new gridiron of Memorial Field today.

The scrap for varsity positions has been keen in virtually every position during the preliminary practice, with at least two and in some cases three men of apparently equal possibilities striving for the honors.

Shurtleff, who alternated at guard and tackle last year, was named as centre for today's contest; Spellman, a sub fullback of last year, and Synott, a former sub centre, were the guards; Gulian, a varsity regular, who tips the scales at 210 pounds, and Reynolds, a former sub fullback, were the tackles; Monk and Schmidt, two regulars of last season, was to represent Brown today in its opening game with Rhode Island State College at Andrews Field.

Bates, withdrawal from school or scholastic or disciplinary troubles, took all but "Mike" Gulian and Shurtleff, of Coach Robinson's 1920 varsity. Johnson, the dusky-skinned Nemo team, was ineligible for disciplinary reasons by the faculty. An excellent array of varsity substitutes and new material, however, is on hand at Providence, and the initial showing of some of this material in today's game was awaited with interest by Brown enthusiasts.

Shurtleff, who alternated at guard and tackle last year, was named as centre for today's contest; Spellman, a sub fullback of last year, and Synott, a former sub centre, were the guards; Gulian, a varsity regular, who tips the scales at 210 pounds, and Reynolds, a former sub fullback, were the tackles; Monk and Schmidt, two regulars, were the ends; Eisenberg, a new man from DeWitt Clinton High, New York, was at quarter; Dodd and Shupert, former subs, were at the halfbacks, and Marshall, a great all around back from Feddie Institute, was at full.

This combination carried much more weight than have previous Brown teams, and as there are many other husky linemen and clever backs in the squad, a reasonably heavy and efficient team was in prospect.

Among the many promising candidates who were to be used by Coach Robinson in the course of the game were Green and Mallory, ends, from last season's squad; Smith and Taylor, tackles, from Hamilton Institute and Kent's Hill School, respectively; Hinkle, 210-pounder, from Shurtleff; Eckstein, 189-pounder, from Elmhurst, Ill.; Barrett, former sub of last year, guards; Meyers, from Laurel Main High, Pennsylvania, a World War vet with three citations for bravery on his record, quarterback; Sullivan from Worcester Academy, Sweet from West Philadelphia High; Ferry, from Wayne, Pa.; Higgins, from Thayer Academy; Carter, the New England sprint champion; Faulkner, of last year's squad, halfbacks; and Peasche, formerly of Somerville High, and Pohlman from New Haven High, fullback.

HERMAN BEATEN BY BUFF IN TITLE BOUT

Flyweight Champion Annexes Bantam Crown in Hard 15-Round Battle

New York, Sept. 24.—Johnny Buff of Jersey City can now hang two of Pete Rickard's diamond belts in the parlor of his home. He is the American flyweight champion and the world's bantamweight champion having the last title at Madison Square Garden last night from Pete Herman of New Orleans.

The fight went the full route, fifteen rounds, and the Judges lost no time in handing to the winner, while the police helped the victor out of the ring and the roaring crowd surged forward.

Buff cleanly and cleverly outpointed Herman in a wide margin. He frequently had the ex-champ hanging on the ropes.

The new champ is a spidery little chap, with a meagre face and family responsibilities on his back. He is thirty-three years old, married and is the papa to three young Buffs.

Buff's decision over Herman was so easy that it became almost monotonous. Even when his seconds gave him a drink of bottle when he came out of the fourteenth round, he showed no disposition to defend his title.

He speared Herman through the whole battle with left hooks to the face and body. The face of the latter was weary and streaked with carmine. In the fifteenth round Buff made a punching bag out of the titleholder.

Dempsey Loud in Praise of Buff's Work in Ring

WORLD'S HEAVYWEIGHT CHAMPION.

(Copyright, 1921, by Universal Service.)

New York, Sept. 24.—A wonderful battle was staged last night at the Madison Square Garden between Pete Herman, the former bantamweight champion, and Johnny Buff, the flyweight champion.

A new bantamweight champion was created when Buff's crown was handed to Buff. Not a dissenting voice was heard, I must say Buff is the wonder of the ring.

Here is a fighter thirty-two years of age, married and the happy father of three children, winning a world's title. If anybody said a few days ago that Buff, at his age, could, he would have been given the laugh. It is a wonderful instance of what clean living can do for a man.

But broke all the known rules on colleges by winning at an age when he is supposed to be feeble. They tell me Buff was in the navy. So he doubtless should feel proud of their companion.

Buff fought a steady, persistent fight that carried Herman off his feet. The latter kept tearing in with his right, but Buff took it all and came back. He was knocked down in the fourth, but that only made him fight harder.

My hat is off to the new champion. He deserves everything that is coming to him.

It was quite a welcome the crowd gave Johnny Wilson and me. Some people may think it becomes an ordinary occurrence to get a hand. I want to say that it is just the opposite. I really can't express my appreciation.

SYRACUSE TO TRY NEW PLAYS AGAINST HOBART

Syracuse, Sept. 24.—That the Syracuse eleven will be in good condition for its opening game of the season with Hobart in the big Archbold Stadium here next Saturday is probable, as only Benny Moses, the scoring machine, is not in the best of physical condition just now. He has been suffering from an injured ankle, the result of a game when he was tripped into the ankle by an opponent. Saturday if it is necessary for Coach John F. ("Chick") Meehan to use him.

Washington Opens Season

Washington, Pa., Sept. 24.—Washington and Jefferson and Bethany College will play off the 1921 football hid here today when they line up against each other on College Field.

Last Saturday Game

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 24.—The last Saturday game on the 1921 baseball schedule of the Pittsburgh Pirates will be played at Forbes Field today when Pittsburgh meets Philadelphia.

GUILFORD NOW IN LINE FOR GOLFING TITLE

By FRANCIS OUIMET.

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 24.—Bobby Gardner, of Chicago, twice our national champion, the golfer who last year came so near bringing the British amateur title to America, no near that he was beaten only at the thirty-seventh hole by Cyril J. H. Tolley, stood yesterday as the human bulwark between the American title and a possible British victory. He turned back Willie Hunter, the man whose victory over Bobby Jones Thursday had put the title in jeopardy.

Not only did Gardner beat Hunter, but he did it to the tune of 5 up and 4 to play, and the cheers which greeted the victory were evidence that those in the gallery fully appreciated the significance of the victory.

While the British champion, Hunter, was going down before the skill of the Chicago ex-champion, Charles Evans, Jr., was experiencing similar reversal at the hands of Jesse Guilford, the Bostonian siege gun, who in military parlance, "kept his powder dry" and got the range on Evans from an early stage of their match.

Such a day to play golf.

We were all awakened in the morning by that atmospheric alarm clock, thunder, and found that the rain was coming down hard. There was a time, just before the semi-final matches started, when it looked as if the skies might clear and the matches be played under normal conditions overhead, even if the turf was soggy on fairways and putting greens.

But such did not prove to be the case. The rain kept on coming, and at the outset the U. S. G. A. officials took the wise decision of having balls cleaned on the putting greens up lifted if imbedded in the fairways.

Players, especially, and some of the galleryn who had seen the four golfers in action who were in the semi-finals realized that conditions were favorable for the mighty hitters. The sturdy athletes of the Gardner and Guilford type There is no doubt about it they began the day with a distinct advantage in weather conditions.

They are two of the most tremendous hitters in the world, amateur or professional and their ability in this department was almost sure to tell in the ordeal of 36-hole matches even if not decisively over the first 18 holes.

So it proved. Hunter, who had proved himself a great fighter, a man who had the heart of a lion in the pinches, against Bobby Jones, was struggling all the way against Gardner and in the end had to succumb, although he did put up a valiant fight at the finish.

Starting the afternoon round three down he became four down at the first hole, yet worked off two holes before Gardner got started at the sixth and never let up until the match was in the bag.

Gardner won the sixth, seventh and eighth in a row, two of them in par and one was a birdie, this birdie coming at the eighth where his terrific drive was almost to the green, near enough for him to catch up and sink a putt for the three, which put him five up.

He had the misfortune to top his second to the long ninth, but here was a case where the British champion could not get home in two and where the former American title holder could miss a shot and still get on the same number of strokes as his opponent for a halt.

Much the same story applies to Chick Evans' match. It must be said that he was not handicapped quite so much on distance as he was by the fact that he was not playing his irons quite up to his usual standard and that he had much the same sort of a putting rebuke that had been true of many in this championship. He learned early in the day that he was up against a man of iron nerves and one who was not overimpressed with the thought that he was up against the national champion.

Jesse Guilford, whom I know of old as a golfer who is not afraid of any other man, west coast champion, who has on occasionally missing a shot through a slippery grip or a slipping of the mashie or niblick—for that they did not count much against him in a 36-hole affair and putting with a sureness that was refreshing.

BOGASH DEFEATS EAGAN IN HARD FOUGHT BOUT

BY JACK CONWAY

Joe Eagan showed flashes of his old time round tussle with Louis Bogash at the Commercial A. C.'s show at Mechanics Building, but the old spurt was missing in the latter part of the tussle and as a result the Bridgeport warrior grabbed the decision.

It was a hard, tough fight. At times Eagan performed in brilliant style and the big crowd that witnessed the affair cheered as lustily as if a couple of champions were in the ring. Eagan has certainly come a flop in our fair village, but he is nevertheless a favorite with the boys who pack the Parish. Maybe it is because Joe possesses an abundance of class and at times furnishes the fans with more thrills than they usually get at ring battles.

Bogash was way out front during the first four rounds. Eagan fought a defensive battle during this stage of the mill. Some people in the audience began to get inkind as to intimate that Blondy Joseph was going to do a kellyhemmish.

Then Eagan got started. He tossed a couple of hundred dozen kinds of punches at Bogash in the fifth, sixth and seventh rounds, one battled back desperately, but Eagan either knocked down his rival's blows or sidestepped cleverly, given an ovation at the end of each round.

Then the tide of the conflict began to turn. Bogash cast caution to the well-known winds in the eighth frame and kept punching away as if a king's ransom depended upon his efforts. Eagan fought back courageously and honors were fifty-fifty.

The gruelling battling of the eighth round told on Eagan. Bogash, on the other hand, was strong to the end. His fast pace in the ninth round and easily took the honors. Eagan was in poor condition when he went to his corner. The tenth session also saw Bogash out front.

Barney Rivers won over Billy Gutshall in the semi-final of ten rounds. It was a rather tame bout.

Barney Rivers won over Billy Gutshall in the semi-final of ten rounds. Johnny Sheppard disposed of Young Donahue in eight frames.

The Armory Club is preparing to handle the largest crowd to see a boxing bout there since Kid Kaplan and Muggsy battled. There is so much rivalry between Siegel and Shevlin that it's apparent that everybody interested in the boxing game is eager to be at the ringside when these two welterweights enter the ring.

Paddy Flynn, rugged Everett welterweight, is now under the management of Tom Flynn of Charlestown, one of his relatives. "Irish Paddy" proved he is still a capable fighting person when he recently won over Sailor Darden. Tom Flynn announced today that Paddy would like to secure a bout with Louis Bogash. A meeting between these men would furnish plenty of action as neither believes in giving ground to an opponent.

SALEM DEFEATS DANVERS IN OPENER

First School Football Game an Easy Victory for Witch City Eleven

Salem, Sept. 23.—Salem High opened its football season with a victory over Danvers High at Donovan's Field yesterday, 56 to 0.

The visitors were outclassed in all departments and not once did they threaten to cross Salem's goal.

The feature was a field goal by Gorman, who booted the pigskin from a difficult angle near the twenty-yard line.

The game was witnessed by a crowd of 1,000.

STRONG PHELIM CARD FOR ARMORY SHOW

Nate Siegal and Eddie Shevlin will be supported by twenty-eight rounds of boxing when they battle in their ten-session contest at the Armory A. A.'s show at Mechanics Hall next Tuesday night.

Matchmaker Alex McLean announces he has signed Young Sacco of East Boston to meet Young George Gardner of Lowell in the semi-final of ten rounds.

Neil Chapman of Chelsea and Kid Kansas of Providence will mingle in another ten-rounder, while Young McDonough of South Boston and Dan Hickey of Brockton are down for travel eight rounds.

Siegal is training at Weyland for his tussle with Shevlin. The latter has shifted his training quarters to Al Delmont's gym.

TWENTY SCHOOL TEAMS PLAY IN FOOTBALL BATTLES TODAY

By FRED C. LANE.

The barrier, on interscholastic football, was lifted today for the youthfull pigskin chasers. Twenty teams of Massachusetts' leading high schools lined up in games preliminary to what promises to be the biggest year ever experienced by the schoolboys.

The game scheduled today acted as starter for contests of several weeks' duration in the future. Today's clashes acted as information to the coaches desirous of seeing the green material in action. Not till much leagues as the Suburban, North Shore, Mystic Valley and Private School open, will the public and followers of the sport realize what is in store in scholastic lines.

The leading contest on tap is the Medford High-Lawrence High clash, which will be played at Medford at 2 P. M. This will be the only chance Coach Mansfield will have to see his lads in action against a team outside the league. Both organizations have been strengthened considerably over last year and should furnish a contest filled with thrills and exciting moments. The order comes the Everett High-Brockton High contest that will take place at the Everett High grounds. Coach Gardner Hasen, who has been teaching the Everett youths for two years, is presenting an eleven that will throw fear into the hearts of other coaches of the league.

Brockton, which comes here with a heavy team, is out to get revenge for the defeat they suffered last season, when the local lads won with two touchdowns to their credit, while Brockton went scoreless. Johnny Noonan, the slippery quarterback, will not appear in uniform owing to an injury sustained in a recent baseball game.

In his place will step Clyde Maylor, a half back who has been showing rare ability in the daily scrimmages. Coach Hasen is placing his hopes on the stout heart of the youngster, who bids fair to be the Suburban League afire with his sensational broken-field running.

Coach Gardner McDonald will lead his lads against Woburn High, who this year presents the strongest team in the history of the school at the Malden Athletic Field. Malden will enter the fray as favorite but Coach Lewis, who this year has taken charge of the Woburn team, promises a surprise.

Captain Donald Linscott, playing the fullback position for his second term, will be seen through with his usual touchdowns as the line that promises to open up a big gap in the 165 pounds. This one item will be a big factor in deciding the winner. Reading, who displayed with two first string men on the injured list. In addition it has no experienced substitutes. The contest should prove to be a hummer.

Real football weather is assured by the cool breezes which will help in no small way to make the many games a success. Ideal weather.

Last year Haverhill fans travelled to their Stadium to observe how large a team Haverhill High would roll up on the rival team, for outside of the Newton contest all the tallies that were run up on the late lamented graduated from Haverhill High leaving big gaps to be filled from new on the followers of the Brown and Gold will attend to see which lands on top of the pile.

The schedule starting with New Bedford High on Saturday is a tough one, such rivals as Waltham, Malden, Brookline, Lynn Classical, St. John's Prep, Brockton and Manchester, N. H.

Pollard, a brother of the former Brown Harvard Harvey, an old St. John's Prep star, and Captain Connors, one of the bright lights of the "whalers."

The Haverhill eleven is built around Captain Connors, the lad who last year was reckoned the greatest open field school boy football star in the State.

In connection at Haverhill with the football season, the new St. James School Park, a five acre athletic playstead, the main feature will be the Saint-Boston College High. The result will eliminate one or the other from the claim for the Catholic High championship of the East as no one here expects the contest to go to a tie.

St. James has a husky team and although outweighed by the B. C. High is looking forward to a triumph. There are a number of green boys on the Saint team while B. C. High has numerous veterans. A crowd of fully 10,000 is expected here.

Lawrence High plays Medford High at Medford. Although the game is listed on Lawrence local schedule as a practice affair it promises to show some lively playing. The Medford High warriors will enter the game minus Georgs Bradley, Conroy and Hanley who is out of the contest through leg injuries.

Evans, right back, and R. Smith, left end, are the mainstays of the eleven, also out of the game through injuries. A new man, Thompson, will play either position.

The Lawrence High lineup will be: Left end, Bradley, Hi; Yelle, Thompson, c; Gulersian, rg; Sirois, rt; Leahy, re; Bradley, qb; Wade, lhb; Higgins, lhb, and Smith, fb.

The Lexington High will play Needham High at Needham. Lexington, with a veteran eleven, under the captaincy of Quarterback Edward McKenna, is showing promising, and Paul Ryan, former end on the Boston College squad, who is coaching the team, looks for a successful season.

AMHERST STARTED WITH SPRINGFIELD Y. M. C. A.

Springfield, Sept. 24.—Local football enthusiasts anticipated a real battle when the football men of Amherst and Springfield met on Pratt Field today.

The game appeared to be the one contest in the East in which the scores were to be piled high, as there was much speculation as to the probable winner.

Amherst, now being coached by Wesley "Moose" Englehorn, the former Dartmouth and All-America tackle, who last season was assistant coach at Boston College, boasted an almost veteran line, but showed many holes in the backfield.

Adams, a tackle, was the one new player in the Amherst line—the remaining tackle, both guards, both ends and the centre having already had one or more years on the varsity team. The loss of Wallie Zink at quarterback has caused Coach Englehorn considerable worry. His three leading candidates for the post are Clifton, Winslow and Booth, all of whom may be given opportunities in the course of the fray. Reuswig and Wing, the latter a star veteran, were at the halfback positions, and both Nail and Elliott were to be used at fullback.

Springfield was equally well off in veteran material, with two veterans ends, two veteran tackles and one veteran guard in the line, and a veteran fullback and halfback in the backfield. The new men to start were Macomber, a guard; Reukema, centre; Wood, quarterback, and either Evans, Redshaw or Bennett in the remaining halfback position. However in the Amherst has been specializing on forward pass defense, and expects to render many of Civiletto's long and accurate heaved valueless.

ANOTHER TWIN SESSION FOR SOX AND BROWNS

By NICK FLATLEY

The Browns nearly anchored themselves to third place by dividing Friday's dual engagement with the Red Sox, but another double bill this afternoon gave the natives an outside chance of pulling the Fohls back into reach.

Not much of an opportunity, but in this hectic season you can't even presume to guess what might happen. The birds who had the correct angle on 1921 baseball are about as scarce as swimming wings on the Sahara.

The western athletes are now three and a half games ahead of our Boston contenders, and with half a dozen or so remaining on the schedule they are preparing to spend their section of the series split.

• • •

Had the Browns anything like consistent pitching in midsummer, they would now be walking away from the Yanks and Indians. The team isn't the smoothest affair in the world, but it packs a terrific punch and is certainly steadier than the wallowing contenders.

• • •

Herb's Pennock and Sam Jones, the best of the Duffy hurlers, were ready to chuck at the invaders today, while the later had Bayne and Palmero lined to make their clutch on their present perch a mathematical certainty.

These are days of free hitting, and lovers of the lusty smash are afforded an ultimate chance to have a day of it. The Brown outfit does not appear again until 1923.

• • •

The Sox and the Browns made a terrible assault on the averages to celebrate their initial double-header in the final series here. Base hits were as frequent as hills on the first of the month, and before the balls ceased swinging some fifty-three blows had been hammered on to the records.

That terrific uprising resulted in an even split, the boys from the far parts getting the first tussle, 16 to 3, and the natives collecting the nightcap, 10 to 8. Ten runs were nothing at all to the bludgeoning athletes.

• • •

'Twas a very nervous p. m. for all the pitchers, except Urban Shocker. He moistballed through the opening spasm with his usual efficiency and effrontery. No was dented for two runs, all there at the time in the second stanza. Then he tightened and the Sox quit firing.

• • •

Bullet Joseph Bush toted his sixty record of nine straight into that explosion, and when he went away from there the record was ended, and there were enough St. Louis runs around to win a pennant.

• • •

The Browns opened on Joseph in the third, and never let up till he retired, after the sixth. Then they took a few socks at Russell, just for luck. No man, or pitcher, could have stemmed that wild assault.

• • •

Those invaders faded out in the second pastime, though, after they had saluted Karr with a three-run revolution right under the guns. Pitcher Vangilder was pelted all over the lot, and young Kolp, who succeeded, was hammered even harder.

• • •

The Boston sharpshooter returned to earth after the initial chapter, and pitched good ball to the wire. His three-run handicap was erased in the fourth, when the Duffys spattered five runs across, and thereafter Bennie rode along without any worries.

• • •

Shone Collins was the day's big swatter with six blows, three to a game. The collection had two doubles and a triple in it.

• • •

Severeid whacked out three two-baggers and a single in the first affair, and nic ed a mono-sack in the second. Nemo Leibold had four out of four in the finale: Jacobson got five hits and a sacrifice—and all in all, you can see it was a slugging afternoon.

YANKEES NOW HAVE BIG EDGE ON INDIANS

New York, Sept. 24.—Defeated in the opening game of the "Little World's Series," the Cleveland Americans now face the task of taking three straight from New York in order to wrest first place from the Yankees.

Today's battle is an important one. A victory for the Yankees would mean that even if they lost four of their final eight games, the Indians would have to win all their six in order to finish first.

A victory today for the Indians would bring about a virtual tie, with New York leading by less than two points.

Waite Hoyt's splendid pitching against the Indians yesterday increased the confidence of the New York followers, as he will be available again in the final game Monday.

The young twirler struck out seven men and was steady except in the fourth inning, when two runs were scored. In the first inning he fanned Jamieson, Wood and Smith.

Babe Ruth, whose three two-base hits figured prominently in the victory, scored three of the four New York runs.

Firatbaseman Johnson of Cleveland had only four putouts while centerfielder Wood of the same club made five, three of them in one inning.

Manager Speaked of the visitors still is troubled with his leg, recently injured. He batted for Coveleskie in the ninth inning and raised a pop fly to Peckinpaugh. Speaker limped in running to first.

Gardner and Sewell were the only Indians to get more than one hit, the former making two singles and the latter, a triple and a single.

HOLY CROSS-DARTMOUTH GAME NOT ARRANGED

Worcester, Sept. 24.—Although the Springfield Chamber of Commerce would like to stage a Holy Cross-Dartmouth football game in Springfield, November 5, there isn't a chance of such an attraction, according to Cleo O'Donnell, graduate manager of Holy Cross, who says Dartmouth has definitely decided it can't play the Purple on that date.

WORLD SERIES GAMES MUST SUIT LANDIS

Baseball Commissioner Given Power to Stop Games if Not Up to Standard

Chicago, Sept. 24.—World's series of the future will have to suit Judge K. M. Landis, baseball commissioner, or he can stop the series and award the championship to which ever club he desires.

Copies of the new book of rules defining the authority of the commissioner have been distributed and their contents became known today.

Under a specific rule the commissioner has the right whenever he deems it in the interest of baseball, to terminate the world's series and to declare one of the contesting clubs the winner, regardless of previous performances.

In other words, a club might have won more games than its opponent and still be deprived of the title should it be guilty of any performance contrary to the best interests of the game.

The new rules also prohibit members of pennant winning teams in other leagues from engaging in barnstorming tours. Judge Landis is given final authority to fix prices for the World's Series.

Under the new rule fifteen percent of the receipts of the series goes to the commission funds; sixty percent goes into the pool of the contending players and the clubs finishing second and third in each league.

Seventy-five percent of this goes to the contending players, sixty percent to the winners and forty percent to the losers. The remainder is split sixty percent to the second place teams and forty percent to the third place teams.

BROOKLINE DEFEATS WINTHROP IN OPENER

Brookline High opened its football season with a victory, handing Winthrop the short end of a 7 to 0 score. Winthrop proved a big surprise to the chances of Coach Henry Carroll who anticipated a walkaway for the Sun Mush hard work impossible.

Says Exercising Will Make You as Fit as a Fiddle, but Who Wants to Have a Shape Like a Violin

Doctors claim that every man should take some kind of exercise as soon as he gets out of bed in the morning. Some men's idea of exercising is to yawn a couple of times.

But they get so tired yawning that they have to go back to sleep again.

It's the "Setting up" exercises that are good for them but it's the "Bending down" exercises that they like.

If you can't have the dumb-bells in the morning, don't worry, you'll probably meet a lot of them during the day.

One guy was so dumb he thought that Indian clubs were the Order of Red Men and the Pocahontas Lodge.

Exercising will make you as fit as a fiddle but who wants to have a shape like a violin?

You must have a lot of fresh air in your room but you can't get it by leaving the closet door open.

Fifteen minutes' exercise every morning will make you want to work all day, but who wants to work all day?

A cold bath is refreshing.

Some men like to scald themselves standing under a boiling hot shower, it feels so wonderful when they turn it off.

An ice cold bath in the morning will make you sleep all night, but after you take it the first one you stay awake all night worrying about the next.

Some men get so used to taking cold baths that they can't stop. They say they can break themselves of the habit is to sell the bathtub.

You should also work up a good stock of self control in the morning. This can be accomplished by trying to get a telephone number from the operator.

If you can't get it this way ask the manager to send your bill.

After you go through all of these exercises you feel like a million dollars, but you may have to borrow a quarter to eat breakfast on.

RUTH TELLS HOW HE MADE HIS HOME RUN RECORD

By BABE RUTH

The pitching figures for the closing season confirm what I wrote early in the year about having no more fear for one pitcher than I have for another. It is true some of them tie me up in knots from time to time, but I mean I don't have any special tricks up my sleeve for Walter Johnson or Red Faber that I do not use on every other pitcher.

This is not said in a bragging spirit or intended to take away credit from any of the star pitchers I have faced. It is a matter of confidence and experience, backed by results that eliminate all disputes.

Of my fifty-six home runs this year, in only four instances have I secured as many as three off of the same pitcher. One of these being Eric King of Speed, Walter Johnson; the other three were Danse of the Tigers, Caldwell of the Indians and Shawkey of the Browns.

The fact that fifty-six circuit swats were collected off thirty-seven different pitchers shows that I have no "easy marks" or particular favorites.

There was a time when I did considerable thinking as I faced the powerful speed ball wizard of the Senators and later it from me, I nor anyone else in the American League have anything but a wholesome respect for his terrific speed today.

In his last game against the Yankees at the Polo Grounds, Johnson had as much smoke for seven innings as I ever saw in my life.

Last year I had a tough time knocking him for one lous homerun. This season, the first time I faced him, I drove the first ball he pitched, out of the park. Since then I have added two more circuit swats and a couple of hits on the side.

• • •

In four games I gathered five hits while the big fellow slipped me a base on balls four times. On three occasions he set me down with three strikes but I believe the season's figures are in my favor.

• • •

Zachary a teammate of Johnson's is a sensation in the pitching averages, but he has crossed me more than many of the stars. I believe he has struck me out more than any other pitcher this year and so far as I remember has only walked me about seven times in the season.

• • •

When it comes to the walking evil, there is no particular class of pitchers more guilty than the others. In many instances it is the manager on the bench and not the pitcher who is to blame. Lee Fohl of the St. Louis Browns must have a mania for base on balls because Shocker and Davis give me more free tickets than any two pitchers in the league.

• • •

I have heard several times that Ty Cobb is panned for instructing his pitchers to "pitch" to me. In other words, to take a chance and fool me, if possible. Well, if that is true, I don't know how they can—in all the free transportation I receive from Howard Ehmke, unless he just gets particularly wild when I come to bat.

In this connection. I recall one afternoon last July, when Ehmke deliberately passed me three times in succession.

From the way Cobb was wagging the high sign out in centre field, it was clear that Ehmke was following instructions, and not giving me a chance to get near to the ball.

While Dixie Davis and Ehmke have walked me about seven times apiece, fellows like Jones and Rommel seldom give me free transportation, and yet I get more home runs off the former pair, despite less opportunities.

My quarrel is not with the pitcher who for strategic reasons or under emergency instructions gives me four wide obes in a pinch. But many a pitcher purposely walks a good batter, in order to keep his number of hits per game at a minimum, which after all is the true and important appraisal of pitching value.

CUB ROOKIES JUST TOY WITH THE BRAVES

Killifers Have Merry Time in Beating the Mitchmen by 13-5 Score

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 24.—Will Killifer's Cub rookies had a merry time, with the aid of a few veterans, yesterday, winning the opener from the Braves, 13 to 5.

They pounded the offerings of Handsome Hughey Mcquillan for fifteen hits in six rounds, then added another hit and marker when Cooney was batting.

Kaufman, recruit right hander, who hails from Chicago, and who pitched this season for Winnipeg, was master of the Braves all the way, although ten hits were off them in the sixth round, netting four runs.

MRS. MALLORY MEETS MRS. RAYMOND TODAY

New York, Sept. 24.—Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory national champion defeated Miss Edith Sigourney of Boston in the semi-finals of the Ardsley women's tennis tournament in straight sets at 6—1, 6—0. Mrs. Edward Raymond defeated Miss Marie Wagner in the other semi-finals match by the score of 6—4, 6—4.

Mrs. Mallory and Mrs. Raymond will meet this afternoon in the final round of the tourney for the Ardsley Challenge Cup at Ardsley-on-the-Hudson. Both Mrs. Mallory and Mrs. Raymond have one leg on this trophy, which is now in the possession of the latter, and a victory for either player here within a single leg for permanent of the unusually handsome silver cup.

Grid Games Wanted

The Jeffries A. C. of East Boston have reorganized and are seeking games with any 115-125-pound teams in the State. St Mary's and Sacred Hearts of East Boston, and Ronans of Dorchester preferred. Manager Joseph M. Barry, No. 234 Webster street, East Boston. Telephone East Boston 1-646-M

The Auburn Bulldogs of Cambridge have started football practice and will be ready to meet all comers soon. Bill Burns, a former Ridge Tech star, has charge of the coaching and with stars as M. Eagen, Al Fellows, Frank Richards or Ridge and Mc. Carty and Carter of Latin has promised a better season this year, if such a thing is possible. The average weight of the team is 125 pounds, nineteen years old. For games please communicate with Roy Richards of No. 28 Valentine street, Cambridge.

Over forty candidates have reported to Coach Dave McAndrew, former Dartmouth back, who is coaching the Brighton Legion football team. A scrub and signal practice will be held in the Braintree Legion field Sunday afternoon. The following backfield is working together and will play against Abington Oct. 1: S. Brodbine, r. h., former St. John's Prep back; Russ Pratt, former Rockland end; Joe Atkins, former B. U. tackle; Tubber Dugood, former Malden U. guard. These men will prove a strength on the line.

We are looking for a good centre, preferring a Legion man. Write Manager Gasset at Braintree Legion.

We challenge any fast team in the state for saturday and Sunday games.

The Fitton Midgets, of East Boston, challenge any 118-120-pound team in and around Boston. The Indian Midgets, Hunnewell's of Brighton or the St. Mary Juniors preferred For games write Bob Keogh, 96 Falcon street, East Boston, or call Post Boston 654-J.

HOW TO DOPE WINNERS IN WORLD SERIES

By HUGH S. FULLERTON

Here is where the Dope—the Grandoldope—starts to reveal to you which team will win the world series. The object of dope, in baseball, is not especially to discover which team will win the series, but to discover which is the better, but to discover which will win the series.

The doping of a world series is greatly different from the doping of teams in the season. In season we are compelled to figure the strength of each player of each team, and then to figure his attacking strength against the pitchers who probably will pitch against him during the season. The fact sticks out that the strength of any ball player is not only his own strength, but the strength of the opposition.

In doping a world series the task is simplified because we know from the form and the condition of the pitchers of the two teams, their style and strength, which will work against the opposing team. We have then the problem of figuring what a man whose hitting power, speed, cleverness and general ability are known ought to do against the kind of team and the kind of pitching he will meet.

It is not enough to say that the Giants are a better club than some other club and may be true. But baseball is full of instances of clubs that can beat six other clubs in a league and still be easy for the seventh.

• • •

If the White Sox, for instance, had only the Yankees to beat they would be champions instead of tail-enders. If the Brooklyns had only the Giants to play, the championship would be on the other side of the bridge.

• • •

We who are baseball fans, and perhaps students of the game, are in the habit of saying that So-and-so is batting .300 or .350, without regard to figures—which is not true.

The status of the dope is peculiar. First we must take each player, study his official averages on the season thus far, figure them in ratio to the showing of the same player for many preceding seasons. It is not enough to figure that a batter hits .320 this year; we must figure that he can hit so-and-so against Southpaw pitchers.

It is rather ridiculous to figure that because a batter hits .290 against the run-of-the-mine pitchers he can hit that same percentage against Johnson and Red Faber.

• • •

It is rather ridiculous to figure that because a batter hits .300 against certain pitchers he can hit that same percentage against Mays and Shawkey. In other words, it is necessary to figure man against man, pitcher against batter.

• • •

There has been a lot of jibing about dope on the teams. It is necessary to explain the system by which we work out the chances of success. I have evolved a system of dope which has worked out for a score of years.

We must commence with some sort of basis. If we figured the attack and defence as equal there would be no figuring whatever. It has been demonstrated by the figures of a score of seasons that the attacking force is 54 per cent. of the total strength of any team and the defensive force is 46 per cent.

If the attacking value is worth 50 per cent. and the defensive force 50 per cent., then no run ever would be scored. On the basis of runs scored, in proportion to putouts, assists and errors, based upon a strict official record basis, then the proportion is 52 and 48.

The normal is 54 and 46. Perhaps there is a variation this year due to the resiliency of the ball, which may increase the value of the attack. Even so, the value will not vary much.

In studying the value of any team we must follow the following procedure. It is not enough to say that Pipp is superior to Kelley. We must analyse the men and their work by detail, admitting that Pipp's average heads that of Kelley, we must figure long drive, speed, runs scored, runs batted home and the hitting of each man against the kind of pitching he will encounter

It is not enough to figure that Pipp's average is higher against the kind of pitching he had had to meet in the American League; we want to know what he probably will hit against the kind of pitching he will encounter in the series.

The average of each player for the season is not a good criterion to judge the series. We must figure what he will do against the kind of pitching he must face.

In other words, we must forget what the team was that won the championship in its own league and proved its superiority; it might not be the best team in its own league to play the champion of the other league.

In other words, the St. Louis Cards might be a better chance to win the world championship than the champions of the National League are, and the St. Louis Browns might stand a better chance of winning than the American League champion.

I have evolved a plan for doping teams which eliminates the greater part of the improbabilities of the dope.

This is based entirely upon the official figures, as shown in the work of the players, and the only aim is to figure the chances of players against the kind of pitching they must encounter.

• • •

I figure this way: The defensive value of any team is 50 per cent. of its total strength; the offensive value is 50 per cent. Take each team, and the attacking strength of each man is one-ninth of the total attacking strength.

• • •

In figuring the defensive strength of players, it is not fair to figure that each of the nine players is one-ninth of the defensive strength.

First we must take each player, study his official averages on the season thus far, figure them in ratio to the showing of the same player for many preceding seasons. It is not enough to figure that a batter hits .320 this year; we must figure that he can hit so-and-so against Southpaw pitchers.

It is rather ridiculous to figure that because a batter hits .290 against the run-of-the-mine pitchers he can hit that same percentage against Johnson and Red Faber.

VOSHELL AND RICHARDS BEAT COAST NET TEAM

Chicago, Sept. 24.—The West assumed the lead at the opening day's play of the East-West tennis championship series when Clifford Herd of Evanston and Howard Marshall Allen of Seattle, Washington, won their single matches. Eastern representatives annexed the doubles match. The score stands two matches to one in favor of the West. The net scores are:

Clifford Herd of San Francisco defeated Arnold Jones of Providence, R. I., 3—6, 6—1, 6—4. Marshall Allen of Seattle defeated Carl M. Fischer of Philadelphia, 6—4, 6—4, 5—7, 6—1.

S. Howard Voshell of Brooklyn and Vincent Richards of Yonkers, N. Y., defeated Robert Kinsey and Willis Davis, both of San Francisco, 6—3, 3—6, 8—6, 6—2.

"THEN we have to go over to Jersey, and have it done there," she told me. "But don't you have to live in that State a certain length of time before you can get a decree?" he asked a trifle disturbed by the air of illicit plotting about what he had already begun to regard as a movement toward rehabilitation.

"No, not in Jersey. I'm almost sure of that. But if I'm wrong we'll have to find a State where you don't. And I won't use my stage name of Throssel but my own name of Rodier, Mrs. Roger Arthur Rodier, which is pretty well revered in the trade."

"Yes, it ought to be pretty well revered," he had agreed, but admitted with a flash of antagonism which he was not quite able to suppress something not in defiance of the law but in accord with it. They had taken advantage of her many or less tedious friendship with a friend of a friend of the Justice of the Peace, in a remoter town who had announced his willingness to make things smooth for them, though he invited a note too inviting train-trip a tiresome wait at a junction point, a stupidly prolonged tour of investigation in a dripping and odoriferous "cab," and a half-hour of solemn jocularity and dissimulated high tension in an unspeakably stuffy office which smelt of stale tobacco.

All this Torrie endured with a thoughtfulness and alertness through which the sensitized Storrow probed in vain for some touch of reproof. Her face was whiter than usual, he noticed, when he slipped the ring on her finger.

Storrow noticed too, that Torrie's fingers, as he took them, were trembling. The wedding ring was shaking a little. And on the way back to the city in a day-coach which was as chilly as the earlier one had been overheated, the same momentary pallor overtook her as she drew the ring from her finger and shoved it away in one corner of her leather handbag.

"You shouldn't do that."

"Why not?" she asked.

"They say it's bad luck,' he reminded her.

"I'm yours Honey, whether it's on or off," she said as she crowded up closer to him. That movement was apparently undertaken for the sake of warmth, both of the body and mind. He stared down at her, oppressed by the whiteness of her smile. Then a surge of love went through him, pity for her at his sheer incompetence to engineer any joy, any tenderness into a situation from which women instinctively expected splendor.

To Work Again

He took possession of her hand, hungrily, and held it close in his under a fold of his coat, wondering how, in the days to come he could compensate her for that loss. He remembered that she had even forbidden him to send flowers to her room and had shrunk from his suggestion of a dinner in state at one of the Fifth avenue hotels. They could have all that, she contended later on. And in the meantime she had him.

Once home again, however, Torrie found a note from Krassler requesting her that the two dance gowns had been decided on that afternoon and that Madame Kavoni could not be kept later than five. This meant a hurried call from the wedding ring was shaking a little. And on the way back to the city in a day-coach which was as chilly as the earlier one had been overheated, the same momentary pallor overtook her as she drew the ring from her finger and shoved it away in one corner of her leather handbag.

Will Marriage Interfere with Their Careers?

OWEN STORROW, sculptor and writer, working in New York to achieve fame, meets, casually, Torrie Throssel, a strikingly handsome girl, who has had a few small parts on the stage. Hermann Krassler, a producer, has faith in her ability, and casts her for a bigger role. Meanwhile, Storrow and she have been living in studios next door to each other, and their relations have been such that Storrow asks her to marry him. She consents. Was Storrow's motive one of fear on seeing how Torrie appealed to other men? Torrie expressly stipulates that she must be free to go on with her work. Is a break inevitable, or can they both pursue their careers independent of each other without making a rift in their wedded lives?

was the possessor of a husband had yet crept hope to her.

Still swayed by a restlessness which seemed beyond his control he went out to dinner. He ate alone, oppressed for the first time since his advent to the city by a consciousness of his isolation Then he just as moodily wandered along Forty-second street to Broadway and its hectoring skysigns, pausing with the crowd before the shuttling street traffic of Times Square.

With every that were idle and not altogether free of antagonism, he edged back against the curb to make way for a limousine which admitted of no argument as it imperiously cut the corner. Then his diffused resentment focussed into a sudden startled stare, for in that limousine he clearly caught sight of Torrie and Herman Krassler.

He watched the car sweep down Seventh Avenue. His first quick flush of resentment gave way to a feeling of humiliation which he found it hard to define and equally hard to master. What impressed him most was the frank enjoyment on Krassler's face. And the more he thought of this the more a slowly enlarging suspicion grew up in his mind He dreaded to formulate that suspicion But the wings of it carried him back to an earlier scene in the Alwyn Arms

He was half way home, in fact, before he even dismissed his unwordedfears by making a pretext to end them. or if the worst come to the worst, to confirm them. Turning at a pay station, he called up the theatre where he knew Krassler's company usually rehearsed, and making his inquiry as curt and casual as he was able, asked if a rehearsal of "The Seventh Wave" was taking place there tonight. This theatre, it was promptly explained to him over the wire, was being occupied by a cow, with an evening performance under way "The Seventh Wave" people could be found rehearsing down at Asbury Ho. somewhere lower beneath Alwyn

Storrow as he continued his way homeward found clearing as above him He had been fo of course There was nothi tragic in the fact that Krassler had given Torrie a lift in his car That was an accident, and nothing more. He pondered emergency cropping up in the course of the day's work. It was his own fool's readiness to resentment that could ha called the tragic part of the thing

Making Plans

But, alone in his studio that night, Storrow gave a great deal thought to the situation immediately confronting him He also arrived at a number of decisions One of them was that Torrie would have to give up Vibbards studio He had no intentions of seeing his wife dependent on an outsider for even a temporary place of abode

And later on, he also decided he would see to it that Torrie gave up the stage. He would settle down and work hard. Storrow told him self, and that would make up for any sacrifices which Torrie might have to face. For, as she said, the only things that really counted was whether they loved each other or not. That was the vital thing, and of that, thank heaven, he nursed no shadow of doubt.

He reached out, absently, and picked up from his table the silver backed hairbrush which Torrie, with her light-hearted contempt for orderliness, had left between his books He turned it over and over in his hands. As he held the brush closer to his face he caught from it the heavy, capitary odor that Torrie affected, and he visualized her before him. It prompted him to look at his watch, again and still again, wondering when Torrie would get back

It was 2 o'clock in the morning when Torrie returned. She came in quietly, and triumphant, with her habitual little coo of delight as she discovered that Storrow had waited up for her. But he did not run to him with her habitual wing-flutter of the arms as he had half-expected her to do. She stood arrested and a trifle chilled by the solemnity on his face

"It's an awful hour, isn't it?" she said, and hesitated for an instant before she added "I thought you were never going to get through the thing."

"How did you get home?" asked Storrow without looking at her

"In a taxi with Mattie Crowder," explained Torrie as she looked about for a cigarette. "Krassler

The Story of an Ambitious Young Sculptor Who Goes to New York to Win His Way said he'd give me a lift this far, but I preferred the taxi."

"And were you able to snatch a bite on the wing?" he next inquired with an obliquity of which he was secretly ashamed She stopped short in the act of lighting her cigarette, studying her husband with impersonal yet meditative eyes. Then she laughed a little

"It was more than a bite, Owen, after all. That man made me eat with him. He said it was his only chance to go over a number of points he wanted to make plain to me. There were two or three of the big men there to look us over, and Krassler didn't want me to fall down at what was almost my first public performance."

Storrow found the last of the fog, the thin and chilling fog which had kept returning to his valley of moodishness, whisked away into the upper airs of reasonableness

"And how did you get along?" he asked with a relenting smile of interest Torrie sat for a moment thinking over this question

"Oh, I did pretty well," she finally replied. "I tried hard enough, but it's all new to me, I got tired in the last act and couldn't make my voice carry the way I wanted to. And the whole piece didn't go the way Krassler had expected"

A Wistful Plea

Storrow, staring at her face realized that for all her air of suppressed excitement she was utterly tired out and spent

"Poor kid!" he murmured as he reached for her hand She seemed to have been waiting for some such signal or movement from him, for the tension went out of her body and the blankness out of her eyes. She did not get up from her chair, but pushed it on its heavy casters so that it stood close beside his. From this position she could lean across the padded chair-arm, against his shoulder.

"Be good to me!" she pleaded The note of wistfulness in her voice reminded him that she had been placed there at his side for protection, for sustainment. They were both, apparently, very much alone in the world lost in the heart of a turmoil and preoccupied city They were also, to all intent and purposes, without antecedents without relatives, and studying her husband with impersonal yet meditative eyes. Then she laughed a little

Such interests on such a day, would have loomed large on the horizon, would have made themselves momentous in that furtive suburban ceremony which already seemed something faded and faraway. And this prompted Storrow to wonder if their own speedy return to the earlier state of things, leaving so little to show for their hurried journey into New Jersey, was the reason that their marriage was already appearing so remote and so phantasmal

Torrie was still too wide awake to think of sleeping So they made tea, broke sandwiches and drank bottled beer together. Storrow felt, at first, that Torrie's facetiousness was a trifle forced But this he gladly put down to overstrained nerves She seemed so child-like happy to be with him again that he decided to postpone all his fretfully thought-out arguments and ultimatums until a time more fitting Yet it struck him as odd that she said nothing about their marriage, that it seemed so little in her mind Her only reference to it, in fact, was as oblique as it was unpremeditated

No one can stop me from doing that now," she had proclaimed as she held his head pressed against her bosom and left the taste of beer on his cheeks on his inflamed mouth Whereupon she lapsed into silence with a small frown of trouble on her half-shadowed face.

"Then do that again," he said, to banish the frown. And she repeated the act more abundantly than before

"Oh, Lover, Lover," she murmured contentedly, like a note of music struck from drowsy strings.

STORY OF A YOUNG GIRL'S STRUGGLES

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

Copyright, 1921, Star Company

HELEN GORMAN listened in silence to the story told her

As she heard the speaker's voice and watched his pleading eyes, she had a sensation of having been needlessly cruel.

She had considered this man an adventurer who had annoyed her with his attentions. Now, when she had discovered his identity, she had believed him to be a dishonest rascal. And all the while he had been bearing the penalty of another's wrongdoings—not only to protect the memory of a friend but to shield from shame that friend's wife and child.

For he had loved the wife before her marriage And she had discarded him for a thief

Surely a man who could be equal to such self-sacrifice could not be evil.

"I did not understand," she managed to say, at last in self-excuse.

"I thought you were just a stranger who —"

"I know," he nodded "You thought that I was what is called a masher.' I do not blame you for thinking that The evidences were all against me"

A Pathetic Story

"But," she asked, as a question formed itself in her mind, "how did you happen to speak to me in the first place, since you did not know who I was?"

"Yes, I did at least I had an idea. I was determined to learn if I was correct.

"You see after the episode of which I have told you I was without a job. Naturally I was not going back to the place where I was supposed to be a thief. I was here in New York. Here I would stay

"Then I got a letter from my friend's wife telling me of her husband's death

"She knew my address, for her husband had it. She needed money and begged me to help her

"I admit that I was entirely nearly desperate when I read what she had to tell me. You know"—with a slight quiver in his voice—"that some men love only once and then too deeply. Perhaps I am one of that kind—but I would suffer a good deal for that little woman."

"You have proved it," Helen said softly

"Thank you I only mention this to explain why I was terribly shocked to learn of her loss, and distressed that she was in need Yet there was no way in which I could help her—unless I could borrow from Uncle Dan. He believing me to be a dishonest rascal would hardly do a kind thing for me—yet when I saw his name on a register of a hotel here, I was tempted to speak to him.

Why He Hesitated

"Maybe I am a coward, for I could not summon courage to call on him But I did wait around the lobby until he came out that evening Then, he looked so severe that I was actually afraid to show myself to him

"Instead I followed him. When he went into a restaurant, I did the same and took a table near to him. His back was to me, but I watched him

"The more I watched, the less courage I had

"After taking a sandwich and a cup of coffee, I was about to leave when I saw you both enter together and heard the old gentleman speak to you. He called you down in a way that shocked even me. You may remember that his voice was not low."

"I remember," Helen admitted

"Of course, I suspected that in a moment who you were. The little cousin whom I knew years ago so many years that you had forgotten all about me"

"Yes" she acknowledged frankly "I certainly had forgotten all about you"

"Well, I left the restaurant and lingered around outside until Uncle Dan came out. I hoped my courage might rise with the necessity for it

"I stepped forward to speak to him as he appeared. But when I looked into his face I stopped

"Again, you may think me a coward; but even the thought of that poor little girl's need did not make it possible for me to ask a favor of that grim-visaged man who considers me a thief. And while I hesitated, he stepped into a taxi and was gone.

COMPANY MEAL

—By Loretto C. Lynch—

THERE are times when the mistress of the home wishes to prepare something a little different and a little more expensive because "company is coming," and she wants suggestions as to the unusual

A particularly attractive fruit cocktail is made by soaking the prepared pieces of orange, grapefruit and pineapple in grape juice for an hour or so before sprinkling with powdered sugar. The fruit should be lightly heaped into the chilled glasses, the fruit itself being thoroughly chilled before serving

Asparagus soup is liked by most people. This may either be made from the fresh or the canned vegetable. The asparagus is cooked until it is soft enough to be forced through a strainer. The stock so obtained is measured There should be half a measuring cup for each serving. As much milk as there is stock is added. For six cups of liquid add two level tablespoons each of flour and butter rubbed together until smooth. Cook, stirring until the mixture boils.

The main course comes next. Fried breasts of chicken with tiny sifted peas is a good choice. It is better than roast beef or beefsteak, in that the hostess does not have to figure out if one guest will like the meat rare, another well done, and so on

If you select broiler chickens, have the butcher cut off the breasts of as many chickens as you have guests if you buy roasting chickens have but half as many breasts as there are guests

Ice cream and cake are liked by most people Sponge cake is a particularly happy form of choice to go with ice cream

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

If silk which has become dull and shabby is greatly improved by the following process: Brush well and wipe the silk, then stretch it flat on a table and sponge it with hot coffee which has been strained through a piece of muslin. Sponge on the right side, and when almost dry iron on the wrong side

• • •

Green peas should be shelled just before cooking, or they become hard

• • •

Ham, beef and veal should be carved into very thin slices. Pork mutton and lamb are cut thicker.

• • •

Casseroles and all earthenware pans are washed in hot soapy water. Remove any marks with powdered bathbrick

• • •

To freshen sour cream, add a little castor sugar, and beat up lightly.

• • •

As soon as milk is boiled the vessel containing it should be placed in cold water until the milk is cold. No skin will then form.

Bachelor Girl's Reflections

IN his heart,

Every man thinks he knows exactly what kind of woman he wants to marry.

In his heart, every man prays—subconsciously—

"Send me, oh, Providence, a companionable woman—a CHUM!

"A woman who will love me enough to make me comfortable—but not so much as to make me uncomfortable

"A woman who understands me well enough to laugh with me—but not so well as to laugh AT me!

"A woman who is clever enough to intrigue me and amuse me—but not so brilliant and intellectual as to dazzle and patronize me.

"A woman who is good enough to reform me and inspire me—but not so saintly as to despise me.

"A woman who is big enough to command my respect—yet small and tender and human enough to call forth all my chivalry.

"A woman who is sentimental enough to be tender and kissable—yet not so sentimental as to smother me with devotion, and choke me to death with caresses.

"A woman who can soothe me or amuse me with one hand—while she keeps me in the straight and narrow way with the other.

"Who can hand me bouquets with one hand—while she holds down my conceit with the other.

"Who can mother me with one hand—while she plays golf with the other;

"Who will be my comfort and my head-rest—but refuses to be my foot-rest;

"Who regards me neither as a demi-god—nor as a demon.

"Who knows each and every one of my virtues, and loves me for them;

"Who sees all my faults—and loves me in spite of them!

"A One-hundred Per Cent Woman—

"A only per cent. Child,

"Twenty per cent. Pal,

"Twenty per cent. Mother,

"Twenty per cent. Yoke-mate,

"Twenty per cent. Playmate!"

Oh, yes,

Every man prays—subconsciously—that he may some day, somehow, somewhere, meet his Ideal Woman—

And then goes out and amuses himself with the other kind,

And awakens to find himself married to a giggle, a dimple, and a purple bathing suit'

Oh, yes, there comes a time in every man's life when he knows exactly what kind of woman will make him perfectly happy

Usually about a year after he has married the OTHER KIND!

FINDING A GENIUS

—By Brice Belden, M. D.—

A BOY who recently won the first prize in a big kite tournament was marked "dull" in the classroom and was about a year retarded

A girl who took second place in a large school exhibit of freehand drawings was "weak and unsatisfactory" in her seventh grade class.

A high school girl who was practically failed out last year as "too dull to keep up with the course" is now attracting serious attention in a needlework department of a big store, where her refined handwork is bringing special prices

So, there is genius hidden everywhere among the children of our land in the terse and among those of our habitation God's no respecter of caste or kind He has poured indiscreetly in the keeping of the ugly duckling every normal child some form of beautiful latent capacity that is altogether worth the task of training

Unfortunately, the school still insists on hunting for genius in a few book subjects, while it fails to recognize the larger field of inner light. Only by the most joyous attention to a needlework department of a big store, where her refined handwork is bringing special prices

So, there is genius hidden everywhere among the children of our land in the terse and among those of our habitation God's no respecter of caste or kind He has poured indiscreetly in the keeping of the ugly duckling every normal child some form of beautiful latent capacity that is altogether worth the task of training

Unfortunately, the school still insists on hunting for genius in a few book subjects, while it fails to recognize the larger field of inner light. Only by the most joyous and helpful child talent will have its full and equal share of training and recognition.

Let every one throw out his own peculiar testing line. Not four or five school subjects, but a thousand, and one living procedures which are necessary to keep society on its feet and moving forward.

TO ALL TEACHERS

A PLEA TO THEM AND FOR THEM

By Dr. W. A. McKeever

FOR almost the first time in a generation the public school teachers are receiving a relatively good income and are raised to a basis of economic respectability for their calling

Now, with the larger wage, there is apparently coming a happier and a more independent era for teachers, and it is suggested that we all join in a movement to make this improved status a permanent affair

Outside the domain of the household there is no other occupation for women which quite so permanently satisfies the hunger of the normal feminine heart as to labor children. It is a type of real mothering and ministering to the deep cravings of the growing mind

Wherefore, while the occasion is opportune for it, let us all boost for the new, higher type of American school teacher as a permanent institution

Let us exalt her dignity worth in the presence of our own boys and girls and the other members of the family.

Let us teach our children how to respect her for her knowledge and usefulness, and how to love her for her kindliness and sympathy

Let us have the woman's clubs everywhere take her into a closer fellowship and also ally themselves more intimately with the projects she would carry out on behalf of the young.

And, in order that the teacher herself may gracefully accept this proffered higher place of honor, let her look more carefully to the duties of her personality—always to dress attractively, to behave as a high-minded dignified person, to keep her heart and mind in tune with all the best elements of local sentiment, and to regard herself as the trained servant of the entire community

Stocks Weaken in New York Trading; Foreign Exchange Rates a Little Lower

FINANCE AND BUSINESS

By B. C. FORBES

Vincent Astor is a most serious-looking young man. He doesn't look as if he got an exuberant amount of happiness out of life. I happened to sit very near him in a restaurant the other day. I noted: that he didn't smile once; that he had a very grave, almost sad-looking countenance; that he ate a modest lunch; that he was very unostentatiously dressed; that he wore no jewelry; that he didn't spend more than half an hour in the place, although in addition to eating his lunch he contrived to look at two evening papers which he went out and bought. The first thing he turned to was the editorial page of the New York Evening Journal.

He lounges around no fashionable club as I note similar young men regularly at this quiet, substantial, not at all flashy restaurant, usually alone. He doesn't yell up for a taxi-cab in any limousine. Occasionally, on very bad days, he rides in a very inexpensive make of car showing signs of wear and tear.

• • •

Our two richest young men, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and Vincent Astor, both go in more for purposeful work than for pleasure-seeking. Young Rockefeller eschews society altogether and young Astor doesn't bother with it more than he can avoid. His wife was also interested in the things that count than frivolous, inane fashionable society. Nowadays Vincent Astor's name connected with any high jinks in the stock market. Apparently, he sticks strictly to his own vast business affairs.

Curious, isn't it, how one man will pass another in life's race? Not so very, very long ago the manager of one of New York's most notable hotels had a very industrious secretary. His boss is still filling the same position, but the secretary is now at the head of a whole string of great hotels. Among hotel men, he has the reputation of being a giant of giants. He is L. M. Boomer.

Said a hotel man to me the other day: "One of the greatest traits of my life has been to sit in Mr. Boomer's office and watch him work. He knows how to handle business. The humblest employe can go straight to his office and see him—very different from most hotel managers.

"His geniality wears off like lightning. Nothing seems to upset him. All kinds of questions and difficulties and tangles are thrown at him at short notice, but somehow he finds a way to get everything right. A young man could learn more from working in Mr. Boomer's office for six months than he could learn in four years at a business college."

• • •

I once asked Coleman Dupont why he was investing so heavily in hotel properties. He instantly answered: "Because I have a man who knows how to run hotels, the right way and with the profit—Boomer."

The time keeps that man busy on two hotels. Mr. Boomer is not only running Mr. Boldt's two hotels, the Waldorf and the Bellevue-Stratford, at Philadelphia, but Mr. Boldt's dozen more great establishments.

Building up a reputation often strikes us as being a painfully slow process, but success nine times in ten comes from the right kind of reputation. The thought of this the other day on visiting a dentist. He was first recommended to me fifteen years ago. He then attended to all his patients himself. He did quite excellent work that everyone who went to him advised other friends to patronize him. He has now so much business that he employs a number of other dentists to help him to cope with his enormous practice. While I was in his place last week I ran into the vice-president of a very large industrial corporation, and he remarked to me that he was there because the president of his company had recommended this particular dentist to him.

Yes, the principle of the building the best mouse trap statement attributed to Emerson, sold goods in every walk of life. To "arrive," deliver the goods.

When George A. Gaston, the upbuilder of Boston, Williams & Wyckmore, was ousted I predicted that some day he would come back. I now hear that Mr. Gaston is completing plans to get into the ring again. Next time, in my opinion, he will come to stay. He has no man in the financial or business world I would trust more implicitly, and there are few men in this country who know more about such as he does about how to go after foreign trade. America needs men like Gaston and will need them still more badly as time passes. This country has practically given up the fight for fresh foreign markets, so discouraged are most of those who put their fingers burned when the war boom exploded. Gaston can look beyond the present, and, looking, see inspiring possibilities.

Like Durant, F. A. Seiberling is preparing to get into the game again. He is not to start with a tremendous splash. Seiberling and Durant have been the closest of friends ever since Seiberling stood by Durant during the latter's fight to retain control of General Motors. If Durant becomes a very large producer of automobiles, he may again put a lot of business in Seiberling's way.

Wall Street, by the way, is skeptical of Durant's ability to come back in a big way as a motor manufacturer. Wall Street's idea is that Durant pays too much attention to the stock ticker. It is not impossible, however, that having learned a bitter lesson, Durant hereafter will keep away from the stock ticker.

OILS LED THE REACTIONARY MOVEMENT

Prices Higher at Opening and Profit Taking Follows; Rails Fairly Steady

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Stocks were rather weak in New York at the close, losses out numbering gains two to one. Profit taking mainly accounted for the recessions. There was a rally near the end of the morning. Trading was of a good volume for a Saturday, the substantial thing about 235,000 shares.

Oils were heavy to the end but got above their lowest level. Rails remained fairly steady. Foreign exchange rates ruled a little lower. The New York bank statement showed a decrease of $21,966,316 in surplus reserve.

UP AT THE OUTSET.

Stocks were higher at the opening but changes were small excepting Royal Dutch, which started with a decline of nearly two points. Burns Brothers sold at a new high for the year after a sale of 100 shares. It is estimated that the merger of this corporation with the Farrel Coal Co. will produce net earnings of $3,000,000 a year. After a few minutes the selling movement was initialled, selling and the market sagged until late in the morning, when it was irregular at 10 o'clock. Rails were dull early feature, being higher as a rule and comparatively active. The Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis or "Big Four" road was soon up two points. There was a heavy tone to the securities of low-priced carriers. Columbia Gas was one of the strongest issues on stock list. Sumatra was among the weakest.

OILS IN A REACTION.

In the latter of the session oils were reactionary and Royal Dutch sold ot almost five points, while Mexican Petroleum sagged more than the three and Texas-American preferred. Allied Chemical was one of the few issues to advance in the second hour. Sales were more active on the decline than on the advance.

Leaders were Baldwin, Mexican Petroleum, Southern Pacific, Royal Dutch, International Paper, Crucible, Southern Pacific, General Asphalt and Reading. One minor change Baldwin is that it has been bought for a long turn by big interests. While the market weakened this morning it may be said that sentiment was more bullish at the close. Recessions today were due mainly to profit-taking by professional traders.

Dividend Declarations

General Motors Corporation declared quarterly dividends of 1¼ per cent, payable December 1 to stockholders of record October 15, and 1¼ per cent, payable January 3 to stockholders of record December 15. R. S. & E. Knight declared quarterly dividend of 2 per cent, payable October 1 to stock of record September 24.

Republic Rubber Company declared quarterly dividend of $1.75, on preferred, payable October 1 to stockholders of record September 15.

Pacific Mills Company declared quarterly dividend of 2 per cent, on $6,150,000 preferred, payable October 15 to holders of record September 30.

Procter & Gamble Co. declared quarterly dividend of 3 per cent. on $5,000,000 preferred, payable October 15 to holders of record September 30.

Pilarim Mills declared quarterly dividend of 2½ per cent. each on preferred and common, both payable September 30 to holders of record September 15.

Penn Traffic Company Co. declared extra dividend of 10 cents in addition to regular dividend of 40 cents, both payable October 20 to stock of record October 4; quarterly dividend of 40 cents, payable October 15 to stock of record October 4.

Wall Street Briefs

International bankers may submit to the government a Treasury note issue of $500,000,000 in gold to promote European credit facilities, it is stated in Washington.

A sent on the New York Stock Exchange will be posted at the rate of $3,000 from $40,000, an advance of $3,000 from the figure in force since July 1.

Bids for 10,000 tons of pig iron to replace locomotive boilers lost in the Atlantic coast fire were obtained from the War Finance Corporation by railroad executives, it was learned. Eastern railroads are too low for foreign competition, and will not be considered, it was stated.

The meeting of stockholders of the South Penn Oil Co. has been called for October 5 to vote on increasing the preferred stock from $10,000,000 to $10,000,000 was authorized on October 6.

Railroad Items

The 1920 net corporate income of the Rutland Railroad was $297,267, equivalent to $1.41 a share earned on the $8,955,000 outstanding preferred stock, against a deficit of $1,183,783, or $6.20 a share in 1919.

The Pennsylvania Railroad operating ratio was 99.83, comparing with 77.18 in July.

The Interstate Commerce Commission has class 1 railroads paid a total of $899,684,786 in salaries and wages in August.

The Erie Railroad Company reports deficit after charges and taxes of $2,528,461, against net income of $1,911,000 in 1920.

The New Haven Road owns about 50 per cent. of West End Street Railway securities and is vitally interested in the Wall Street situation, it was declared by Wall Street. The way may declare a dividend of $1.50 or $2 a share on the common stock.

The Interborough Rapid Transit Co. for the six months ended June 30 reports net income of $1,000,000, equivalent to $1.66 a share on the stock as compared with $7.77 for the corresponding period.

SWINDLERS GOT 250 MILLIONS IN NEBRASKA

Spillane Tells How Whole State Was Combed by Wild Cat Speculators

By RICHARD SPILLANE

On the road, Sept. 24.—Stories of the swindles practiced on Nebraskans in the period of inflation that challenge credulity if they were not well supported by evidence. The facts are being presented now to the Grand Jury of Douglas county by C. A. Davis, attorney general, and it is expected indictments will be found against 100 or more persons, among them bankers who heretofore have been held in high esteem.

It is estimated that the sharpers took $250,000,000 out of the state. They combed the State and missed no section.

SOME QUEER FINANCE.

Some of the things they put over were queer indeed. There was a wagon factory in which $1,000,000 was listed at $16,000. They turned it into a so-called potash plant with a capital of $3,000,000 and unloaded it without much trouble. There was a so-called rubber plant established in Brookings, S. D. It was in a hayloft and employed two men. It was moved to Omaha for establishment in $10,000,000 and millions of dollars of stock sold. It never manufactured a tire.

Oil companies were formed throughout the State, especially for oil in Oklahoma, Kansas and Texas. The stock purchasers have nothing but worthless shares for their money.

There was a big project for the building of a great bank structure. All there is of it now is the name on the shares.

A music house with $5,000 capital was launched as a phonograph factory with $2,500,000 capitalization, and so well was it received that some of the shares sold at $125.

JUST TOOK THE MONEY.

There were cattle loan companies that loaned no money, but evaporated with the investors' cash, and packing house projects that did no packing except with the money of the unwary loan.

It is alleged that bankers advised the swindlers of good "prospects." They are now termed "bird dogs," for they flushed the game for the hunters. Men heretofore of excellent reputation are among the accused. Various gentlemen have been indicted have gone to other parts of the country.

As one man describes the craze: "The people didn't think anything of a wagon factory with a million dollar station was less than a million."

Attorney-General Davis is only twenty-eight. He is the youngest man and those who know him say he is likely to attract national attention when he may be called upon to help know the meaning of Nebraska law.

The Grand Jury will not be limited in its work to the wheat, corn, Nebraska and Kansas there seems to have been a wildcat speculation in the natural people such as never before was seen.

It it had been an area of legitimate promotion, of honest enterprise, of worthy investment instead of crooked, illegitimate exploitation, the benefit to the effect would have been wonderful.

ONE NEWSPAPER'S WORK.

In Norfolk, Neb., there is a newspaper called the Norfolk Daily News which claims to be the world's greatest country daily. There is some warrant for the claim. Norfolk has a population of 6,000. The Norfolk Daily News has a circulation of 8,000. The News is a seven column folio, sheet of eight pages, and by reason of superior service, is able to compete favorably with the Omaha newspapers in a considerable territory.

It claims the largest circulation in the world in a city the size of Norfolk and the credit is well deserved. It gets Associated Press news and is quite metropolitan. It has been in existence more than thirty-three years and is going strong. It was founded by W. S. Gurney. Today it is owned by David Huse and Morris A. Huse.

Recently one of the Huse brothers accepted an offer to go with the American Press Association at New York to direct the activities of country newspapers. If report is true he is to get a salary far bigger than various editors of metropolitan dailies of high rank.

Boston's Wage Earners

Washington statisticians report that in 120 cities were 240,874 persons ten or more years of age in Boston engaged in gainful occupations constituting 52.6 per cent. of the city's population of 749,889. Of the gainful workers 143,481 were males and 104,384 were females. There were 79,126 persons in Worcester, constituting 54 per cent. of the total population of 179,754. Of the gainful workers, 51,961 were males and 21,096 were females.

Quiet Market for Copper

The copper market is quiet during the week, there being little domestic buying and Germany, the leading European consumer, being red metal on a smaller scale. Consumers are bidding 12 to 12¼ cents a pound, while producers of the metal are holding out for 13¼ cents for deliveries to the end of October.

Cotton Market

New York, Sept. 24.—The cotton market was under severe pressure today, opening with first prices 15 points lower to 2 points higher. The bears had the best of the day and there was a little buying from the trade. After the call values continued to decline and the market was demoralized. Liquidation was on a large scale. December sold off to 19.30, January 19.00, March 19.42, May 19.70, July 19.80.

Chicago Grain Market

Chicago, Sept. 24.—Wheat opened 4¼ to ½ higher, corn was unchanged to ¼c higher and oats ¼ to ¾c higher. Provisions opened 10c lower to 5c higher.

Opening prices were: Wheat, September 1.02, December 1.05½, January 1.08½. Corn, September 52¾, December 52¾ to 52¾, May 57. Oats, September 33¼, December 33¼ to 33¾. Lard, January 8.30.

Coffee Quotations

New York, Sept. 24.—Coffee prices advanced 7 to 9 points at the opening of the market, influenced, being: September 7.42 to 7.50, November 6.97 to 7.15, December 7.00 to 7.08, January 7.05 to 7.13, March 7.20 to 7.24, May 7.30 to 7.34.

WALL ST. GOSSIP

By MONITOR

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—Ratle dominated Friday's operations in the stock market, and although there was a fair amount of activity in the industrials the trading in numerous instances drifted toward those issues that might be expected to benefit from prosperity with the carriers. Steel Common, for example, resumed its upward move and closed above 89. One unexpected development was the strength in mining shares, particularly those with gold production. An unusually large turnover took place in Dome Mines, which sold above 20.

AMONG the Rails, Southern Pacific. Union Pacific and Reading led in activity. Lehigh Valley continued strong. Isolated examples of weakness were represented by American Sumatra and Consolidated Textile.

ANOTHER marked gain in the Federal Reserve ratio to the basis of 67.7 illustrates general attention throughout the financial district. The relaxation in the credit situation continues in the face of perceptibly though moderate revival in business, which might be expected to create a fresh demand for banking accommodations. Another feature favorably commented on is the further tendency toward ease in the money rates which approved monetary situation is believed to have largely responsible for the present strength in bonds which are now at their high average level.

RAILROAD stocks, particularly the speculative favorites, were bought in large volume on Friday and prices were active in the recent advance in the industrials. Southern Pacific, Union Pacific and Reading were the leaders, although Canadian Pacific had an excellent account of itself on buying reported for Boston account.

NONE of the high levels reached in advances of the rail group earlier in the year was exceeded, but there was a general sentiment in Wall Street that the buying movement now under way would result in previously high records being broken. Union Pacific, which has sold at 124, was within less than two points of this figure. Southern Pacific, which has sold at 103, was within a point of that price. Reading, above 73, was at a new high for recent movements. Professionals were inclined to believe that under cover of the demonstrations in the rails efforts were being made by the same people to sell the industrials.

THE American Sumatra Company reported for the year a consolidated income account of $4,783,823, as compared with $5,402,764 last year. No allowances were made for deteriorations in the worth conditions of crops. After payment of the preferred dividends there is given as equal to $5.74 per share on the common as compared with $16.91 a year ago.

THERE was some selling of the motors when the ticker announced that the Gardner Motor Company had gone into bankruptcy. The only company concerned was a sales agency. Boston operations in the motor line, the manufacturing company being in no way involved.

U. S. FOOD PRODUCTS sold at a new low record when transactions were made in the early trade. Conferences of bankers on interests identified with the company are still in progress, and it is believed that an official statement will be issued the first of the week. It is reported that operations for the month are equivalent only to the bank loans, thereby leaving practically no equity for the common. Selling yesterday was wholly liquidation.

DIRECTORS of the B. P. and R. Knight Corporation declared the regular quarterly dividend of 2 per cent. on first preferred stock. The quarterly payments on the preferred stock of the Republic Rubber Company were resumed when the directors authorized a payment of $1.75 per share. The last dividend authorized was April 1, 1921.

THE sugar stocks were heavy in Friday's market, American Sugar particularly being under pressure. Consideration of the Federal commission to maintain its present price instead of reducing to the open market level was construed unfavorably by American Sugar because of its known stocks on hand. It is felt that as a dividend paying company with the present conditions in the commodity market, there is little incentive for public buying of American Sugar.

SOME of the buying in Atlantic, Gulf & West issues is believed to be for the account of persons having knowledge of the progress being made in the settlement of the so-called Panama Canal claim, which has been leased to the company in Mexico. Some of those in close touch with the situation look for an announcement in the near future. It is expected that a final adjustment of the difficulty very shortly.

THROUGHOUT all the declines in the Industrial Products Refining has been well supported and drives made on reports of dividend reductions have proved unavailing. Friday the directors met and declared the regular quarterly dividend of $1, an extra dividend of 50 cents on the common stock, and the regular quarterly dividend of $1.75 on the preferred. The statement was made that the company is now operating at between 40 and 45 per cent. of capacity with increased business in prospect.

THE movement in rails was attributed in part to the announcement that an order for locomotives which recently bought from the government more than $5,000,000 worth of Equipment Trust certificates, disposed of the entire lot at private sale.

European Gold Shipments

The steamship Adriatic is bringing $208,000 in gold to New York banks.

Kuhn, Loeb & Co. received $1,005,000 in gold coin from Paris on the steamship Rochambeau, the shipments still being the records of the past month since January 1 up to $14,000,000.

Gold valued at $33,284,000 marks is due in New York today on the steamship Graf Waldersee. It was consigned by the Imperial Bank of Germany to the Federal Reserve Bank.

The Equitable Trust Co. of New York has just received $1,000,000 gold from France.

NEW EPOCH IN STOCK-BUYING PREDICTED

Evans Considers Possibility of Experts Guiding Speculators of Future

By C. B. EVANS.

Chicago, Sept. 24.—More study is now given in this city to investment and speculation possibilities in stock than in former years past and it took to the form and point in purchases some time; indeed a beginning has already been made.

It is an extremely hopeful situation. Two years ago, and still more, during the preceding period, the average trader saw a price and rose to it but presently found that he had to look in the jaw. The mental attitude was that the buyer could do no wrong to his exchequer. The gratifying fact has been melted out to this class is something unpleasant to contemplate.

LIQUIDATION THOROUGH.

During the past two years the more sober men have been lying low, waiting for the time when conditions would justify activity and so thorough has liquidation become that in many cases investment houses have been advised to buy into a stock which was paying no dividends and which for the time in terms would be worth $500 per share for the common stock.

BEST IN THE FUTURE.

This looks a bit extravagant, but its meaning is that the future of the country has a future and in its present liquidation is getting ready for its best there is in the future.

There are a hundred stocks, including the preferred list, whose material resources and profits are subject to these investigations and which the group brought in correct will in due time pay purchasers at present prices large profits with the passing of months. But this will take months, in some instances years.

GOOD TIPS.

The outlook is mainly on the industrials. There are instances here of bankers selling the stocks of these concerns because they are in need of Winter coming on and they know that the profits that are now accumulated in full, but they will have the depressing spectacle of large numbers of men out waiting for a job. The studious outsider goes on buying just the same.

GOOD TIPS.

There are some evidences that a good turn will come sooner than even the hopeful expect. A highly optimistic statement came this city who has just visited Detroit notes a remarkable uplift in the automobile industry and in the spirits of the people. Others are remarking the moderate change for the good in the Calumet District in and near Chicago where the great iron and steel works are located.

Even the attitude of the banks is changing. They are now inviting rather than discouraging loans on stock collateral. Partly, this is due to the release of funds heretofore tied up in other directions. "There is plenty of money" say the brokers, "and it is now only a question of time when the Christmas trade will yield to the now inevitable course of events and then will be

WRITER VIEWS FIRST STAGE OF FAMINE

Sees Many Faces in Russia Already Yellow From Hunger Poison

By MARY HEATON VORSE

Noted author commissioned especially by Universal Service to visit the famine district of Russia.

Copyright, 1921, by Universal Service.

Moscow, Sept. 24.—Relayed via Riga, London.—We left from Saratoff with President Kalinin and his party over forty versts—twenty-seven miles—of dust-choked roads to the chief village, Alexandrovka.

Along the way we met carts with women and children sitting on high piled household goods, while the men drove the starving cattle. Occasionally we passed a peaceful peasant encampments where we got glimpses of the first stages of famine.

We passed field after field of withered cucumbers and blasted tomatoes and potatoes. The wheat and rye was all gone and there was almost no fodder.

We stopped in a tiny hamlet to visit a member of the local Soviet. The house, the pleasant court yard and the outbuildings, were as neat as the best American farm.

The living room had a handsome ikon in the corner. Groups of family photographs ornamented freshly papered walls. A posterman hung over the wide door to a bed room from which came cheerful baby prattle.

There was a dresser and a china closet filled with crockery. Only a Victrola and Ford car were missing from the picture to make it seem an average American farm.

The peasant was like the fine American type—square-chinned, with a wide forehead. A grandmother brought a crock of milk and glasses. Apples were passed by the children. The small crop of apples came from a tree near the well.

The house was not that of a rich peasant—only a moderately well off one.

We want next to visit the head of a village of 700 people. The Soviet house resembled a village school house. Children's work had just passed. The walls were covered with agricultural posters, pictures of tractors and farm machinery.

A meeting was held under the dusty apple trees.

The news flew around the village: "Kalinin is here." Big peasants in their Sunday clothes and brawny barefooted women hurried from all sides.

Many faces were already yellow from the hunger poison. Many of the children were pale. Although conditions here were the best in the entire famine areas.

Everyone sat on the ground in a circle. Chairs were brought for the guests, but the others sat down on the ground, bunching sunflower seeds.

MORE MONEY FOR WIFE ORDERED BY COURT

Bridgeport, Ct., Sept. 24.—If Henry Brecklin, No. 98 Wall street, wants better dinners and more of them at his home, he will have to give his wife more money for housekeeping expenses, Judge Comley decided. Brecklin was arraigned on a charge of non-support. He pleaded that he had been "roped into marrying" because the woman, who is now his wife "fed me wonderfully before the ceremony." Mrs. Brecklin complained that since her marriage her husband had not given her a cent for household keeping or any other expenses. He was ordered to pay her $5 weekly.

PHONE INFORMANT SOUGHT BY POLICE

Worcester, Sept. 24.—Police today are searching for the strange woman, who, refusing to give name or address, called up Mrs. Walter Smith of No. 1 Milton place last night and told her that the reason Irving Smith, the young son of Mrs. Smith, had run away from home was because his mother had not "treated him right." The stranger also said that she knew where Irving is hiding, but declined to tell.

DRY AGENTS IN QUANDARY OVER WINE ORDER

Up to Courts to Decide on Alcoholic Contents, Says Potter

When does fruit juice become "intoxicating in fact?"

Elmer C. Potter, Federal prohibition director for Massachusetts, says he does not know; that it is a matter for the courts to decide.

But if any one sells any "fruit juice," containing more than half of 1 per cent., Director Potter says they will be subject to arrest.

Prohibition enforcement agents say they are in a cloud as to what the new ruling on manufacturing fruit juice means. Director Potter said he does not know any more about it than the vague edicts from Prohibition Commissioner Hayner in Washington given out. From these he has prepared an "explanation" to answer inquiries.

"The head of a family," he said, "may, by registering with the collector of internal revenue of his district, manufacture as much as 200 gallons of non-intoxicating fruit juices per annum for family use, free of tax.

"But a tax will be imposed on any amount containing more than one-half of one per cent. alcohol, which is manufactured in excess of the 200 gallons allowed.

"In the event of manufacturing without registering with the collector of internal revenue, tax is incurred upon the entire amount manufactured. The tax may be doubled in case the product is intoxicating, in fact."

In other words, the head of the family may manufacture all the fruit juice containing as much alcohol as he desires, provided it is not intoxicating. He is allowed to make 200 gallons without paying any taxes, but on all juice above 200 gallons and containing one-half of 1 per cent. or more alcohol, he must pay a tax.

Potter pointed out that it is against the law to manufacture wine in the home or elsewhere for beverage purposes.

At the prohibition enforcement office it was said that no interpretations had been received from Washington on the fruit juice matter.

ONE DEAD FROM FALL; ANOTHER IS DYING

Daniel E. McAlpin, No. 1 Galena street, Roxbury, a Boston fireman, is dead, and Thomas J. West, three years old, of No. 8 Kettredge Park, Roxbury, is dying at the City Hospital with a fracture of the skull, as the result of two separate accidents of the same nature. Both fell thirty feet to the pavements. McAlpin was dead when picked up, after dropping from the roof of his mother's house at No. 144 West Lenox street. The baby boy, who had been ill for some time, evaded the roof of his home and is thought to have fainted while there and slipped off.

COOLIDGE PUTS HIS O. K. ON ANDREW

Makes Personal Plea to Haverhill Voters and Pays Tribute to Harding

Haverhill, Sept. 24.—Vice-President Calvin Coolidge ascended the political stump at a rally held here, when he asked the voters of the Sixth Congressional District to endorse the present administration by electing Colonel A. Piatt Andrew of Gloucester to Congress over his Democratic opponent. Judge Pettengill, of Amesbury.

The Vice-President closed his address by paying the following tribute to President Harding:

TRIBUTE TO HARDING.

"Upon this day he was providentially nominated, President Harding has grown in the knowledge of the people of this nation. He has grown in their admiration and affections. With him patriotism is a religion, and the great office which he holds is a means of doing good.

"He is humble. He is generous. He is firm. There is something good about the man that commands confidence in his every act. No man ever sought less for personal glory or more for the public good. The representative of the different elements in the country find that in his keeping their interests are safe. He promises no miracles. He is no visionary. He has faith in common things, in common men and common remedies. He relies on what experience has proved. All that a man can do he does."

Continuing, he reviewed legislation enacted, or proposed; mentioned executive acts disposed of or pending, and continued:

REAL ACCOMPLISHMENTS.

"These are by no means all the accomplishments of the present administration, but sufficient of the record to show that it has been an administration of real accomplishments and that a real beginning has been made in restoring the nation to peace and in putting an end to the extravagant expenditures which were bred of the war.

"The issues of the last campaign were settled at the ballot box by the American people. Yet one of the causes the prosperity of this district are asked to do is to repudiate the last election.

"The main issue which will here be determined is whether you wish to express distrust or confidence in the present Administration which you so overwhelmingly placed in office six months ago, and by the act of that expression of confidence or distrust there will be an indication of whether our country is to start its citizens toward the level of dependence and servitude which we can see abroad, or whether America is to remain America, a land where the citizen is independent by his own efforts, and free by his own right."

Bodies of West Newton War Heroes Lie in State at Armory

Funeral services for Corporal George F. Spinney, formerly of Company C, 101st Infantry, and Private James Smith of Battery C, 149th Field Artillery, who met their death in the Argonne, in October, 1918, will be held at the same hour Sunday afternoon from the West Newton Armory where both bodies are lying in state, guarded by members of Company C, and the Newton Post, American Legion.

Corporal Spinney, for whom a square in Brighton has been named and who is the wearer, posthumously, of the D. S. C., will be borne to the Faneuil Congregational Church by the members of the Newton, Brighton-Allston Posts of the Legion. Interment will be in Evergreen Cemetery, Brighton.

Services for Private Smith will be held at the Methodist Church, Newtonville, Rev. C. R. Ross officiating. Interment will be in Newton Cemetery.

QUEEN MARIE TO KEEP OUT OF MOVIES

Rumanian Ruler Averse to Publicity of Career in Pictures

Queen Marie is not coming to the United States to enter the movies. This is the word brought from the Balkan country by Captain Harry Brickley, U. S. A., who has been military attache of the American Legation at Bucharest, Rumania, for the last 16 months.

Queen Marie does not take kindly to the movie idea, according to Captain Brickley, although it had been announced in this country that she planned to take part in the making of one or more films during a visit to America.

She is alert to any movement that will aid her subjects, but is said to feel that becoming a film actress would be of no direct benefit to them, and she is averse to the publicity that such a move would involve.

Captain Brickley returned to Boston, his native city, after a two months' leave of absence.

DOUBLE FUNERAL FOR BROTHER AND SISTER

A double funeral for Edward G. Winslow of Lynn and Mrs. Mary W. Wright of Canton, brother and sister, who died within two hours of each other at points twenty-five miles apart, will be held tomorrow afternoon at the home of Mrs. Stewart Hall, No. 49 Centre street, Lynn. Mrs. Hall is Mr. Winslow's daughter. Brother and sister will be buried in the same grave in Waterside Cemetery, Swampscott.

Edward G. Winslow died at his father's death. Mrs. Hall had a premonition that his sister was either dead or seriously ill. Soon after she learned of her aunt's death.

Do You Underestimate Your Power?

Many Men Are Kept in Small Positions in This World Because They Underestimate Their Ability

Copyright, 1921, Star Company

(Reprinted by request.)

Millions of men are born, grow up and die, leaving undone all the things they might have done, because they are controlled intellectually as a horse is controlled physically.

A majority of men believe that they cannot do a new thing. They believe that what always has been always MUST be.

The same old thing is done in the same old way, and millions upon millions of human beings live and die, all of them thinking that THAT IS THE ONLY WAY TO DO IT.

And then occasionally along comes a man who resists the pressure of the bit, the bridle of custom and habit upon his mind, who determines that he will not be held by any such flimsy power—and we have the real man, who does the real thing.

Napoleon crossed the Alps in the dead of Winter. When he was praised to the skies for his daring and his genius, he said, most truly: "I deserve no credit except for refusing to believe those who said it could not be done."

That is an instance that we shall quote to you often, for it shows above everything else the particular quality that made a friendless, penniless, sickly Corsican lad the greatest ruler that the world has known, the greatest lawmaker, and a most useful man, in spite of the excesses and crimes to which his ambition drove him.

Custom had no hold on Napoleon. There was no bit in his mouth, no halter fastened around his intellectual machinery. He could always see the new thing and do it.

When his gunners were shooting at fleeing soldiers on the frozen lake, shooting at them from a height, Napoleon looked for a second at the scene and then gave the order to lower the guns and shoot at the ice.

The cannon balls broke the ice, the fleeing army sank into the water, to be drowned or rescued at the edge of the lake and made prisoners.

Lucky the man who can take a lesson intended for all and apply it TO HIMSELF.

Lucky the man also who can still keep trying, still struggling to free himself from the rut, even after years of disappointment.

Napoleon at one time contemplated suicide in his despair of ever getting ahead in the world.

After he had become Emperor a young officer complained that he (the young officer) had been a lieutenant in the army for five years and that there was no hope of advancement. Napoleon replied: "Truly, I was a lieutenant for more than five years, yet you see that I could arrive."

When they sent Napoleon to Italy, representing the French nation that had been brought to life and made to think by the splendid revolution, the old Austrian generals felt only contempt for the lean, big-eyed young Corsican, leading soldiers, many of them ragged—and he himself tormented with the itch.

But those Austrian generals were held down by custom.

They did everything in the old way, AND NAPOLEON DID EVERYTHING IN THE NEW WAY—HIS OWN WAY.

When a battle was carried on along the banks of a river the Austrians followed the old plan, which was looked upon as sacred and unchangeable. They put one-half of their army on one side of the river and the other half of their army on the other side of the river, marching up and down, ready to meet Napoleon and beat him—as they supposed—no matter which side of the river he might choose.

Napoleon, free from custom, thinking for himself, kept his whole army together. He would take his WHOLE army along one side of the river, thrash one-half of the Austrian army, then cross the river and thrash the other half of the army; and those old generals, held by the halter of custom, scarcely knew what had happened to them before the Corsican boy had beaten them thoroughly and was well on the way to make himself Emperor of France and practical ruler of the world.

We cannot all be Napoleons. There is room for only one Napoleon at a time, and he must be made by circumstances and by wiser men.

But we all of us can take time, an hour or two on a quiet Sunday, to ask ourselves WHAT THE MATTER IS WITH US, WHAT BIT OR HALTER IS HOLDING US DOWN, KEEPING US BACK.

Do not imagine that it is necessary in order to succeed TO GIVE UP WHAT YOU ARE DOING NOW.

Success can be made AT ANYTHING.

Napoleon didn't have to get out of the army, in which he was moving so slowly, in order to find his success.

Newton, the greatest mathematical genius produced by the human race, did not have to give up his little employment with the government in order to carry on his extraordinary work.

In every field THERE IS OPPORTUNITY. The clerk in a as well as anywhere else in the world, and perhaps better. department store can develop himself RIGHT WHERE HE IS.

He sees human nature in all of its phases. Opportunity is before him, if he will take it. But he mustn't imagine that because OTHERS remain clerks he is bound to remain a clerk.

And he mustn't feel that because other clerks are careful not to work too much he SHOULD NOT WORK TOO MUCH.

Once you can get a bit into a horse's mouth or a halter on the horse's head, you can do almost anything you like with him. And when the bit of custom or the halter of fixed opinion holds a man, you can do pretty much anything you like with HIM.

For yourself, make up your mind that you will keep your head free—no halter or bit with a string for any man to hold.

Realize that freedom is opportunity, and opportunity is life.

Railroads to Blame for High Price of Coal

Hultman Takes Grave Responsibility in Advising Purchasing Now Lest There Be a Shortage

Mr. Hultman, the State official who is watching out for our interests in the necessaries of life, advises us to buy coal now, lest there should be a shortage in the coming Winter.

Mr. Hultman takes a great responsibility when he gives this advice. We do not say that he is mistaken, but we do say that if there is a coal shortage, it is an unnecessary shortage, and is a conspiracy among those who control the production of coal to force up the prices. Last Winter, we were entertained with the same talk of coal scarcity and prices jumped, but there was no coal scarcity. Coal dealers declared when the Summer came that the reason enormous prices were charged for coal was that people had become panic-stricken by the idea that there was to be a scarcity and were willing to pay any price to get coal.

But there was no reason for a coal scarcity last Winter, even if the Winter were an average Winter, and no man has a right to predict a coal scarcity based upon the assumption that the coming Winter is going to be an unusual Winter.

Every family in the United States which uses hard coal is being robbed without shame and without reason by the operators of the coal mines and the railroads which own them.

So outrageous was the idea that a railroad should own and operate a coal mine that the people of Pennsylvania, where the mines are, forbade it in their Constitution, and yet the railroads have defied not only the law, but the Constitution itself in this great democracy of ours.

This condition is known by Congress and by the national government. It is unknown only to the people at large. We repeat that there is no excuse for this extortion and that it could be ended if Congress really wanted to end it. There is no excuse for coal belonging to private individuals, and there is still less excuse for allowing the railroads to own the mines or private individuals to own the railroads.

Every member of Congress has his individual responsibility to his constituents for the present price of hard coal, and his constituents ought to ask him when he comes up for re-election and ought to ask every candidate what he proposes to do about coal. You can trace the coal robbery straight through the railroads to a little group of Wall Street bankers.

The American people have power enough under their Constitution and their laws, their trouble is not lack of power to control their government and get justice, it is the lack of a will to use their power. The labor organizations prefer to let politicians run their national convention and to elect an old gentleman, who talks but never acts, to represent them on the great national problems. Our middle classes would rather be "respectable" in their politics than be right; and so, as Montesquien said, "We get the kind of government we deserve."

Chickens Home to Roost

Amusing Position of Counsel Ives of Edison Company at Rate Hearing

The altercation between Boston's corporation counsel, Arthur Hill, and Mr. Ives, counsel for the Edison Electric Illuminating Company, at the hearing on the Edison electric light rates, was very interesting in one respect.

Mr. Hill was explaining to the commission the injustice and extortion and discrimination of the so-called Coal Clause. In the course of his explanation, he was stating facts out of his own mouth, and out of the mouths of witnesses. To this practice, which of course is not permissable in court, Mr. Ives jumped to protest and insisted that the court practice be followed and that the commission summon witnesses to hear the testimony and permit counsel for the company to cross-examine them. To this demand Chairman Atwill mildly replied that the commission was without power to adopt the court practice, because, although they had repeatedly asked for it, the Legislature has as often denied to them the power to summon witnesses and to put them under oath.

There was a smile on the chairman's face and a smile on the face of the rest of the commission, and on the faces of most of the wise ones in the hearing room, when the chairman made this statement, for everybody who knows anything about what goes on at the State House knows that it was the Public Utilities Corporations, like the one which Mr. Ives represents, who are responsible for the absurd situation in which the commission, charged by the State with the duty of regulating these public service companies, now finds itself.

A petit jury, even the Boxing Commission, can summon witnesses and put them under oath, but the great public utilities court, upon which is placed the responsibility of controlling the great public utility corporations, the most powerful aggregations of wealth in the State and the boldest, is deliberately kept without the power to summon witnesses and to put them under oath in these hearings, as the result of which the commission is obliged to make its findings. The situation is anomalous and preposterous, and it only indicates what a farce is regulation and how inevitable is its abandonment.

Mr. Hill, immediately following the chairman's statement, turned to Mr. Ives with a bit of sarcasm quite justified by the situation and said that he would join in a petition to the Legislature to give the commission power to summon and swear witnesses. But Ives, counsel for the Edison Electric Illuminating Company of Boston, remained discreetly silent, and the spectators smiled again.

Chickens often come home to roost.

The Coming of the Coffee Bar

How many people realize the number of coffee bars which have sprung up in this city recently, where those who feel the need of a stimulant can get it in five-cent or three-cent cups.

These coffee bars are like the old saloon bars, except that they are attended by sober people. The judge and lawyer, doctor, engineer, men and women of all descriptions, stand beside each other in democratic contact for a few moments.

A representative of the Boston American has been interested to watch the regularity with which a number of good men, whom he used to know as old topers, were attending one of these bars regularly every morning. The bloom is off their noses and the blear is gone from their eyes. They can now take a full cup to the lips without danger.

Drinking coffee is not the best habit in the world to acquire, but if one must have a stimulant, it is better than alcohol. At these coffee bars we are in no danger of disgracing ourselves, condemning ourselves to a living death, burdening the charitable or the criminal institutions of the State, bringing disgrace, poverty and sorrow to our families, and subjecting our children to the danger of physical and mental impairment.

Germans Active in Mexico

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 24.—Germany's trade with Mexico is reported to be rapidly increasing. Evidences of this is seen in the greater amount of German goods in the stores here and in other cities of Mexico and in the prosperity of members of the German colony.

Among other things, German interests are doing, banking on a large scale and there have been assurances in some of the States needing capital for development that German financing of a substantial sort may be obtained.

German business men here are said to be pleased with the continued hitch in negotiations between the United States and Mexican governments regarding recognition, and are making the most of the situation.

It is even asserted that German diplomacy has had much to do with the stand taken by the Obregon Administration for recognition before the signing of a treaty, as the situation and the unpleasant feeling engendered give German interests opportunity to use methods which were familiar in Latin America long before the World War.

There is no doubt that German propaganda of an artful sort is continuing in Mexico. It is veiled, because Germany must look for much more from the United States, but it is active and effective.

Mexicans understand the Germans and in many sections the Germans are unpopular, but the Germans are masters of propaganda in the form of almost imperceptible suggestion and are doing some thinking for the Mexicans without the Mexicans being aware of it. And the effect of this propaganda is to stir resentment against the United States because recognition is not granted at Washington and to convince the Mexicans that the United States must in the end yield, although continuation of the existing diplomatic situation, being advantageous to Germany, is ardently desired by the Germans here.

On the surface German influence in Mexico has greatly decreased in the past year. Actually it is almost as great as it ever was, but has taken a different form.

THAT WOULD ACCOUNT FOR IT.

Some people think $2 bills are unlucky. Evidently they have been trying to buy meals with them.

Bachelor Maids

DOES the modern girl want to marry?

A very noted British author says she doesn't.

He seemed surprised at the idea.

Isn't that just like a man, girls?

Of course, the modern girl doesn't want to marry, and neither—between you and me—does the modern man.

Looked at from their point of view—why should they?

Women used to marry for a home and men used to marry for a home-maker.

But homes are out of fashion—nobody has them any more, if it can be helped. A studio apartment, with a kitchenette and bath—that's the ideal roost for the modern pair of turtle-doves.

What's the use of getting a home-maker for that—what would the poor home-maker do in a place where there isn't room to hide a glass of jelly, and where you couldn't put away a bag of potatoes or a sack of plain old onions to save your life?

John can do very well in his studio apartment without any home-maker at all, thank you. He pays a valet or a janitor, or the janitor's wife or someone so much a month to tidy up his studio and keep plenty of towels in the bathroom.

No Old-Fashioned Slavery

Somebody runs in and makes him a cup of coffee and some toast for breakfast, he lunches downtown and dines uptown, either at his club or at a restaurant. What on earth would he do with an old-fashioned wife—and what under the sun would she do with him?

Oh, yes, John might buy a little home in the suburbs, with a garden and a front porch and a lawn-mower—sometimes he thinks he'd like that, but Mary doesn't care for the suburbs. She wants to be in town, right in the midst of it, with only a block or so to go to the delicatessen and the cooked-food shops.

Mary likes concerts and lectures, and she's crazy about the theatre, and Mary likes a studio parties and dancing, and however could she get any of these things in the suburbs? No—Mary wants the "broader life."

When Mr. Right Arrives

Mary has seen mother giving up everything in the world for father and getting—not such a terrible thrill out of it, after all, so far as Mary can judge.

John's father wasn't much of a success as a husband, though John's mother tried to make all her friends believe he was. And if John's mother was a girl today and knew what she knows—nine chances to one, she wouldn't marry, either.

Not if she had a good job and could pay her own bills and choose her own friends and carry her own latchkey. The modern girl says that she has weighed the old-fashioned husband in the balance and found him wanting. And the modern man will have to do a good deal of convincing to make her believe he's worth quite the sacrifice that the masculine idea of marriage seems so often to mean.

Make no mistake, gentlemen, the modern girl doesn't want to marry—till she meets the one man who can persuade her that she's all wrong. And when she does that—pouf! it's all off, and there she is, as old-fashioned as her grandmother!

"What you do expect—what you don't expect—and what's sure to come," is what a strange old fortune-teller Human Nature always is!

Stars and Stripes

"Marie is so modest she puts her pet dog out of the room while she is changing her gown!"

"The idea!"

"Well—it's a Pekingese."

It takes a special act of Congress for a woman to wear pants, but it takes a special act of Providence for her to keep 'em up.

Some women wear short skirts for anything at all; others have two perfectly good excuses.

Revolution in India

By Prof. Taraknath Das

(Concluded from Yesterday's Boston American.)

THE Indian laborers boycotted the British tea gardens, British mill and mines and many of them were brutally shot down. Repressive measures became the order of the day and the people were provoked to take a stand to oppose British violence. Machine guns were used upon the Indian workingmen from the tops of the houses.

Thousands of men were put in jail, editors and preachers were put under bonds, but they preferred prisons than to obey the decisions of the British courts. These repressive measures were vigorously taken when the Indian National Congress Committee declared that they would advise the nation to boycott the Prince of Wales during his coming visit to India.

Actual war for independence is going on, in various parts of India. The Indian people, ex-soldiers, have mustered arms, to oppose the British military machines. Martial law prevails and many a scene of Amritsar massacres are being perpetrated. In the northwestern frontier provinces, the British have already used poison gas from aeroplanes among the people indiscriminately.

India is under British Reign of Terror. Britain wants to frighten the India patriots so that there will be no declaration of Indian Republic at the coming session of the Indian National Congress to be held during the Christmas week as it was done by the Irish martyrs during the Easter Week of 1916. Oppression and execution of martyrs never kills the movement for liberty, but it gives a new life. From the midst of the British Reign of Terror, there will rise the sublime spirit of human liberty and there will be a Federated Republic of the United States of India, the goal of the Indian Nationalists.

The Reign of Terror in India will be conquered, the people of India will be free and this will make Asia free and this will mean a death blow to the European Imperialism and make world-disarmament possible.

GET HURT.

Capital and labor are being urged to get together, but whenever they do it is necessary to call out the military reserves.
